FROM THE PRESIDENT

On March 18 we visited the Portage County Historical Society and were amazed at the amount of genealogical material available. We found original tax records, naturalization papers, collections of old newspaper obits, original wills and probates, and lots of family bibles. It has become a repository for original courthouse records that have been put on microfilm. The Society is open Tuesday and Thursday 2:00-4:00 and during the summer, Sundays, 2:00-4:00. Not extensive hours, but they will answer queries. There is a minimum charge of $5.00 per hour, plus $.25 per page for materials copied. For those of you who are out of state the address is as follows: The Portage County Historical Society, 6549 Chestnut Street, Ravenna, OH 44266.

One of our guests is a clerk in the Portage County Probate Court. She answers queries on marriages, births, deaths, estates, some naturalizations (male only), and guardianships. Copies are $1.00 per page or $2.00 per page for certified copies. Write explaining what you want and send SASE. She will send you the cost before doing any work. We are not endorsing either of these services, but are including them as a resource for our out-of-state members. Write to: The Portage County Probate Court, c/o Mary Ellen Moore, 203 West Main Street, Third Floor, 301, Ravenna, OH 44266. The court house is open Monday - Friday, 8-4 in case you want to search in person. The phone number is 297-3870.

I got interested in naturalization papers and am including a few so that you can see what is in them.

ALLEN, Geo., filed 15 Feb., 1827, came from Antrim, arrived in US July, 1831.

Paris Township

Elijah Hawley, farmer, P. O. Newton Falls, Trumbull Co., Ohio is the oldest living resident of Paris Township, this county, and was born near his present residence October 11, 1815; son of Chauncy and Mercy (Selby) Hawley, natives of Massachusetts, the former born March 24, 1780, the latter March 24, 1786. Chauncy Hawley was reared and educated in his native State, and there married May 27, 1808. He was a hatter by trade, at which he worked in connection with farming. In 1815 he with his family came to Paris Township, this county, where he resided till his death, which occurred June 17, 1846. His widow died June 18, 1875. Of their six children the following survive: Elijah; Eliza, widow of Joseph Brown; and Urania, wife of M. M. Seymour. Elijah Hawley left home when seventeen years of age and began working at the trade of cabinet-making, but gave it up after three months, and served an apprenticeship at carpentering, at which he worked many years. In 1842 he married Jane, daughter of Thomas and Anna (Sefton) Stewart, by whom he had six children, five now living: Henry, Miles, Charles, William and George. Our subject at his marriage had but little capital, and his first purchase of land was twelve acres, which he paid for by building a house for Stephen Bingham. The result of his industry is 380 acres of well-improved land. Mr. Hawley was successful in architecture and bridge building, and was the author of a design for a substantial wooden bridge. He has held several township offices; was first Assessor of Paris Township. In politics he is a Democrat.

John Leonard (deceased) was born in Mahoning County, Ohio, March 8,1815; son of George and Margaret (Hoffman) Leonard, natives of Pennsylvania and Virginia respectively. George Leonard, who was reared, educated and married in Washington County, Penn., was a farmer and also a carpenter and joiner. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. On coming to Ohio he first settled in Mahoning County, as did his parents. He then moved to Paris Township, this county, in 1832, and here died in the fall of 1843, aged fifty-five years. His widow died in Michigan in 1860, aged seventy-four years. Eight of their twelve children survive: Nancy, Henry, Catherine, Moses, Aaron, Joshua, Sarah and Hannah. Of these, Joshua and Aaron served through the late war of the Rebellion. John Leonard, the subject of this sketch, was married, September 1, 1835, to Fanny daughter of James and Susan (Shaffer) Patterson, natives of eastern Pennsylvania and early settlers of Trumbull County, Ohio. To this union was born one child - Lura L., who died in 1871, aged twenty years. Mr. Leonard died March 16, 1885, of heart disease. He was a consistent member of the Congregational Church at Newton Falls. He followed farming, and at his death was owner of 241 acres of good land. He filled several of the township offices of trust. - from HISTORY OF PORTAGE COUNTY

Elijah Hawley, farmer, P.O. Newton Falls, Trumbull Co., Ohio is the oldest living resident of Paris Township, this county, and was born near his present residence October 11, 1812, son of Chauncey and Marcy (Sally) Hawley, natives of Massachusetts, the former born March 23, 1780, the latter March 24, 1785. Chauncey Hawley was reared and educated in his native State, and there married May 22, 1808. He was a tanner by trade, in which he worked in connection with farming. In 1815 he with his family came to Paris Township, this county, where he resided till his death, which occurred June 12, 1846. His widow died June 16, 1873. Of their six children the following survive: Elijah; Clara, widow of Joseph Barber; and Cleora, wife of M. M. Seymour. Elijah Hawley left home when seventeen years of age and began working at the trade of cabinet-making, but gave it up after three months, and served an apprenticeship of carpentering, at which he worked forty years. In 1841 he married Jane, daughter of Thomas and Agnes (Stanton) Bassett, by whom he had six children, five now living: Henry, Amos, Charles, William and George. Our subject at his marriage had but little capital, and his first purchase of land was twelve acres, which he paid for by building a house for Stephen Singleton. The result of his industry is 100 acres of well-improved land. Mr. Hawley was successful in carpentering and bridge building, and was the author of a design for a patented wooden bridge. He has held several township offices, was first Assessor of Paris Township. In politics he is a Democrat.

John Leonard (deceased), was born in Mahoning County, Ohio, March 4, 1816, son of George and Margaret (Hoffman) Leonard, natives of Pennsylvania and Virginia respectively. George Leonard, who was reared, educated and married in Washington County, Penn., was a farmer and also a carpenter and joiner. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. On coming to Ohio he first settled in Mahoning County, as did his parents. He then moved to Paris Township, this county, in 1842, and here died in the fall of 1843, aged fifty-five years. His widow died in Michigan in 1869, aged seventy-four years. Eight of their twelve children survive: Nancy, Henry, Catherine, Moses, Aaron, Joshua, Sarah and Hannah. Of these, Joshua and Aaron served through the late war of the Rebellion. John Leonard, the subject of this sketch, was married, September 1, 1838, to Fanny, daughter of James and Susan (Whittle) Hutcheson, natives of eastern Pennsylvania and early settlers of Trumbull County, Ohio. To this union was born one child, Laura L., who died in 1871, aged twenty years. Mr. Leonard died March 16, 1885, of heart disease. He was a consistent member of the Congregational Church at Newton Falls. He followed farming, and at his death was owner of 244 acres of good land. He filled several of the township offices of trust. - from HISTORY OF PORTAGE COUNTY

John R. Leonard, p. 794

JOHN R. LEONARD, one of the best known and most prominent citizens of the borough of Washington, is a native of the county, having been born in Morris township, December 7, 1821. He is of Teutonic descent, his great-grandfather, John Leonard, having come from Germany to America many years ago. John Leonard, grandfather of John R., was born in Ohio, where he married Nancy Huffman, of Washington county, Penn., and one of their sons, John, became the father of John R. Leonard, the subject of this sketch. Grandfather Leonard died in Ohio.

John Leonard, son of John and Nancy (Huffman) Leonard, was born in Washington county, Penn., where he was reared and educated. He settled in Morris township, and here married Rebecca, a daughter of John Robertson, of same township, and ten children were born to them, as follows: Jesse, killed at Chattanooga, Tenn., during the war of the Rebellion; John R.; Ann, deceased wife of Jackson Delong; Abigail, married to Jesse Delong, and died in Ohio; Elizabeth, deceased wife of Conrad Maloy; Emeline, who died at the age of four years; Benjamin F. and James W., both in Noble county, Ohio; Sarah, wife of Aaron Delong, in Portage county, Ohio; and Margaret, widow of James E. Ray, of Greene county, Penn. After marriage Mr. and Mrs. Leonard remained in Morris township a year or two, and then moved to Ohio, where they died, the mother in 1871, at the age of seventy-three years, and the father in 1872, aged seventy-seven years; he had been a soldier in the war of 1812.

John R. Leonard, whose name opens this memoir, was but an infant when his parents moved to Ohio, where, in Warren and Trumbull counties he learned the trade of a carpenter, at which he worked some forty-six years. On July 5, 1845, he returned to Washington county, Penn., and settled on a farm in Morris township, which he operated, at the same time carrying on his trade. He built many of the best houses in that and East Finley townships, besides some in Greene county, on the boundary line. On January 22, 1846, Mr. Leonard married Miss Matilda, daughter of Stacy Farabee, of Morris township, and two children were born to them, both of whom died in childhood, the one at the age of five years, and the other at the age of six months. Mrs. Leonard was called from earth June 3, 1891, and March 16, 1892, Mr. Leonard was united in wedlock with Mrs. Henrietta Farabee, widow of Benjamin Farabee (deceased in November, 1884), by whom she had three children, as follows: Laura Belle, who was twice married, first to Simeon Clarke, and after his death to William Chambers; John Franklin and Homer. Mrs. Leonard was born in Allegany county, Md., a daughter of Aaron and Rachel (Coleman) Hixenbaugh. She is a member of the Methodist Protestant Church.

On September 222, 1869, Mr. Leonard came to Washington borough, taking up his residence in the house where he is yet living, and which he had built. Here he continued at his trade until his final retirement, doing a great deal of contract work, besides building some eight houses for himself in various parts of the borough. In 1847 he joined the M. E. Church, Mt. Zion, but a few years ago he identified himself with the Methodist Protestant Church, of which he is now trustee, class-leader, assistant superintendent of Sunday school, and a teacher of the Bible class. At the time of his joining Mt. Zion Church, there were forty-five members, and when he visited it last winter he found he was the only one living of those forty-five. Politically he is a lifelong Democrat. Mr. Leonard is a typical self-made man, having risen by sheer industry, perseverance and economy, from comparative poverty to a condition of enviable affluence, and is highly respected in the community in which he lives, now enjoying the income of his hard-earned competence.

woody banks and verdant valleys, the river helps to make a scene of picturesque loveliness. Mill creek waters the southwestern quarter of the township. One of its tributaries has the suggestive name of Turkey Broth. Turkey Broth creek is a small stream rising in the northeastern part of the township, and flowing southwesterly until it reaches Mill creek. Several small runs empty into it.

The land of Berlin is mostly very nearly level, and consists of a succession of broad swells with wide and very slight depressions intervening. The surface is so nearly uniform that an observer, upon almost any of the gentle rises of land, can obtain a view of nearly all parts of the township. The soil is deep and fertile; very little clay or sand, but a good strong loam, well adapted to fruits and cereals. A traveler along almost any of the roads in the township can scarcely fail to note and admire the beautiful fields on every hand.

Berlin center, a straggling settlement of twenty or more houses, is the only village, and is pleasantly situated on a slight elevation a short distance east of the geographical center of the township.

Belvidere, where Schilling's mill is located, advanced far enough toward the dignity of a village to receive a name, and apparently its ambition was satisfied. Shelltown in the northeast is a thickly settled community. At Christy's corners, in the southwestern part of the township, quite an extensive business has been carried on for a number of years in the manufacture of pottery.

The township was but sparsely settled until about 1824 for the reason that the greater portion of the land was not offered for sale until that time.

ORGANIZATION.

The township, which for several years had been a part of Ellsworth, was erected a separate township and election precinct by the county commissioners in March, 1828.

THE FIRST ELECTION

of township officers took place at the schoolhouse near the center April 7, 1828, Matthias Glass, Salmon Hall, and Joseph Stall being judges of election, and Peter Musser and Joseph H. Coult, clerks. The following officers were elected: Nathan Minard, Thompson Craig, Samuel Kauffman, trustees; Salmon Hall, treasurer; Joseph H. Coult, clerk; John Stuart, constable; William Kirkpatrick, Christian Kauffman overseers of the poor; Joseph Davis, Joseph Leonard fence viewers; Edward Fankle, Benjamin Misner, Abraham Craft, supervisors.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

In 1828 the township was divided into four school districts. Four years later the number had increased to nine. The old township records give the following names of the inhabitants of the four school districts in 1829. Where the name is illegible in the old book, or where the spelling is of doubtful authenticity, a question mark (?) is placed after the name:

District Number One.—Joshua Minard, John Vosburg, William Kirkpatrick, Edward Fankle, John Crumrine, John Ween (?), Benjamin Leonard, Nathan Minard, Adam Morningstar, Henry Morningstar, Adam Morningstar, Jr., John Ludwick, John Kimmel.

District Number Two.—John Smith, Henry Powell, William Bishop, Ephraim Horner, Elisha Fogg, Adna B. Silver, Joseph Huntley, Enoch Sharpe, Isaac Sharpe, Hoffman Brown, James Ramsey, Jacob Strong, John Shatto (?), David Parshall, Henry Houck, Joseph Davis, John Thomas, Samuel Leonard, John Leonard, Joseph Leonard, Jacob Starling, Isaac Phipps, Andrew Hull, Joseph Poll (?), Peter Helsel, Joseph H. Coult.

District Number Three.—George Ripple, Eli Rush, John Craig, James Packard, John Carter, John Stump (?), William Parker, Eleanor Packard, George Boom (Baum ?), Jacob Welty, William Leonard, George Foster, Abraham Craft, John Foster, Salmon Hall, John Best, Henry Rummell, John Rummell.

District Number Four.—Daniel Myer, John Rummell, John Phillips, Jonathan King, John Cline, Peter Glass, Adam Schilling, David Misner, Samuel Misner, Samuel Phillips, Phillip Wise (?), Jacob Stump, Henry Fulk, Matthias Swartz, Benjamin Misner, George Hartzell, Abraham Hawn, William Glass, Christian Kauffman, Samuel Kauffman, David Mauen (?), William Mell, Jacob Eib, Matthias Glass, Adam Zedaker, Daniel Greenamyer, Peter Musser, Moses Ross, Jacob Greenamyer, James Winans, James Byers, William Stull (?), Emmanuel Hull.

This is doubtless a complete list of the prop-died April 19, 1872. Curtis was a member of the One Hundred and Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, and died at Nashville, Tennessee, February 27, 1865. He was married to Orell Baldwin, December 31, 1868. Lovilla died in infancy. Helen L. is the wife of L. G. Spencer, of Hartford township, and has two children, Bennie F. and Byron H. Aureil D., born September 27, 1857, wife of Frank E. Clark, resides on the home place. Mr. Foote was kicked a number of years ago on the head, by a horse, and severely injured, thirty pieces of broken bone being taken out, since which time he has been almost totally deaf. Mrs. Foote died March 15, 1872.

Leonard Clark, son of Abel and Eunice (Lamphear) Clark, was born in Petersburg, Rensselaer county, New York, February 27, 1808. His early educational advantages were limited, yet by self study he acquired a fair education for the times. He remained at home (but working for others) until he was twenty years of age. He was a resident of Pittsfield, Massachusetts, engaged in factory work for seven years. December 23, 1836, he was united in marriage to Miss Lucy Olds, who was born in Middlefield, Massachusetts, January 17, 1813. The following spring he removed to Ohio and settled upon the place where he still resides in Fowler township. The land was then wild, but he rapidly improved the place, supplanting the log house with his present residence in 1845. The farm is now fully improved, and comprises two hundred acres, having deeded three farms to his children. Mr. Clark is a prosperous, self-made man, and a gentleman of literary tastes. He was one of a family of twenty-two children. One of his brothers, Adam A., was a drum-major in the War of 1812, and was a celebrated drummer. Mr. Clark is the father of eight children, of whom six are living, as follow: Harriet E., born July 29, 1839, now wife of Emanuel Evarts, of Brookfield township; Leonard, born March 4, 1841, widow of Abner Viets, living in Fowler township; Lester A., born June 18, 1843, living on a farm adjoining the home place; George W., born December 17, 1845, a resident of Hartford township; Sherman S., born September 26, 1850, at home; Lucy, born November 5, 1852, wife of Henry Viets, of Fowler township. Since coming to Ohio Mr. and Mrs. Clark have been members of the Methodist Episcopal church at Fowler center.

A. L. Stewart, son of Robert and Catharine (Sinclair) Stewart, was born in Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, November 12, 1811. Robert Stewart was among the early settlers of Trumbull county, coming to Liberty township in the spring of 1812, and settling on a place where he spent the balance of his life. He died about 1850. When sixteen years of age our subject learned the blacksmith trade, at which he served an apprenticeship of two years; and afterwards working as a journeyman for five years. He started in the business in Liberty township in 1835, and has since carried on the business there and for many years in Vienna township, removing to Fowler township in the spring of 1872, purchasing the place where he still lives in the northeast corner of the square at Fowler center, where he owns sixty-nine acres of well-improved land, the house being originally built for a hotel by Alanson Smith. In connection with his trade he owned seventy-five acres of land in Vienna, upon which was discovered coal, which he sold, and the influx of miners caused him to seek a more retired home in Fowler. December 1, 1836, he married Miss Isabel, daughter of Thomas and Rebecca Wilson, early settlers in Liberty township. Mrs. Stewart was born there December 1, 1819. They are the parents of five children—Robert W., born October 3, 1837, residing in Iowa; Rebecca E., born April 9, 1842, now the wife of John P. Barber, and resides in Franklin Square, Ohio; Kate A., February 28, 1849, wife of Wilson S. Powers, and residing in Niles, Ohio; Ettalissa, October 13, 1851, wife of B. H. Long, of Hartford township; Emma, born June 26, 1859, died September 3, 1864.

Abner Leonard, youngest son of Caleb and Margaret (Morrow) Leonard, natives of Pennsylvania, was born in Bazetta township, Trumbull county, Ohio, February 27, 1823. Caleb Leonard was a mail-carrier from Ashtabula to Warren at an early day, making his trips on foot. He died about 1830. Abner was a pupil of the common school in Bazetta until reaching the age of about fifteen. In 1837 or 1838 he removed to Fowler township where he completed his attendance at school, living in the family of John F. Kingsley until becoming of age. He was seeing the face of a female excepting her daughters.

From Mrs. Polly Bowman, an old lady past the ninetieth year of her age, now residing in Goshen township, is gathered the following information regarding her father's settlement:

James Reed came to Ellsworth from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, in 1803, and remained during the summer. He made a clearing, built a camp, and raised a crop of corn that year. While he was encamped on one side of the Meander, an Indian occupied a camp opposite, across the stream. Mr. Reed began operations on what is now called the Harclerode farm. Before he came here to live he had made several trips from his home in Pennsylvania to Canfield, carrying supplies to the settlers on pack-horses.

Toward the latter part of February, 1804, Mr. Reed and two of his daughters returned to the camp. They came with a pair of oxen and a cart, following a course of travel marked by blazed trees, and cutting a road for the team when necessary. Mr. Reed then went back for the remainder of his family, leaving his daughters in the care of a man who worked for him. They reached here in April following. The camp was a log structure, with three sides, the fourth being open and used as an entrance. The ground was the floor, and into it was driven forked stakes for bed-posts. Here the family lived until a house could be erected. During the spring of 1804 they made a considerable quantity of maple sugar.

Mr. Reed brought out some stock, including several hogs. Six of the hogs, being averse to living in a wild country, escaped and made their way back to Pennsylvania, where they were found by Mr. Reed's father one morning sound asleep in their old nest. They had made the whole distance of sixty miles alone, guided only by instinct or memory.

One night a fat hog belonging to Mr. Reed was killed and partially devoured by a bear, very quietly it would seem, as none of the family were awakened by any noise. Indians were frequent visitors at the house, but were never troublesome. Bears were often seen. Polly Reed, then a girl of about eleven years, was after the cows one night when she saw a huge black fellow just across the ravine. He reared upon his hind legs as soon as he saw her, while she, much frightened, ran to the house crying for aid. Deer were numerous, and the children sometimes found the young fawns lying in the bushes near the house.

Mr. Reed lived in Ellsworth a little over a year, then sold his farm to John and Nicholas Leonard, and moved to Canfield township, where he died in 1813.

In 1804 a clearing was made one mile west of the center by two men from Connecticut, one of them named Penuel Cheney. These men did not settle here, but returned to their own State. The land was bought by William and Harvey Ripley in 1806.

Joseph Coit had eight acres cleared at Ellsworth center in the summer of 1804. He also erected a log-house the same year.

Thomas Jones settled on the east line of the township in 1804, his family being the second that arrived in this township. He was born in Maryland, and died in Ellsworth in 1852, at the age of ninety-two. His wife, whose maiden name was Sarah Wilson, died in 1865, aged about ninety. They were the parents of fifteen children, ten of whom arrived at maturity, seven sons and three daughters. Three sons and two daughters are still living. Their names are: Mary, Margaret, Thomas, James, Joseph, John, Samuel, Rosanna, Elijah, and Matthew. Mary married Ashur Squier, and is still living in Canfield; Margaret married James Bruce, and died in Randolph, Portage county; Thomas married Rachel Webb, and died in Edinburg, Portage county; James married Huldah Tanner, and died in Canfield; Joseph married Ann ——, and died in Portage county; John married Nancy Calhoon for his first wife, for his second Desire Phelps, and lives in Ravenna; Samuel married Betsy Calhoon, and lives in North Jackson; Rosanna married Columbia Lancaster, and now lives in Washington Territory; Elijah married Phebe Manchester, and died in St. Clair county, Missouri; Matthew married Eliza Manchester, and he now lives in Missouri.

Philip Arner, a native of Pennsylvania bought land and erected a cabin in 1803, and returned to his home. He came back to Ellsworth in 1804 with his family and settled east of the Meander.

George Broadsword, one of the first settlers, located on the place where Martin Allen now lives. He brought up a family of fourteen children, and all but two of them are living. The names of his sons were Peter, Daniel, John, David, Anthony, Matthias, and Levi. The daughters became Mrs. Abigail Allen, Mrs. Rachel Wagoner, Mrs. Mary Winans, Mrs. Charlotte Rhodes, and Mrs. Lucy Parker. The oldest two, Betsey and Eliza, remained single. The sons are all living except David, and all the daughters except Mrs. Wagoner. Anthony, Matthias, and Mrs. Winans reside in this township.

John Huston came in 1804 to buy land, but did not purchase that year. He built a log house in 1807 and remained until about 1813, then sold to John Baker. In 1817 A. W. Allen bought the place of Baker.

Hugh Smith, who had been here previously, came from Maryland in 1806 and settled on the main branch of the Meander. He brought up five sons and three daughters. Two sons and two daughters are now living in the western part of this State. Mr. Smith died quite suddenly in 1821 or 1822. He was going toward the barn one evening in a cheerful mood, singing the hymn commencing with the lines,

Oh, when shall I see Jesus,
And dwell with him above.

A few minutes later he was found dead between the house and barn.

In 1805 William Ripley, Hervey Ripley, Elisha Palmer, and one or two others, came from Scotland, Windham county, Connecticut, and commenced improving land west of the center, which they had previously purchased. In 1806 William Ripley returned to Ellsworth with his wife, Susan Bingham, and settled at the center. Hervey Ripley died here in 1813, aged forty years. William Ripley was a justice of the peace for many years, a member of the Legislature in 1826 or 1827, and afterwards a State Senator.

Daniel Fitch and wife, from Norwalk, Connecticut, came in 1806, and settled one-half mile north of the center. They had four sons and four daughters, several of whom are dead. None of the survivors reside in this township. Daniel Fitch died in 1826.

In 1806 Thomas Jones and family, from Maryland, settled in the eastern part of the township. Mr. Jones had seven sons and three daughters. He lived to be an old man. After his death the family moved away.

The Fitch brothers, Richard, William and Charles, came from Salisbury, Connecticut, in 1806 with their families. Richard settled at the center, and cleared the farm north of there, where his son Richard now lives. William and Charles remained eight or ten years and then moved to Tiffin, Seneca county, Ohio. William afterwards returned and settled two miles north of the center, where he resided several years, thence removing to Ashtabula county, where he died at the age of ninety-four. Charles died in Chicago, aged eighty years.

Philip Borts came from Pennsylvania in 1805 with his family and located near Philip Arner. He had two sons and three daughters. He became one of the wealthiest men in this region, and gave a farm to each of his children. One of his daughters married George Harding, whose son, G. W. Harding, now lives on the old Borts homestead, and has the finest house in the township.

John Leonard and family settled near the Meander about the year 1806. Mr. Leonard had several sons and daughters. One of his sons, James, now lives in Portage county. John Leonard died at quite an early date.

Nicholas Leonard settled one mile from the centre. He had a large family, seven sons and five daughters. Abram, the youngest son, resides in Wood county, and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Swartz, in Ashtabula county.

Andrew Fitch, an early settler, located at the centre. He married Lucy Manning. He lived here until quite old, then returned to Connecticut and died there. He had one daughter, who is now living, the wife of Silas C. Clark, of Washington, District of Columbia.

James Parshall settled on the southwestern corner of section twenty-four at an early day. He had several sons and daughters, none of whom are now residing here.

Thomas and Robert McKean settled on the diagonal road running northwest from the center. Thomas died quite early. He brought up a family of three sons and one daughter. Robert McKean lived here until his death in 1843. He had four sons and four daughters.

James McGill and family settled on section twelve, where Thomas Young now lives, resided township by the county commissioners March 4, 1828.

FIRST ELECTION.

The first election was held April 2, 1810. The following officers were chosen: Joseph Coit, clerk; Andrew Fitch, Daniel Fitch, Hugh Smith, trustees; William Ripley, James Parshall, overseers of the poor; John Leonard, Robert McKean, fence viewers; Daniel Fitch, lister; Daniel Fitch, William Fitch, appraisers; Jesse Buel, constable; Peter Watts, George Painter, James McGill, supervisors; Hervey Ripley, treasurer.

At the first election after Berlin was created a separate precinct the following were chosen as the officers of Ellsworth township, April 7, 1828: William Ripley, Jacob Dustman, Robert McKean, trustees; Walter Smith, Asa W. Allen, overseers of the poor; John Bingham, Harvey Allen, fence viewers; John C. Webb, John Miller, constables; Andrew Fitch, treasurer. Also a road supervisor for each of the eleven districts.

OTHER RECORDS.

Richard Fitch qualified as a justice of the peace June 19, 1810; Robert McKean (or McCane, as the name is spelled upon the old records), was commissioned as justice March 13, 1813, resigned June 23, 1815; William Ripley was commissioned August 21, 1815, October 17, 1818, October 29, 1821, December 11, 1824, March 17, 1828; Henry Boyd, June 6, 1826; Thomas Fitch, April 30, 1831; George Matson, May 7, 1832. Later than this date the records are not complete.

The first selection of jurors, or the first of which there is any record, occurred March 2, 1812. William Ripley and Richard Fitch were chosen grand jurors; William Logan, Andrew Fitch, and Thomas McKean, traverse jurors.

That the people of this township in early days were rigid in their determination to prevent the spread of pauperism in their midst will appear from the following entry upon the records:

To Jesse Buel, constable of the township of Ellsworth, greeting:

Whereas, it appears from information by us received, that —— ——— is likely to become a township charge; these are therefore to command you to warn the said —— ——— to depart from this township.

Given under our hands at Ellsworth, this sixth day of June, 1811.

CHARLES B. FITCH, } Overseers of the Poor.
PETER WALTS,

JUNE 8, 1811.—Served the within warrant by reading it to the within-named person, at the house of William Fitch, in Ellsworth.

JESSE BUEL, constable.

A true copy.

JOSEPH COIT, township clerk.

Many similar entries appear on the records for years following. The persons warned, however, were not obliged to quit the township; but if they afterwards become so poor as to require aid, the township officers were relieved from the responsibility of furnishing it. Often these severe measures doubtless served to "foster home industry." Sometimes the most worthy citizens were "warned," on account of the complaints of those who bore them some ill-will.

For many years the township elections were held at the house of Richard Fitch.

The town hall was built in 1818 by private subscriptions. Thenceforth religious meetings, schools, elections, etc., were held there.

EARLY INCIDENTS.

February 3, 1818, three feet of snow fell in one day. Some who are yet living remember wading through it when it reached higher than their waists.

The most of the families coming from Connecticut in 1806 were not provided with cabins, so they stopped at Captain Coit's until homes could be built for them. Coit was then a single man, and required little room; besides, he was at work the greater part of the time making improvements on his land in the northern part of the township. While thus engaged one day his house took fire and was destroyed, together with his watch, money, books, and clothing. Mr. Coit came home toward evening, and gazed unmoved upon the destruction the flames had made. He found the women in tears, and almost in despair. He, however, seemed in excellent spirits; and, seating himself near the ruins, began singing in a rich, full voice the air, Contentment, the first verse of which is:

"Why should we at our lot repine,
  Or grieve at our distress?
Some think if they should riches gain,
  They'd gain true happiness.
Alas! how vain is all our gain,
  Since life must soon decay;
And since we're here with friends so dear,
  Let's drive dull care away!"

smooth round logs for the jurymen and others in attendance to sit on. Every man and boy that had been fortunate enough to kill his deer had buckskin leggins and a new hunting shirt, and every woman that had a wheel had spun and dyed and made herself and little ones a good homespun garment. Some few who could stand the expense had bought of store calico three to five yards, at seventy-five cents a yard, and fitted themselves with a two or three breadth dress, the third breadth made into gores, so as to be wider at the bottom, as their ability enabled; for in those days there were no fashionable women to parade the streets with fifteen to eighteen yards in a dress, and no disposition for extravagant displays of wearing apparel. The Court traveled on horse-back—handed the saddle-bags to "Knuck Harris," and, after rest and refreshment, bright and early on the morning of the 2d of May "opened" and proceeded to business. The whole population—men, women and children—were out in their best rig, to witness this great event; and we give the following faithful transcript of the entire proceedings:

FIRST COURT OF COMMON PLEAS IN KNOX COUNTY.

" The State of Ohio, to wit:

"Agreeable to an act of the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, passed on the 17th day of February, 1808, for establishing and organizing the county of Knox:

"Be it, therefore, remembered and known, that we, William Wilson, President, John Mills and Wm. Gass, Associate Judges for said county of Knox, did on this day, to wit: Monday, the second day of May, in the year of our Lord 1808, meet at Mount Vernon, the temporary seat of justice for the county aforesaid, and proceeded to the appointment of a clerk for the said county, whereupon it was declared by the Court that Chas. Loffland was duly elected pro tempore, who came into Court and was duly qualified as the law directs.

"Samuel H. Smith, Esq., was duly elected surveyor of Knox Co.

"Present: William W. Farquhar, gentleman."

" The State of Ohio vs. Wm. Hedrick—Felony.—William Wallace, William Bowen and Joseph Cherry Holmes entered into recognizance of $100 each to appear at the next Court of Common Pleas and testify against William Hedrick.

"James Armstrong, James Dunlap and Isaac Cook, gentlemen, who was appointed by the Legislature on the 9th of February last for fixing the county seat in the county of Knox, made their report to the Court of Common Pleas for the county aforesaid that Mount Vernon should be the seat of justice for said county.

"WILLIAM WILSON."

Such is the beginning of the minutes of the first Court. The "Report" reads as follows:

" To the Hon. William Wilson, Esq., President, and John Mills, William Gass and Wm. W. Forker, Esqs., Associate Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in and for the County of Knox, in the State of Ohio:

"May it please your Honors, In conformity to an act of the Legislature of the State of Ohio, passed the 28th of March, 1803, entitled an act establishing seats of justice, we, the subscribers, were appointed by a Resolution of both Houses of the Legislature, passed on the 9th of February, 1808, commissioners for fixing the Parmanent seat of justice in and for s'd county of Knox. We do hereby make report to your Honors, that, Having Met and attended to the duties of our s'd appointment in s'd county on the 28th of the present Inst., and Having paid due Regard to the centre, Extent of population, Quality of soil, as well as the General convenience, we Hereby declare that the Town of Mount Vernon is the most suitable place for the Courts of s'd county to be held at, and we do hereby declare the said Town of Mount Vernon the parmanent seat of Justice in and for s'd county of Knox. Given under our hands and seals this 29th day of March, 1808.

THE TOWNSHIPS DETACHED FROM KNOX COUNTY.

As has already been observed, Knox county at one time had much more territory than it possesses today. A part of this has been accounted for by the foregoing; now will follow the history of the detachment of what was named Madison, Green, Chester, Bloomfield and Franklin townships.

The act establishing Knox county was passed January 30, 1808. The act establishing Richland county was passed the same date, and contained a provision that it should be under the jurisdiction of Knox county until the Legislature should order otherwise. Then, June 9, 1809, the county of Richland was declared a separate township, to be known as Madison, which at the annual election of said year cast seventeen votes, and only nineteen votes in 1811.

On January 7, 1812, the county commissioners divided Madison township and established Greene township, which at the annual election of this year cast forty-one votes. March 14, 1812, the court of common pleas ordered three justices of the peace be elected in Greene township. By act of the Ohio Legislature, passed January 7, 1813, Richland county was organized. In April, 1809, Mansfield was established as the county seat of Richland county.

ORGANIZATION OF MORROW COUNTY.

Knox county in 1848 contributed the three townships, Chester, Bloomfield and Franklin, toward the creation of Morrow county. Chester was organized in 1812; Bloomfield in 1817; Franklin in 1823. By the cutting off of Knox of these three important townships, the population was greatly diminished to the extent of almost four thousand people, and it also marred the shape of the territory.

A branch of Owl creek passes through Chester township, and Chesterville is its chief town. Its population in 1830 was 778; 1840, 1,297; 1850, 1,620. Enos Miles was the proprietor of Chesterville, situated on the road from Mt. Vernon to Mt. Gilead. As early as 1830 the population of the town was 350. Evan Holt, a Revolutionary character, was among the old-time men of this place, having settled in Knox county in 1808.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP.

This, another one of the western townships of Knox county, was attached to Morrow in 1848. Its population in 1840 was 1,251; 1850, 1,395; street and South street, its Main street, First, Second, Third and Fourth streets, with one hundred and sixty lots, and then, taking his town plat in his pocket, walks to New Lancaster, being the first white person ever known to have made the journey in that direction from this infant settlement, and there, before Abraham Wright, a justice of the peace, acknowledges the important instrument, and on the 8th day of December, 1804, places it upon record. This was Samuel H. Smith, first surveyor of Knox county, for many years a resident, its leading business man and largest landholder.

"Shortly afterwards a large accession was made to the population of the county by the emigration from Ten Mile, Washington county, Pennsylvania, of John Mills, Henry Haines, Ebenezer and Abner Brown, and Peter Baxter. These all settled a short distance south of Owl creek. This settlement, increased by the Leonards, was in 1805-6 the largest and best community in the county, and upon its organization and for several years thereafter, it furnished the leading men.

"Benjamin Butler, Peter Coyles and Thomas Bell Patterson, in the spring of 1805, augmented the Walker settlement, where Mount Vernon was soon located. William Douglass was soon joined by James Loveridge, who pulled from far away Morris county, New Jersey, and with his good wife takes quarters July 6th upon the clapboards in the garret of his little log cabin where he lived the first year. The next year Loveridge goes off on the pretext of hunting a lost cow, and goes to the land office, and enters and pays for the tract of land, where he soon erects a dwelling and resides for many years. Upon this land was an uncommonly good spring, which caused him to select it. Smith, the Yankee, claimed to have bought this land and was offering to sell it out, but Loveridge went to the records at the land office and found it had not yet been taken, and upon his return home with his patent, Bill Douglass laughed heartily at the Jersey Blue over-reaching the cunning Yankee Smith. In 1805 this settlement was made up of Douglass, Loveridge, Smith and Watson. The old ax-maker, in the meantime, was followed by some of his relations and friends who established what has ever since been styled the 'Jersey Settlement.' Jacob Young, Abraham Lyon and Simeon Lyon are the first to settle upon the south fork of Owl creek, and are succeeded by Eliphalet Lewis, John Lewis and James Bryant. They found the Indians very numerous, and through the kind feelings toward the ax-maker, they were friendly, and really quite an advantage in ridding the county of wolves, bears and other animals."

North and west of the embryo settlements all was one vast wilderness for many long miles. Newark had been laid out by General Schenck, but it only contained about the same number of people that were to be counted in this section. The nearest mill in 1805 was at a point in Fairfield

These expeditions were made in the interest of the military authorities at Fort Pitt, both for the purpose of obtaining information regarding the hostile Indians, and to chastise such small parties as might fall in their way.

About 1792 Brady with a party of scouts crossed the Ohio at Wheeling, and directed his course to the forks of the Muskingum (Coshocton), moving thence up the Walhonding and up the Kokosing or Owl creek, to the present site of Mount Vernon. From this point the party turned back, going over to the headwaters of the North fork of Licking and down that stream to its junction with the South fork at Newark; thence they continued down the Licking and Muskingum to Marietta.

Shortly after the treaty at Greenville (1795) rumors of peace reached Wheeling, and to ascertain their truth, the commandant of that post dispatched six men of Brady's scouts in the direction of Sandusky. One of the Wetzels was in this party. They crossed the Muskingum at Dresden, came across to the Licking, up that stream to the present site of Newark, where they turned north along the North fork, and passed over onto Owl creek. After going a short distance beyond the present site of Mount Vernon, they became satisfied that Indians were watching them with hostile intent, and turned back. Following the route they came, they encamped one night in the eastern edge of Licking county, where they were fired upon in the night and one of the party killed. They thereupon scattered and made their way separately to Wheeling.

It is believed that many other white people passed through the county before any one came to settle permanently. In the treaty which General Boquet made with the Indians at the forks of the Muskingum, in 1764, two hundred and six white captives were given up to him by the Indians. A large number of these captives were among the Wyandots and other tribes in the western and northwestern parts of what is now the State of Ohio, and there is little doubt that a number of these passed along the Indian trail, which followed the Walhonding and Kokosing rivers, from the towns on the Muskingum to those on the Sandusky plains, both while they were being carried into captivity and while on the return journey to be delivered to Boquet.

The renegade Simon Girty and probably his brothers, as well as the notorious British agents, Elliott and McKee, were without doubt through this territory many times while making journeys to and from the eastern part of the State and Fort Pitt. Girty was born about 1745, and was consequently in the prime of life during the half century prior to the first settlement of this part of Ohio. No doubt also the Wetzels, Brady, McCulloch and other scouts and spies, were many times through this territory in the prosecution of their business. This territory was also an excellent hunting ground and much used for that purpose by the Indians at Greentown, among whom were white renegades as early as 1785, who no doubt often accompanied the Indians on their hunting and trapping expeditions to the beautiful valley of the Kokosing.

Just prior to the first settlement of the county Andy Craig seems to have located temporarily on Owl creek, and William Leonard in company with a party of scouts came into this territory as early as 1799. Leonard purchased some land on Owl creek and returned with his family and became a permanent settler some years later.

SETTLEMENT AND GENERAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE COUNTY.

Young—First Settlers and Settlements—The Quakers—First Roads—Transportation—The Products of the County—Mills—The Act Creating Knox County—First Elections—Division into Four Townships—Items from the Commissioners' Record—Seeley Simpkins Race.

KNOX county occupies a position near the geographical centre of one of the greatest States in the Union, and contains three hundred and twenty-four thousand four hundred and four acres of land, of which about two hundred and sixty-five thousand are cultivated or cultivable, fifty-four thousand in timber, and a little more than five maker," who came in 1803, soon after Andy Craig, and following up Owl creek, some ten miles beyond Craig's cabin, settled on a branch of that stream, in what is now Wayne township. This settlement, subsequently known as the "Jersey settlement" receives attention in the chapter on Wayne township.

Regarding the first settlements in this county, Mr. Norton thus writes:

> After many years of solitary residence on the beautiful Kokosing, the solitude of Craig's retreat is broken by the entrance of a lone Jerseyman, who, in the spring of 1803, penetrates some ten miles further into the wilderness, so as not, by too close proximity, to annoy each other, and there raises a little log cabin and settles down. This follower of the trade of Vulcan soon gets in readiness to blow and strike, and sets about supplying the sons of the forest with the first axes they had ever seen, and by making for them tomahawks, scalping knives, etc., he acquires the sobriquet of the "axe-maker," which for more than half a century has attached to Nathaniel Mitchell Young.
> A year passes by before any white accession is made to society on Owl creek. Then a stalwart backwoodsman breaks the silence by the crack of his rifle, and at the spot where James S. Banning now lives, near Clinton, the pioneer, William Douglass, drives his stake.
> The skilful navigator plies his oar, and Robert Thompson ascends Owl creek to where Mt. Vernon now stands, and on the rich bottom land, about one mile west, commences another improvement. George Dial, of Hampshire county, Virginia, in another pirogue comes up the creek, and, pleased with the beautiful country about where Gambier now flourishes, pitches his tent at the place now occupied by John Troutman. Old Captain Joseph Walker, from Pennsylvania, settles on the bank of the creek where Mt. Vernon now is. John Simpkins, from Virginia, with his son, Seeley, for capital, located about a mile above Douglass, where George Cassel's beautiful farm now exists. While these plain men from Virginia, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania are preparing their cabins for occupation, and making a little clearing, a stray Yankee, solitary and alone, with a speculative eye and money-making disposition, is, with pocket compass, taking his bearings through the forest, soliloquizing about the chance of making a fortune by laying out a town and selling lots to those who may come after him into this charming new country. Having, as he thought, found the exact spot for his future operations, he blazes a tree, and wends his way to the nearest town—Franklinton—west of the Scioto, then a place of magnificent pretensions, where he gets chain, compass, and paper, and returns and lays out the town of Clinton, in section number four, township seven, range four, United States Military district, with its large "public green," its North street and South street, its Main street, First, Second, Third, and Fourth streets, and one hundred and sixty lots, and, taking his town plat in his pocket, he walks to New Lancaster, being the first white person ever known to have made a journey in that direction from this infant settlement, and before Abraham Wright, justice of the peace, acknowledges the important instrument, and on the eighth of December, 1804, places it upon record. Thus Samuel H. Smith, subsequently the first surveyor of Knox county, for many years a resident, its leading business man, and largest landholder, made his entrance into this district.
> Shortly afterwards a large accession was made to the population of the county by the emigration from Ten Mile, Washington county, Pennsylvania, of John Mills, Henry Haines, Ebenezer and Abner Brown, and Peter Baxter, who settled a short distance south of Owl creek, where the Beams, Merits and Lafevers have since lived. This settlement, by the increase of the Leonards, was in 1805-6 the largest and best community in the county, and upon the organization of the county, and for several years thereafter, it furnished the leading men. This settlement is referred to elsewhere.
> Benjamin Butler, Peter Coyles, and Thomas Bell Patterson, in the spring of 1805, augment the Walker settlement, where Mount Vernon was located shortly after. William Douglass is joined by James Loveridge, who emigrates from Morris county, New Jersey, and with his wife takes quarters on the sixth of July upon the clapboards in the garret of his little log cabin, and is mighty glad to get such a shelter as that to spend the year in. The next year Loveridge starts off, under pretense of hunting a cow, and goes to the land office and enters and pays for the tract of land, where shortly after he erected a dwelling, and has ever since resided. Upon this land there is an uncommon good spring, which caused him to select it, and he tells with much glee the circumstances under which he obtained it. The only Yankee then in the county claimed to have located it, and proposed to sell it to him at a higher price than the Government rate, which was then two dollars per acre. Concealing his intention from all but his wife, Loveridge slipped off and examined into and purchased it himself from the Government, and when he returned with his patent, Bill Douglass laughed heartily at the Jersey Blue overreaching the cunning Yankee. Amariah Watson, of Wyoming county, Pennsylvania, also put up with Douglass, and thus this settlement was made up of Douglass, Smith, Watson and Loveridge, in 1805. The old axe-maker, in the meantime, is followed np by some of his relations and friends, who start what has ever since been known as the Jersey settlement. Jacob Young, Abraham Lyon and Simeon Lyon are the first to settle upon the South fork of Owl creek, and are succeeded by Eliphalet Lewis, John Lewis, and James Bryant. The Indians they found very numerous. and through the kind feelings towards the old axe-maker, they were very friendly, and really quite an advantage in ridding the country of wolves, bears, and other varmints.
> In the winter of 1805-6 that settlement entered into a written agreement to give nine bushels of corn for each wolf scalp that might be taken; and three of the men caught forty-one wolves in steel traps and pens! The description of these pens, and one of the stories told of their operation, we give in the words of an old settler: 'Wolf pens were about six feet long, four feet wide, and three feet high, formed like a huge square box, of small logs, and floored with puncheons. The lid, also of puncheons, was very heavy, and moved by an axle at one end, made of a small, round stick. The trap was set by a figure 4, with any kind of meat except that of wolf's, the animals being fonder of any other than their own. On gnawing the meat, the lid fell and caught the unamiable native. To make sport for the dogs, the legs of the wolf were pulled through the crevices between the logs, hamstrung, and then he was let loose, when the dogs soon caught and finished him. In Delaware county an old man went into a wolf trap to fix the spring, when it sprung upon him, knocking him flat upon his face, and securely caught contribute not a little to swell the manufacturing business of Mt. Vernon, among which may be mentioned the pump factory of H. K. Cotton. The "Collins force pump" is meeting with an extensive sale. There are also several cigar factories, among them being those of C. F. Brent, a wholesale establishment: T. P. Fredericks, jr., established in the Kremlin block in 1877, and R. A. Kendrick, west side of South Main street. These establishments employ quite a number of workmen.

The Cleveland, Mt. Vernon and Columbus railroad, considerably augmented the manufacturing as well as other business of Mt. Vernon, and at the present date the entire business of this pleasant little city is in a healthy condition, and the city itself seems to be moving forward.

The population, according to the census of 1870, was four thousand eight hundred and seventy-six. By the census of 1880, the population by wards was as follows: First ward, one thousand and fifty-one; Second ward, six hundred and thirty-four; Third ward, nine hundred and sixty-seven; Fourth ward, nine hundred and thirteen, and Fifth ward, one thousand six hundred and eighty-four—total, five thousand two hundred and forty-nine.

Following is the list of residents of Mt. Vernon who are eighty years of age or over. The first column is the year in which they were born. Their ages added make four thousand two hundred and sixty, and their average age is eighty-three and two third years:

CHAPTER XLIII.

MOUNT VERNON—CONCLUDED.

THE CITY CHURCHES—THE PRESBYTERIAN—METHODIST EPISCOPAL—METHODIST PROTESTANT—FIRST BAPTIST—ST. PAUL EPISCOPAL—ST. VINCENT DEPAUL—CONGREGATIONAL—DISCIPLE—LUTHERAN—UNITED PRESBYTERIAN—AFRICAN METHODIST.

IN THE summer and autumn of 1799 a company, consisting of nine or ten families living in Green county, Pennsylvania, concluded to form themselves into a colony for the purpose of emigrating to the territory of Ohio, of which Knox county now forms a part. The patriarch, or the oldest man of the colony, was William Leonard, then in his eighty-third or eighty-fourth year. Previous to the time, when on an exploring expedition looking for land, in company with one or two others, he met with some men, owners of large tracts of military lands in this State, who conducted him to the place where Mt. Vernon now stands, then an unbroken wilderness, and showed him a tract of eight hundred and forty-seven acres one mile south of Mt. Vernon, on the Newark road, which he bought, paying for the same one dollar and fifty cents per acre. He then returned to Pennsylvania to make arrangements for removal. These, for some reason, were not completed until about 1804, when the following persons started for their wilderness home: William Leonard and his oldest son, Amos Leonard; John Mills and family, Henry Haines and family, Ebenezer Brown and family, William Knight, Ziba Leonard, sr., and his son Benjamin, and Peter Baxter.

They arrived here about the first of May, 1804, and commenced at once to improve the land above referred to. After the spring crop had been planted, and the cabins and shanties erected, a few of the emigrants went back to Pennsylvania to aid in removing the remainder of the colony. On the fourteenth day of November of the same year, they returned, bringing with them the family of Peter Baxter, Levi Harrod and family, and the family of William Knight. On the day of their arrival a daughter of Peter Baxter died, having been taken sick on the journey. She was the first white person known to have been buried in the county. With two or three exceptions the members of this colony were professors of religion. Those belonging to the Presbyterian church were William Leonard, Amos Leonard, Ziba Leonard, sr., Ebenezer Brown, Rachel Mills, wife of John Mills; and Mary Knight, wife of William Knight.

The history of Presbyterianism in this region probably begins with these settlers, they being the first of that denomination in the county. Although the Methodist and Baptist denominations had a few representatives in the colony, there was no sectarian feeling among them. By mutual agreement they were accustomed from the first to meet together for prayer and conference on the Sabbath and Thursday evenings at Ziba Leonard's, his home being the largest and most central. Their weekly meetings were somewhat peculiar, but very interesting. They were attended by the principal part of the colony. The religious services were followed by a supper, which was partaken of by all present.

Early in the spring the little colony was re-enforced by the addition of the families of Abner Brown, sr., and Abner Brown, jr., from Green county, Pennsylvania, and of John and Jacob Cook, from Washington county. They were, however, without a minister of the gospel. There was not one living near enough to afford them even occasional preaching. This, of course, detracted much from their spiritual comfort, as well as subjected them sometimes to great inconvenience, as is evident from the following incident: During the summer (probably 1805) two young men, Daniel Dimick and Amoriah Watson, millwrights by trade, came into the neighborhood, and entered into a contract with William Douglass, who had some time previous to this joined the colony, to build him a mill. They were here but a short time until they succeeded in forming a contract of a more tender and serious nature—that of marriage—with two daughters of Ziba Leonard. The day for the solemnization of the marriage was fixed, and every preparation made, when on the evening before the day of the nuptials, it was discovered that there was no one who was properly authorized to solemnize marriages nearer than the town of New Lancaster, fifty miles distant, and reached only by a bridle path through the forest. The wedding of course could not be deferred. The proper official must be had, even if he should come from New Lancaster. Accordingly two men, Peter Baxter and Henry Haines, set out that very evening for that place. After riding all that night and all the next day, they returned about midnight of the second day with the necessary papers, a justice of the peace and his constable, and immediately upon their arrival the marriage ceremony was performed in the presence of the waiting assembly, which consisted of nearly all the settlers, together with a number of Indians.

In the spring of 1805, the patriarch of the colony, William Leonard, who had been its religious leader, died, in his eighty-seventh or eighty-eighth year. He was a good man, and his loss was deeply felt. He was buried on his own land under the shade of a wide-spreading beech.

His son, Amos Leonard, by common consent, became the leading person in the ecclesiastical affairs of the settlement. He was a very worthy, consistent man, and was for many years of great spiritual service to the people.

left his home once more. Word was brought to town that Hains was missing, and fears entertained that he had made away with himself. It was on Sunday, and nearly all the population of the village turned out to scour the woods adjacent to his farm. It was not until late in the afternoon that he was found, suspended from the limb of a small tree, about a quarter of a mile south of his residence on the Merritt farm. Thomas Kerr, now of Liberty township, was one of the searchers, and has a vivid recollection of the occurrence.

Robert Thompson, from Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, ascended Owl creek in 1804, and selected a site for a farm two miles west of the public square in Mt. Vernon, now on the old Delaware road and occupied by Morgan F. and Gilman B. Stilley. Mr. Thompson was a surveyor, and was in July, 1805, employed by Butler, Patterson & Walker to survey the new town of Mt. Vernon. He spent the greater part of life on his farm, and he and his wife now sleep together on a little knoll east of the old homestead.

Moses Craig married a daughter of Robert Thompson and came to Knox county at the same time.

John Mills was one of the parties who emigrated from Ten Mile, in Washington county, Pennsylvania, to the Harris settlement south of Mt. Vernon, in 1804.

On the fourteenth of February, 1808, the general assembly of Ohio by joint ballot appointed William W. Farquhar, John Mills and William Gass, associate judges for Knox county, and on the twenty-eighth of March of the same year, the commissioners appointed to locate the seat of justice for Knox county appeared before John Mills, justice of the peace, and were qualified to perform their duties. Mr. Mills held the office of associate judge until May 9, 1814, when he was succeeded by Samuel Kratzer.

Peter Baxter was one of the original settlers in the Haines' settlement, and was a member of the first jury impanelled in the county—the jury that convicted William Hedrick, who was publicly whipped for stealing. Isaac Bonnett came to Clinton township in 1805, located north of the old Delaware road and built the first brick house in the township, now occupied by Albert Sharp.

About 1805 or before, the Haines settlement was augmented by the arrival of the Leonard family, and the last will and testament of William Leonard was the first instrument of that kind admitted to probate in the courts of Knox county.

Matthew Merritt came from Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1806, and located on the land now occupied by Hon. Columbus Delano. Mr. Merritt was foreman of the first grand jury impanelled in Knox county, March 29, 1808, and in October of the same year he was elected county commissioner, for two years. Mr. Merritt was also elected justice of the peace for Clinton township in 1809.

The Beams, Lafevers, Walkers and others were also early settlers of Clinton township, but as their history is more closely identified with that of Mt. Vernon, it will be found in that connection.

Ebenezer and Abner Brown came from Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1804, and located in the Haines settlement. Here they erected the first grist-mill in Knox county. It was a very primitive structure, and while it bore no outward resemblance to Solomon's temple, it was yet constructed "without the sound of the hammer upon iron." It was built entirely of wood; a sugar-trough sufficed for a meal-box, and for want of iron the stones, which were about two feet in diameter, were hooped with slippery elm bark. It was propelled by water, and cracked corn very well when copious rains furnished sufficient motive power. The building was about ten feet square, constructed of rough logs, and was located on Delano's run, above the Martinsburgh road. It was principally fed at that time by what was called the Little Lake, but the lake, like the mill, is a thing of the past, having been so drained and altered by ditching as to no longer be entitled to that appellation. This mill, although of the rudest possible construction, was sufficient to "amaze the gazing rustics round" with its wonderful mechanical perfection. The stones are still relics of "ye olden time."

About the year 1815 a man named Wolgamott owned a small saw-mill on Delano's run, just below where the Martinsburgh road crosses the same. Later Walter Turner built a saw-mill on Owl creek, above the mouth of Center run, and James Newell erected one on Armstrong's run.

Simon Leedy was married to Elizabeth Martin, of Richland county. They reside in Cedar county, Missouri, post office, Monta Valla, Vernon county, Missouri.

Isaac Leedy was married to Mary Wole. They reside in Vernon county, Monta Valla post office, Missouri.

Elizabeth Leedy was married to Noah F. Cripe. They reside in Vernon county, Missouri.

Elijah was married to Araminta Tenser. They reside in Missouri.

Rufus was married to Ida Belle Grubb. He resides on the home place.

Ezra L. was married to Ann McLaughlin, of Richland county.

Susannah Leedy married Isaac Shenabargar. They reside in Ankneytown.

LEEDY, DAVID A., Pike township, farmer, post office, North Liberty, born in Bedford county, Pennsylvania, November 23, 1821, came to Ohio with his parents when eight years old, and located in Knox county. In 1847 he was married to Susannah Grubb, who was born in Bedford county, Pennsylvania, in 1827. They had the following children: Daniel, born December 4, 1849; an infant daughter (deceased); Mary A., born July 22, 1853; Elizabeth, March 26, 1857; Martha, August 24, 1868; and Charles M., April 18, 1873. Daniel Leedy died December 9, 1870. Mr. Leedy owns an improved farm with good buildings, located near North Liberty. He is a model farmer, and has assisted in improving and raising this county to its present standard, both socially and religiously. He has been a member of the German Baptist church for twenty-two years, being a member of the congregation that worships in the Berlin chapel.

LEMLEY, WILLIAM (deceased), Pike township, born in Richland county in 1848, and was married in 1867, to Mary Ellen Simpkins, who was born in Monroe township in 1851. They have three children—Clara J., born in 1868; James G., born in 1871; and William A., born in 1872. William Lemley was one of the victims of the sad collision that occurred in Richland county during the State fair at Mansfield in 1872. He was wounded on Thursday and died on Saturday. This was a sad bereavement to the family. After the death of her husband Mrs. Lemley moved to North Liberty, where she still lives.

LEONARD, ZIBA, Clay township, retired. He was born August 28, 1798, in Greene county, Pennsylvania, and removed to Clinton township in 1803, arriving November 14th. He came with the Pennsylvania colony, who setttled in what is known as then Ten Mile Settlement. The names of his companions will be found elsewhere in this work. At his advent into Knox county, Mr. Leonard was but a few months past his fifth birthday. He is one of the few now living who came into the county as early as 1803. His mind is strong and active, and his memory is well stored with reminiscences of the almost forgotten past.

In 1796 William Leonard, grandfather of Ziba, came out from Pennsylvania, and bought a large tract of land south of Mt. Vernon. The farm of Hon. Columbus Delano lies in the northeast corner of the tract. Mr. William Leonard afterwards gave the land to his children.

Mr. Leonard's father was a frequent sufferer on account of the depredations committed on his flock of sheep by wild animals; sometimes the wolves would come under the house and help themselves to the best of the flock. For about two years all the meat used in the Leonard family was procured in the forest; but as game was so abundant, it was no trouble to obtain a sufficiency for the family larder. One of Mr. Leonard's brothers shot three deer without moving out of his tracks.

The nearest mill was at Zanesville, and until a hand-mill was procured, all the corn necessary for the family use had to be taken there to be ground.

The first wedding in Knox county was that of Mr. Leonard's sisters, in the winter of 1804—Amariah Watson and Sarah Leonard, and Daniel Dimmock and Rachel Leonard. The parties were united at the same time. A justice of the peace from Lancaster, Fairfield county, performed the ceremony, there being no justice or minister nearer than that place.

The first death of any white person in Knox county occurred the next day after the arrival of the Leonard family, November 15, 1803, being a little daughter of Mr. Ziba Leonard's sister, Nancy Baxter, aged about eighteen months. The second death occurred in the spring of 1805, being that of Mr. William Leonard, grandfather of Ziba, and called the patriarch of the colony.

For several years after the settlement of fhe Leonard family in Knox county, on each returning winter, a tribe of Delaware Indians camped on Mr. Leonard's farm

For some months there was no preaching in the neighborhood; but on each Sabbath day and Thursday nights, prayer-meetings were held at his father's house.

The first sermon ever delivered in Knox county was preached at the house of his father by the Rev. James Scott, a Presbyterian minister, about the year 1804.

Mr. Ziba Leonard was married in 181[illegible] to Mrs. Jane Beam. Five children were born to them, viz; Eleazer, Amos, Benoni, Malvina, and Martha—all alive except Benoni and Martha.

Mr. Leonard served several years as captain of the militia, and was also justice of the peace, constable, and township clerk of Morgan township several years. He moved into Clay township in 1831. Mr. Leonard has been a farmer and carpenter, working some forty years at the latter trade, having built nearly all the dwelling houses and other buildings in the village of Martinsburgh.

Mr. Leonard was originally a Jackson Democrat, afterwards Whig, then Abolitionist, and then a Republican, having acted with the latter party ever since its organization, until the past two years, when he has acted with the Prohibition party. Although Mr. Leonard drank of the first whiskey ever distilled in Knox county, he is an ardent temperance man, and firmly believes that no one that drinks whiskey, or chews tobacco will ever be admitted to heaven.

He has been a member of the Presbyterian church in Martinsburgh over fifty years, and is a firm believer in "the Westminster confession of faith." He has been sexton of the Presbyterian church many years; has attended over five hundred funerals in Martinsburgh, and has been noted for his acts of charity to the sick and afflicted.

Mr. Leonard has often seen the eccentric Johnny Appleseed, and on being shown a picture of him, given in this history, recognized it immediately as being a very accurate likeness.

Mr. Leonard had some very bitter experience in connection with the failure of the celebrated Owl Creek bank, of Mt. Vernon. His father, who died in 1814, had willed him one hundred acres of valuable land lying north of the village of Lexington, Richland county. This land was lost to him by the failure the bank. He has also lost several thousand dollars by going security for persons; yet, notwithstanding his much ill-luck, financially, he still has a competency.

Mr. Leonard remembers the first tree cut on the site of Mt. Vernon, and is well-informed relative to its first settlement. The first court was held in a small log cabin which stood exactly on the site of the soldiers' monument. He remembers well the Butlers, Walkers, Pattersons, Clicks, Wallaces, Pyles, Millers, et al., of the first settlers of the village.

Mr. Leonard taught the first school in Clay township, then called Morgan. The first school taught in Knox county was taught by his cousin, Silas Brown, in Clinton township.

For a few years Mr. Leonard was acquainted with every individual in Knox county.

LEONARD, E. B., Pike township, farmer, post office, Democracy; born in Morgan township in 1819. He was married in 1839 to Elizabeth Walker, who was born in Union county in 1820. They have three children, Ziba, born in 1840; Rebecca, in 1843; Elnora, in 1849. Mr. Leonard came to Pike township in 1838. He owns a well improved farm. He is a member of a pioneer family and is now numbered among the pioneers.

LEONARD, HANNIBAL B., Wayne township, farmer, post office, Fredericktown; born in Wayne township July 19, 1827, and was married April 11, 1849, to Catharine A. Boner, who was born in Morris township February 23, 1830. They havé the following children: John A., born May 14, 1850; Herman L., April 28, 1855; Mary Belle, February 20, 1860, and William L., October 23, 1864. Mary Belle died April 4, 1865. His father, Byram Leonard, was born in New York April 12, 1798. He removed from New York to Knox county in 1819, and was married to Abigail Lewis, who was born in New Jersey April 11, 1801. They had the following children: William L., born October 6, 1823; John, August 20, 1825; Hannibal B., June 19, 1827; Mary S., July 23, 1829; Elizabeth, August 26, 1831, and Elleanor, March 21, 1834. Mrs. Abigail Leonard died October 15, 1858. Mr. Byram Leonard died December 27, 1851. Elleanor is also dead. William L. was married to Elizabeth Young, and resides at Winterset, Madison county, Iowa. John married Minerva Best, and lives in the same place. Mary S. was married to Israel W. Moody, who also resides in said place. Elizabeth was married to David B. Thrift and resides in Iowa.

Byram Leonard joined the Baptist church in 1841. He was vice-president of the Ohio Baptist convention five years, and filled the office with credit to himself and with entire satisfaction to his brethren. He was elected a member of the Legislature, and was also warden of the Ohio penitentiary.

LEPLEY, GEORGE, Harrison township, pioneer and farmer, post office Millwood, was born in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, August, 1791, a son of Adam and Barbara Lepley, came with his parents to Knox county in 1807, locating on Brush run, now Butler township, where they set about to clear the land and raise grain, which they continued for many years.

The subject of this sketch was considered a great hunter in his day, having killed two hundred deer that he secured, also seven bears, five wolves, and a large number of turkeys. He asserted that he killed two deerat one shot with a single ball whlle they were running, also at one time three turkeys with one shot, The subject of this sketch was at Mansfield as a soldier to protect the white settlers against the Indians, and assisted in moving the Indians from Greentown, which was situated on the Black fork of the Mohican, about four miles north of Perryville, within the present county of Ashland, to a point in the present county of Miami, which occupied his time about three months. He then resumed his old business of clearing land and farming. Some time after he came home he and his brother Joseph entered one hundred and sixty acres of land in what is now Harrison township.

Mr. Lepley became the owner of over seven hundred acres of land, which he divided among his children. On October 6, 1816, he married Barbara Baughman, a daughter of Christian and Mary Baughman, born November 27, 1792. Eight children were born to them, as follows: David, Daniel, James, Mary M., Louis, Martin, Simon, Colvin. Mary M., Martin, Simon, and Colvin are the only ones now living.

LEPLEY, JACOB, deceased, born in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, in 1804, was brought to Ohio by his parents at an early day, locating on Brush run, now Butler township, where they remained a few years; his father then entered a farm of one hundred and sixty acres in Harrison township, where he moved with his family, where the subject of this sketch was reared and received his education. Mr. Lepley was considered one among the pioneer farmers.

In October, 1833, at the age of twenty-eight or thirty years, he married Delilah Eley, a daughter of Michael Eley, who was, born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, November 20, 1814. After living for some years on the farm entered by his father, he became the owner of it, and henceforth lived upon it until his death, which occurred May 8, 1864, in his sixty-second year. Mrs. Lepley survives him in her sixty-seventh year. They became the parents of ten children, as follows: Daniel Lepley, born June 4, 1835; Noah, born March 30, 1837, died October 18, 1838; Sarah A., born July 31, 1839, died December 18 1862, aged twenty-three years four months and eighteen days; Catharine, born January 6, 1842, died November 31, 1848, aged six years ten months and twenty-five days; Francis M., born May 16, 1844; Mary E., born August 2, 1846; Angeline, September 21, 1848; Martha E., November 21, 1850; Eley C., June 20, 1853, died October 3, 1865, aged twelve years three months and thirteen days; Almeda J. February 21, 1856; six of the foregoing children are still living.

LEPLEY, JOSEPH (deceased), was born in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, November 26, 1812, and emigrated to Ohio when a young man, locating in Butler township, where he resided until his death, January 10, 1878. He was married three times—to Catharine Korns, November 26, 1832; to Delilah Beal, May 29, 1836; and to Lydia Mossholder, February 28, 1846. He was the father of eleven children, viz; Joseph R., Elizabeth, Michael, Alonzo, Alpheus, Aaron, Hannah, Malona, Lloyd, Rhodinia, and Thaddeus, all of whom are living except Michael, who died at Chattanooga, Tennessee, April 23, 1864.

LETTS, JACKSON (deceased), farmer, was born in Morgan township August 16, 1828. His parents were natives of Pennsylvania, and early settlers of Morgan township. There were ten children in the family, three of whom are yet living. The subject of this notice spent his early life on the farm and attending school. After the death of his parents Mr. Letts purchased the interest of the heirs in the homestead, and, by judicious management, was enabled to pay for the farm in a few years. He subsequently purchased adjoining land, and became one of the leading farmers. He improved the homestead by building a substantial dwelling and made many other improvements on the farm. and that she has reasonable good health up to this time, with a prospect of ending her days peacefully and happily.

"With my best wishes for your prosperity and happiness, and for many returns of these pleasant reunions, I remain yours with respect,

HENRY OSBORN.

"YOUNGSTOWN, September 10, 1875."

THE FIRST SETTLERS OF ELLSWORTH.

"In 1799 Richard Fitch came from Salisbury, Conn., to the Connecticut Western Reserve, and spent a portion of that Summer on the borders of Lake Erie, and returned to Connecticut the same year without purchasing any land. In 1803 Joseph Coit came from Norwich, Conn., in company with General Moses Cleveland, and staid a while at Cleveland, and then made his way to Ellsworth, and purchased eighty acres of land on the south-west corner of the center of the township. The next year, 1804, he had eight acres of the land cleared, and a log-house erected—the first house raised in the township.

"In 1805 Wm. Ripley, Hervey Ripley, Elisha Palmer, and one or two others from Scotland, Windham County, Conn., came to Ellsworth and commenced clearing and improving the land west of the center section, which they had previously purchased.

"In the Spring of 1806 Wm. Ripley moved, with his wife, to Ellsworth. In the Spring and Summer of 1806 came Daniel Fitch and wife from Norwalk, Connecticut, and the same season, from Salisbury, Connecticut, came Richard Fitch and his two brothers, Charles and William, with their families, consisting of a wife and one or two small children each, all of whom settled near the center of the township.

"The same year, 1806, Thomas Jones and Hugh Smith, with their families, from Maryland, settled in the east part of the township. The same year, Philip Borts and Philip Arner, with their families, from Pennsylvania, settled on land east of the Meander, on the road leading to Canfield; and John Leonard, from Pennsylvania, with his family, near the Meander, north-east of the center. It is thought no other families settled in the township this year.

"These heads of families all lived and died in Ellsworth, with the exception of Wm. Fitch and wife, Charles Fitch and wife, and Mrs. Hugh Smith. Wm. Fitch is now living in Wayne, Ashtabula County, aged ninety-three years, and is hale and hearty.

Allen County Public Library

FROM THE PRESIDENT

On March 18 we visited the Portage County Historical Society and were amazed at the amount of genealogical material available. We found original tax records, naturalization papers, collections of old newspaper obits, original wills and probates, and lots of family bibles. It has become a repository for original courthouse records that have been put on microfilm. The Society is open Tuesday and Thursday 2:00-4:00 and during the summer, Sundays, 2:00-4:00. Not extensive hours, but they will answer queries. There is a minimum charge of $5.00 per hour, plus $.25 per page for materials copied. For those of you who are out of state the address is as follows: The Portage County Historical Society, 6549 Chestnut Street, Ravenna, OH 44266.

One of our guests is a clerk in the Portage County Probate Court. She answers queries on marriages, births, deaths, estates, some naturalizations (male only), and guardianships. Copies are $1.00 per page or $2.00 per page for certified copies. Write explaining what you want and send SASE. She will send you the cost before doing any work. We are not endorsing either of these services, but are including them as a resource for our out-of-state members. Write to: The Portage County Probate Court, c/o Mary Ellen Moore, 203 West Main Street, Third Floor, 301, Ravenna, OH 44266. The court house is open Monday - Friday, 8-4 in case you want to search in person. The phone number is 297-3870.

I got interested in naturalization papers and am including a few so that you can see what is in them.

ALLEN, Geo., filed 15 Feb., 1827, came from Antrim, arrived in US July, 1831.
ALLEN, Thomas, native of Gloucestershire, UK, arrived August, 1831, sworn to October 6, 1842.
ALLEN, James, native of Ireland, arrived Sept. 1817, sworn to 8 Jun, 1842.
ANDRUS, Peter, from Hesse, Damstadt on the Rhine in Germany. Is 25 years old and has been in the US 7 years. Was 18 when he came, sworn to 26 Sept, 1839.

Meeting Dates

Apr. 15 at 2:00 P.M. in Reed Memorial Library Annex - Nancy Hoyt will speak on Genealogy for Beginners.
May 20 at 2:00 P.M. at the Portage County Historical Society - Marilyn Kovatch, our OGS Representative will speak on OGS on the Move.
June 17 at 9:00 A.M. - Meet in Garrettsville Park Cemetery - We will read this cemetery weather permitting. Rain date the next Saturday.

THE PORTAGE PATH TO GENEALOGY is published by the Portage County Chapter, OGS, P. O. Box 821, Ravenna, Ohio, 44266, 8 times a year in January, February, March, April, May, September, October, and November. FROM THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

By Betty O'Neil

Paris Township

Elijah Hawley, farmer, P. O. Newton Falls, Trumbull Co., Ohio is the oldest living resident of Paris Township, this county, and was born near his present residence October 11, 1815; son of Chauncy and Mercy (Selby) Hawley, natives of Massachusetts, the former born March 24, 1780, the latter March 24, 1786. Chauncy Hawley was reared and educated in his native State, and there married May 27, 1808. He was a hatter by trade, at which he worked in connection with farming. In 1815 he with his family came to Paris Township, this county, where he resided till his death, which occurred June 17, 1846. His widow died June 18, 1875. Of their six children the following survive: Elijah; Eliza, widow of Joseph Brown; and Urania, wife of M. M. Seymour. Elijah Hawley left home when seventeen years of age and began working at the trade of cabinet-making, but gave it up after three months, and served an apprenticeship at carpentering, at which he worked many years. In 1842 he married Jane, daughter of Thomas and Anna (Sefton) Stewart, by whom he had six children, five now living: Henry, Miles, Charles, William and George. Our subject at his marriage had but little capital, and his first purchase of land was twelve acres, which he paid for by building a house for Stephen Bingham. The result of his industry is 380 acres of well-improved land. Mr. Hawley was successful in architecture and bridge building, and was the author of a design for a substantial wooden bridge. He has held several township offices; was first Assessor of Paris Township. In politics he is a Democrat.

John Leonard (deceased) was born in Mahoning County, Ohio, March 8,1815; son of George and Margaret (Hoffman) Leonard, natives of Pennsylvania and Virginia respectively. George Leonard, who was reared, educated and married in Washington County, Penn., was a farmer and also a carpenter and joiner. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. On coming to Ohio he first settled in Mahoning County, as did his parents. He then moved to Paris Township, this county, in 1832, and here died in the fall of 1843, aged fifty-five years. His widow died in Michigan in 1860, aged seventy-four years. Eight of their twelve children survive: Nancy, Henry, Catherine, Moses, Aaron, Joshua, Sarah and Hannah. Of these, Joshua and Aaron served through the late war of the Rebellion. John Leonard, the subject of this sketch, was married, September 1, 1835, to Fanny daughter of James and Susan (Shaffer) Patterson, natives of eastern Pennsylvania and early settlers of Trumbull County, Ohio. To this union was born one child - Lura L., who died in 1871, aged twenty years. Mr. Leonard died March 16, 1885, of heart disease. He was a consistent member of the Congregational Church at Newton Falls. He followed farming, and at his death was owner of 241 acres of good land. He filled several of the township offices of trust. - from HISTORY OF PORTAGE COUNTY now largely disappeared. The township has a plentiful supply of clear, pure water, there being many artesian wells and springs, and the water of Dry Run Creek, fed largely by artesian wells, being suitable for drinking purposes. The East End Park of Youngstown, which follows the course of this creek, overlaps the boundary line and has an entrance in the western part of this township. In recent years Coitsville has become a favorite residence suburb for Youngstown people, which has had a tendency to advance the price of real estate here, and indicates that the future prosperity of the township is to be found chiefly in enhancing its natural beauty and attractiveness, rather than in seeking to become a rival of Youngstown as a place of business and manufactures.

ELLSWORTH TOWNSHIP

This township was settled mainly by people from Connecticut and Pennsylvania. The immigration commenced in 1804. Among the first comers was Captain Joseph Coit, who began making improvements in that year. The family of James Reed, it is said, was the first in the township. His daughter Polly, who married a Mr. Bowman and settled in Goshen township, where she was living in 1882, being then over ninety years of age, said that her father came to Ellsworth from Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1803, and remained during the summer. He made a clearing and raised a crop of corn that year, occupying a camp on the bank of Meander Creek. He had previously made several trips from his home in Pennsylvania to Canfield carrying supplies to the settlers on pack horses. In 1804 he brought his family, and erected a rude log structure for shelter, one side of which was open and used for an entrance. This was occupied until a more substantial house could be erected. Bears and deer were numerous, and the children sometimes found young fawns lying in the bushes near the house.

Mr. Reed resided in Ellsworth not much over a year, selling his farm and removing to Canfield township, where he died in 1813.

Several other settlements were made about the same time by men who remained but temporarily, soon removing to other localities. The second family to arrive in the township was that of Thomas Jones, of Maryland. He became a permanent settler, dying in Ellsworth in 1852, at the advanced age of ninety-two. His wife, whose maiden name was Sarah Wilson, survived her husband in longevity, dying in 1865 at the age of about ninety. They were the parents of fifteen children.

Philip Arner, from Pennsylvania, purchased land in Ellsworth in 1803 and built a cabin in 1803. In the following year he brought out his family and settled on land east of the Meander. Hugh Smith, of Maryland, who had made a previous visit, settled on the main branch of the Meander in 1806. He had a family of five sons and three daughters. He died suddenly about 1821.

In 1805 Elisha Palmer and William and Hervey Ripley, with several others, came from Windham County, Connecticut, and began improving land west of the center. William Ripley served as justice of the peace for many years, was a member of the legislature in 1826 or 1827, and was afterwards state senator. Richard Fitch was another early settler near the center. So was Andrew Fitch, who married Lucy Manning, and who when quite old returned to Connecticut. John Leonard and family settled near the Meander about 1806, but died at an early date; he left several children. James Parshall was an early settler in section twenty-four. James McGill and family in section twelve. David and Philo Spaulding came about 1813, David settling about a quarter of a mile west of the center, and Philo in the southwestern part of the township. The latter died in 1876 in his ninetieth year. Other early settlers were, John and Robert McCreary, who settled on section nineteen; Michael Crumrine; William Logan, the first cooper in the township, who died during the war of 1812; John Bingham, from New London County, Connecticut, who married a daughter of Richard Fitch;

7. 1790 CENSUS by townships

The returns for the 1790 federal census for Washington County (including present Greene) and southern Allegheny County were not made by townships. It is possible by a comparison with the 1793 county tax lists to approximate the township divisions for present Washington and Greene.

IX. WASHINGTON COUNTY

There are many records of Washington County available. A few are listed below. Data given generally refer to the county as it was in that year. From the original county came Greene and parts of Allegheny and Beaver. The vast resources of the Washington County courthouse and the Citizens Library (Washington) are outlined in X.

1. Estate Records 1781-1799

Before the formation of Washington County in 1781 the main sources for estates for the region are in Westmoreland County, Pa. (abstracts of wills in Vol. 6 Genealogical Society of Pa., 1915-17) and Yohogania County, Va. (summarized in Vol. 9, No. 3 The Virginia Genealogist, 1965). A few earlier records may be found at Wheeling, W. Va.; Morgantown, W. Va.; Bedford, Pa.; and Carlisle, Pa. Both Virginia and Pennsylvania claimed the region and established courts. Permanent settlements began about the year 1770.

Washington County in 1781 included all of Pennsylvania south of the Ohio and west of the Monongahela River - present Wasington and Greene Counties with parts of Allegheny and Beaver. The wills of Washington County 1781-1805 have been abstracted by Mary Ellison Wood (Vol. 6 Genealogical Society of Pa. - No. 2, Mar. 1916, pgs. 135-180). This reference should be consulted.

The present publication lists the wills, administration bonds, accounts and Orphans Court records for 1781-99. The wills contain much information not given here. The bonds were not available when the 1967 edition of this book was issued.

The data are presented in condensed form. A search of the original records will be helpful. Where minor children are named, there were likely older children, whose names were not given. If the person filing the accounts had the same surname, the given name is listed in parenthesis. Where given, the township of residence is listed after the name.

Y = mentioned in earlier Yohogania records
w = will on file, year of probate listed a = accounts filed, both wills and letters of administration OC = estate mentioned only in Orphans Court records minor ch = guardian listed for these children ch = children named in estate distribution or partition bound ch = child bound out, father dead bd = administration bond and letters granted
85 = 1785 (e.g.)

Virginia to give up finally all jurisdiction civil and military to all that tract of territory lying on the west side of the Laurel Hill and to the north of Mason and Dixon's Line (and formerly claimed by Virginia) that your excellency would issue your proclamation dissolving all commissions both civil and military within the said territory that your petitioners may certainly know to what government we belong, or revive your courts of justice and militia laws by filling up the vacant commissions both civil and military with such persons as are firmly attached to your government and to grant your petitioners such immediate relief towards the defense of our frontiers in their present deplorable situation as to your excellency shall seem meet and your petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray.

To his Excellency   Harris [sic], Governor of the State of Virginia.

We the petitioners inhabitants of that part of territory north of Masons and Dixons Line, and west of the Laurel Hill seem to be considered by Pennsylvania to be within their jurisdiction, and their civil authority, both by their courts of justice and militia laws, has been actually to a considerable distance extended over us, that have settled under the faith of Virginia, and they pretend it is by your consent and what is north of the line is given up to them, which we could not believe, because we have been so long under your jurisdiction, and have taken the oath to the state, and has had your civil authority extended amongst us and you have not by proclamation or otherwise given us public notice that you have cast us off and given us up to Pennsylvania. This makes us think that we are bound by our oath not to pay allegiance to any other state until we are discharged in a regular way from our former allegiance, for these reasons we have not submitted to their authority until the line is settled and actually run according to their charter. So your petitioners do humbly request the favor that in case you have given this part of territory up to them, you would please let us know by proclamation or otherwise and on what terms, to let us know to whom we do belong that we may not stand against their law, or impower us otherwise to act as usual, and furthermore Pennsylvania has passed an act of £300 penalty on any of

V. PETITIONS 1782

For a Fourteenth State

Southwestern Pennsylvania was claimed by both Pennsylvania and Virginia in the 1770s. The dispute was brought to a head by the establishment of courts by Pennsylvania in 1773 and by Virginia in 1775. To many of the inhabitants the formation of an entirely new western state was a possible solution to the problem. Accordingly a memorial was presented to Congress in July 1776 by the "inhabitants of the country west of the Allegheny Mountains". A complete copy is given by Boyd Crumrine in his History of Washington County, Pennsylvania (Philadelphia, 1882), page 187. No names of signatories are mentioned.

Crumrine also tells of a memorial sent to the Virginia House in the fall of 1776 opposing the formation of a new state. The Indian attacks on western Pennsylvania which began in 1777 likely pushed this matter into the background, although petitions may have continued to circulate.

In 1780 the subject was reopened when Congress discussed the possibility of setting up new states west of the mountains. In 1780, 1781 and 1782 signatures were collected, so that there were about 2000 names attached to the petition from the "inhabitants on the west side of Laurel Hill and Western Waters" which was presented to Congress on 27 Jan. 1783 (National Archives, PCC No. 48, folios 251-6, pp. 89-96).

A check of the 2000 names shows that they were principally from what are now Brooke, Ohio and Monongalia counties, West Virginia, and Washington, Greene and Fayette counties, Pennsylvania. The sheets on the original petition were cut. It is hard to tell if this was done before or after the names were written. Since they are all in the same hand, they are not original signatures. The spelling is often wrong. They may have been collected from a number of petitions or have been given orally by the individuals. There are known duplications. One name appears four times, fourteen appear three times, 142 appear twice. Some of these are not duplications; some represent two members of the same family. The names appear to be genuine. Many well-known persons are on the list.

The petition has never been published. It says in essence that the inhabitants have long labored under the most intolerable grievances from the unhappy dispute between Virginia and Pennsylvania with regard to the right of territory and jurisdiction. Both sides have claimed and exercised jurisdiction in courts of justice, militia laws and land affairs. The poor inhabitants after paying are uncertain as to their rights. They have contributed much to the infant settlement. They raised two regiments and several companies for continental service and have defended their own country from the savages, when the frontiers were defenseless and there was insufficient guard.

The petitioners point out that they protected Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia from the savages, and are now treated more like slaves than free men. The only effectual means appears to be to lay off a new state upon these western waters. This alone can unite the people. Congress has the power to do so. The people are a great distance from the seats of government, beyond an immense ridge of mountains. There is an Act of the Assembly of Pennsylvania which forbids the people to assemble or even mention a new state under penalty for treason. As free men and free citizens of America we have the right to petition your body.

HARRISBURG:
PRINTED BY THEO. FENN & CO.

Superintendants of Indian Affairs, and to leave the Management thereof to the Provinces concerned in said Trade, Sir William Johnson finds himself under the Necessity of discharging immediately the Commissaries, Interpreters, and Smiths appointed by him in the Posts and Forts in the interior Country.

"I take the Liberty to acquaint you of this Event, and hope you will be able, without Delay, to appoint Officers to succeed those dismissed by Sir William Johnson, that the Trade may not suffer through the Want of proper Persons to superintend it. Sir William Johnson can give the best Advice concerning the Instructions that should be given to said Officers, as well as concerning the Laws and Regulations necessary to be made for the better carrying on the Trade. I am only to desire to be informed when you shall have settled those Points, in what Shape I can be of use, that I may send Orders accordingly to the Commanders of the several Posts and Forts in the Indian Country to co-operate with your Officers, and give them Assistance in the Execution of their Instructions, whenever their Aid shall be required.

"If the Provinces will appoint Officers to superintend the Trade in such parts of the Indian Country where they appear from their Situations to enjoy the chief Benefit of the Trade, Pennsylvania will appoint at Fort Pitt and the Illinois, New York at Niagara and the Detroit, and Quebec at Misilimakanak; though the Province of Quebec would have only one Post to Superintend, yet the very great Concourse of Indians every Year at Misilimakanak, will make it much more expensive than any of the rest.

"I have the Honour to be with great Regard, Sir,

"Your most Obedient humble Servant,

"THOMAS GAGE."

The Matter contained in the above mentioned Letter being duly considered, the Board were of Opinion that the same should be recommended to the Assembly by a Message, and the Letter laid before the House. A Message was accordingly drawn and approved, and ordered to be carried with the Letter to the House to Morrow. The said Message is as follows, viz$^{t.}$:

A Message from the Governor to the Assembly.

"Gentlemen:

"You will perceive by a Letter I have received from General Gage, which I have ordered the Secretary to lay before you, that Sir William Johnson, in Obedience to His Majesty's Commands, is under a Necessity of discharging the Commissaries, Interpreters, and Smiths, appointed by him at the Posts in the Interior Country, where the Indian Trade is carried on, and that the General expects I shall be able, without Delay, to appoint Officers to succeed those at Fort Pitt and the Illinois. This, Gentlemen, cannot be done until Provision is made for adequate Salaries for those Officers; And as the Regulation of the Indian Trade is a Matter of public Concern, I doubt not but you will make the necessary Provisions for enabling me to answer the above Requisition.

"JOHN PENN.

"May the 16th, 1769."

Mr. Adam Hoops, of Bucks County, having been recommended as a proper Person to execute the Office of a Magistrate, The Governor, by the Advice of the Council, directed that a Commission be forthwith made out, appointing him a Justice of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace and of the County Court of Common Pleas for the said County of Bucks.

At a Council held at Philadelphia on Tuesday the 16th of May, 1769.

PRESENT:

The Honourable JOHN PENN, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor, &c.

Benjamin Chew, } Esquires.
James Tilghman, }

The Governor laid before the Board the following Letter which he received by Express from Charles Stewart, Esquire, dated the [illegible] Instant.

A Letter to the Governor from Charles Stewart, Esquire.

"Sir:

"This Afternoon about three o'Clock, one hundred and forty-six New England Men, and others, chiefly on Horseback, passed by our Houses, and are now encamped on the East Side of the River. Among them is Benj$^{n.}$ Shoemaker and John McDowell, with several of their Neighbours. I spoke to McDowell, who informs me that at least as many more are on their Way, and will be here to-Morrow. And I have other intelligence that they will in a few days be five hundred strong. If this be true, We can only Act defensively until reinforced. At present we are but Twenty-four Men.

"On my way up the River from Shamokin, on Wednesday Evening last, I was hailed by a Man at the Mouth of Fishing Creek, named James McClure, who told me He and four others, then at a Fire hard by, was an advanced Party of one hundred, going to join the New England Men, and that they would chiefly be from Lancaster County; that he would be at Wyoming as soon as Us, but he is not yet come.

From the View I had of those Gentry in their procession by our Houses, they appear to be at least an equal number of them of the very lowest Class, but are almost all armed and fit for Mischief.

"I am of Opinion, unless a Party of His Majesty's Forces are sent up to remove them, it will be difficult for the Sheriff to raise men enough in Northampton County to effect it, and every Day will add to their Strength, and give them more Spirits to persevere in Mischief.

On conversing with Captain Hunter, Doctor Plunket, and others, at Shamokin, they declared their willingness to come here if wanted, and bring a Party to assist us. Your Honour will consider whether this will be of Service. I think it would as least put a stop to the People coming from Lancaster County, &c$^{a.}$, to join the Yankys, and prevent their getting to the West Branch, which is their design as soon as they can establish a Possession here.

"I have enclosed a List of the Names of as many of them as I could possibly collect in so short a Time, those that are marked thus x are of the former Party. I shall be glad of Your Honour's speedy Instructions, and hope to be able to hold out until reinforced. I have wrote Messieurs Jennings and Gordon how we are circumstanced, but fancy Mr. Gordon is abroad at present, as he intended a Journey about this Time.

"I am Your Honour's most obedient,
"humble Servant,
"CHARLES STEWART,

"The Honourable John Penn, Esquire.
"Manor of Stoke, Friday May 12th, 1769."

The names following are those referred to in the above Letter:

Benj$^{n.}$ Shoemaker,
John McDowell,
Sam$^{l.}$ Weyburn,
John Lee,

The foregoing Letter being duly considered, the Governor, with the advice of the Board, thought proper to issue a Proclamation, forbidding all Persons whatsoever seating themselves on any Lands within this Province without the Express Permission of the Proprietaries of this Government, and commanding all those who have illegally taken possession of any Lands, and without permission as aforesaid, immediately to evacuate their Settlements without Delay.

A Letter was also drawn up at the Board, read and approved, which was ordered to be Transcribed and sent to John Jennings, Esquire, Sheriff of Northampton County, with a Copy of the Proclamation (under the Great Seal), by the return of the Express. Another Letter was also drawn up at the same Time, which, being read and approved, was ordered to be copied and sent to Charles Stewart, Esquire, by the same Conveyance; and a third Letter was prepared and dispatched by another Express to Colonel Francis, at the Forks of the Susquehanna. The said Letters and Proclamation follow in these Words, Viz$^{t.}$:

A Letter from the Governor to John Jennings, Esquire.

"Philadelphia, May 16th, 1769.

"Sir:

"I suppose Mr. Stewart has wrote you the bad State of our Affairs at Wyoming. You will receive herewith a Proclamation, with which I desire you will immediately proceed to Wyoming, with a few reputable people to accompany you, and there publish it to the Connecticut People, in a peaceable and quiet manner. If they should carry the Matter so far as to attempt removing our People by Force, their numbers, I am afraid, are too great to resist, and that they will be obliged to give way for the present, rather than run the hazard of shedding Blood without a probability of Success. I desire you will reduce all you know of the proceedings in the Affair from the begining to an affidavit, in drawing up which, I desire Mr. Stewart may assist, and you may make it before him. This will be necessary to send to England in order to institute a proceeding there against these rash intruders, and to lay before General Gage. I would have you and Mr. Stewart endeavour to penetrate as far as you can into their designs, how far they pretend a Right to the Southward, and what their Intentions are as to the West Branch, and that you will get as many of their Names as you can, especially of the Leaders, or most active amongst them.

"I am, with Regard,
"Your very humble Servant,
"JOHN PENN.

"To John Jennings, Esquire, Sheriff of Northampton County."

LOT LEONARD

Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission and the
Greene County Bicentennial Committee

Fayette and Washington Counties and performed this service in the aforesaid counties during which time they caught upwards of 100 Tories and lodged them in the Jails of the respective counties--That he was two months in this service. That the whole period of his service was eight months for which he claims a pension--That he has no documentary evidence of his service, never having received any written discharge. That he can prove one month of his service by William Gapin--that he cannot get a clergyman to certify him, none being convenient-------That Joab Baily Esqr and Major Lot Lantz will certify as to his reputation. That he was born in New Castle, Delaware in the year 1756--That he has record of his age in his Bible--That he resided in Washington County, Penna. (now Greene County) when he entered the service and has resided there ever since.

To the above record Abner Mundell affixed his signature and Joab Baily and Lot Lantz, citizens of Greene County and "nabours" of Abner Mundell, did appear and certify that they were well acquainted with him. They believed him to be seventy-six years of age and they stated that he was reputed and believed in the neighborhood where he resided to have been a soldier of the Revolution and they concurred in that opinion; also that he was a man of strictest veracity and truth. The court also concluded, after interrogations, that Abner Mundell was a Revolutionary Soldier and served as he stated; further they certified that Joab Baily and Lot Lantz were credible persons and their statements were entitled to credit. This was signed by Enos Hook, prothonotary, under date of 19 March 1834.

On 7 February 1834 William Gapen had appeared before Richard Kerwood, a Justice of the Peace for Greene County, and stated "That sometime during the Revolutionary War the deponent (Gapen) was attached to a volunteer company commanded by Captain John Huston of then county of Washington, now Greene, and that Abner Mundell of same county was likewise. They both marched with said Captain to Fort McIntosh on the west side of the river Ohio, with a view of going on a campaign after the Indians but owing to the troops appointed to rendezvous at Fort McIntosh not attending the said Captain Huston's Company was discharged--the length of time they were absent the deponent cannot positively saith but is confident it was not short of one month & further that we forted on the frontiers for the space of seven years." He signed his name to this affirmation. On the same day James Mundell appeared before Richard Kerwood and stated that he knew the said Abner Mundell and knew that he was drafted and served one month military duty completing the time drafted for at Jacksons Fort on Tenmile Creek, in 1782.

Abner Mundell was granted a pension for eight months service; the amount was $26.66 per annum, to commence 4 March 1834. This pension application also provides proof of revolutionary war service for William Gapen.

Abner Mundell was a son of James and Margaret (Garret) Mundell, who were received as members of the Goshen Baptist Church, at Garards Fort, Pennsylvania on 26 January 1776. In addition to Abner, they were the parents of James, John, Jonathan, Margaret Hart, Eleanor, Eli, Levi, Joseph and Andrew.

Abner Mundell married Mary Barnhill, on 9 April 1782. He was born 27 April 1758 and died 8 May 1845; Mary was born 17 April 1764 and died 30 May 1845. Both are buried in the Goshen Baptist Church Cemetery, Garards Fort, Pennsylvania. They were the parents of Margaret Morris, Jane Baily, Mary Lantz, John, James, Rebecca Hatfield, Nancy Cox, Samuel, Eleanor, Abner, Priscilla Tribby, Hugh and Joseph. Many descendants of this family are yet living in Greene County.

LOT LEONARD FACED DIFFICULTIES

by Dorothy T. Hennen

There was no question that Lot Leonard had served his country gallantly; however, technicalities prevented him from being pensioned under the regular provisions set by the various Acts of Congress. Therefore, a Special Act of Congress, Bill H. R. 452, passed 3-21-1836 made it possible for this man to receive his just rewards for his Revolutionary service.

In Greene County, Pennsylvania, in open court before the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, on the 16th day of September 1834, Rev. Lot Leonard, aged seventy-nine years on November next, resident of Greene County, duly sworn gave the following declaration in order to obtain the pension provided for by the Act of 7 June 1832;

"That about the first of June 1775 he went out to guard the coast about the commencement of the war for two months as a volunteer militia man under Captain Condict in Menham Township, Morris County, State of New Jersey being about twenty years of age and was stationed for most of the time on Trimble's Point between Elizabethtown and Amboy--after his time expired again served for two months in same manner-

"That shortly after this he emigrated with his fathers family to the Western part of Pennsylvania Greene County where he has resided ever since and still resides and shortly afterwards in the summer of 1777 about the first of July he went out as a volunteer under Captain William Herod against the Indians and marched to the Flats of Grave Creek and along the Ohio River--they were called Scouts or Indian Spies. They had no Colonel or general officers with them but Colonel McCleary and Col. McFarland commanded in that part of the country and occasionally after serving about four months in this way as a private an election was held by the company for officers and this applicant was elected Captain and was accordingly sworn in and commissioned at Phillips Fort (where the court martial and other military business was done and meetings held) as a Captain of Indian Spies and Rangers--having recruited and supplied his company they marched to a place called Jarrets Fort on Big Whiteley Creek in Greene County where they made their headquarters where they collected their supplies and where they fell back when presd. by superior numbers--that he continued to command and serve at this place from the first of June to the first of October in the year 1778. The enemy retired and hostilities were not resumed until about the middle of May 1779. He again raised his company of spies and rangers and established their headquarters at Ross' Fort on Ruffs Creek about six miles from where Waynesburgh is now situate in Greene County--from this place (where the neighboring people were forted) he marched with his men in different directions toward the Ohio River--scouting, watching, pursuing the enemy--Many epople were murdered in every direction around and when intelligence was brought of these depradations this deponent who continued in command as Captain pursued the enemy until danger in that quarter disappeared. He was then employed in guarding the settlers and contending with the enemy for five months this season until the middle of October. The next spring, the latter part of May the enemy re-appeared and the people again forted at Ross' Fort and he again called out his men and took command as before--they pursued the enemy who had murdered many families on the headwaters of Whiteley Creek and on Dunkard and thence to the head of Fish Creek which empties into the Ohio River about twenty miles below the town of Wheeling in Virginia. Whilst pursuing the Indians on Fish Creek this season (1780) on a steep hill he in passing rapidly over a rocky place fell and split the cap of his knee so that he was unable to walk and was carried to the fort on the horse that carried their provisions and was unable to pursue any further service until nearly a year afterwards--were out about four and a half months.

"In the month of June (about the first corn hoeing) he again was called by danger and alarm to the field being still in command as Captain his service was again required--his company was again collected and reorganized and were part of the summer stationed at Bell's Fort higher up Ruffs Creek--they were also employed at guarding the people at various other forts--Jackson's Fort--Kline's Fort on Muddy Creek--retired later than usual in November he thinks early in the month--making more than four months--In the spring of 1783 he was stationed with his company at Seals' Fort about 4 miles from Jefferson--that this same spring and until some time in October--they were in this fort and the surrounding country protecting the settlers against hostile incursions of the enemy. His service this season as Captain was not less than five months--making his service as Captain in the years 1777-8-9-1780-1782 and 83 twenty two months and a half. After this he continued to serve occasionally. If he were to enumerate all the times he served in the forts and the fields he feels confident it would exceed three years. His commission and documentary evidence was all destroyed shortly after the war but he thinks he can find surviving witnesses who know of his services as a Captain in the Revolutionary War."

In answer to the interrogations he stated: 1. That he was born in Mendham Township, Morris County, New Jersey 2. That he has no record of his age-his father having taken it to Ohio 3. That he was living when called into service in Mendham Township, Morris County, New Jersey and since the war he has lived where he now resides in Jefferson Township, Greene Co., Pa. 4. That he went into service as a volunteer.

On the same day Barnet Whitlatch and Thomas Hoge, both of Greene County, certified that they were well acquainted with Rev. Lot Leonard and believe him to be seventy-eight years of age and he is reputed and believed in the neighborhood to have been a soldier and Captain in the Revolutionary War and they concur in that opinion--This was signed Barnet Whitlatch Jr. and Thomas Hoge.

Thomas Hoge, the same day, stated that he was present when the said Leonard was elected and appointed Captain of a Company of Indian Spies and Rangers in the year 1777 on Ruffs Creek and that he knew him to be in the service from that time to the end of the war every summer except when he was lame--that he lived the whole time in the near neighborhood and often forted in the same fort viz: Bell--Ross--and Seals Forts.

On the 13th day of February 1835 Silas Crayne appeared and stated the same as Thomas Hoge, except that due to old age he could not give dates--appeared before Robert Boyd, Justice of the Peace.

On 25 February 1836 Andrew Stewart and A. Buchanan sustained their belief of the foregoing statements--This was sent to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States Congress, pleading for relief for this most deserving man. This man was granted pension by certificate issued 20 July 1836, in the amount of $40.00 per annum, with arrearages from 3-4-1831.

Lot Leonard died 12-7-1847 and his widow, Frances Leonard, made application for a widow's pension. She stated that she was married to Lot Leonard 5-13-1821 by Thomas Burson, Esquire; her name before marriage was Frances Willis. Her request was rejected because his pension was granted by special bill and did not make provisions for her by this granting. Witnesses appearing were John Freeman, Associate Judge; Thomas Burson, who performed the marriage of Lot and Frances Leonard; and David and Melinda Bowser.

Lot Leonard is buried in the family cemetery in Jefferson Township where one large marker bears the inscriptions for Lot Leonard Jr. and his wife and son; also it bears the following: "Beneath this monument lies the bodies of Lot and Elizabeth Leonard. The Former died November 7, 1847, aged 93 years and 23 days. The latter died November 7th, 1816, aged 59 years and 4mos. L.L. Was born near Elizabethtown, New Jersey was raised as a member of the Presbyterian Church reformed in early life to the doctrine of universal salvation/ He possessed strong poetical qualifications----Elizabeth wife of L. L. Was born in Bucks County, Pa. Was raised in the society of friends."

Lot Leonard was a son of William Leonard, who also had sons Amos and Benjamin, among other children. Lot Leonard was twice married; the first wife was Elizabeth Hoge and, as we have shown, the second wife was Frances Willis. The children of Lot and Elizabeth were William, John, George, Leah Fitz Randolph, Nancy, Lot Jr. and Isaac. Lot and Frances had one daughter who married David Bowser.

MASSACRE AT STATLER'S FORT - HEZEKIAH WADE

by Dorothy T. Hennen

Statler's Fort, or Fort Statler, was just south of the line separating Pennsylvania from Virginia (now West Virginia). During the Revolutionary War many residents of both states found this fort a welcome retreat when danger seemed imminent; also many Greene County soldiers were stationed there to provide protection. To them, there was no north or south; we were one for all and all for one. The great concern was survival; some did not make it. Hezekiah Wade described the situation when he applied for a pension for revolutionary service. This application was made in Tyler County, Virginia (now West Virginia) on 11 October 1833, giving this information:

"That he entered the service of the United States under the following named officers and served as herein stated. That in April 1776 he volunteered as a private and Indian Spie, in the county of Augusta Virginia, now in the county of Monongahalia Virginia, for a period of three months, under Capt. Owen Davy, affiant with some others was placed at a Fort of Buffaloo Creek, now in the said county of Monongahalia Virginia was ordered by Capt. Davy to spy from sd Fort on the waters of Buffaloo Creek, Fish Creek, Dunkard Creek, Bingamon Creek, Fishing Creek and Little Fish Creek, waters principally heading together. Some leading to the Monongahalia Stations, and the opposite ones to the Ohio River which the Indians would ascend, as their war paths run along said water courses. When they intended to make an incursion upon the Frontiers, during affiant's servitude under Capt. Davy in the month of June a party of Indians was discovered on Fish Creek by affiant (and another man by the name of Gillis who was with him) making their way to Buffaloo Fort, affiant and Gillis hastened to that station alarmed the laborers in their fields working, of the Impending danger, and went into fort, the savages approached the neighborhood, layd in ambush around the fort one night and day, discovered that their approach was understood killed one cow and made their Departure without doing any more damage then, from the number of the enemy it was not considered advisable to pursue them from the fort being so much inferior in number themselves. The above invasion was all that happened during his servitude under

Capt. Davy and he was discharged in August 1776--Then in March 1777 affiant was ordered out as an Indian Spy and private by Captain John Minor, was stationed at Stradler's Fort on Duncard Creek in Augusta County Then, now Monongahalia County Virginia, was ordered by Capt. Minor to spy upon the same waters as he did in the preceeding year, having become acquainted with them, namely---not engaged in any personal Conflicts that season, sufficient to say that his service as an Indian Spy was a continuous one until November, that year, at which time he received a discharge from Captain John Minor---the savages was heard from on the headwaters of the Monongahalia River and about Fort Pitt where Pittsburg now stands, and Wheeling on the Ohio River, committing great havoc and murder. Then in March 1778 he volunteered as a private and Indian Spie under Captain John Lucas for a period of six months was stationed again at Stradler's Fort on Duncard Creek in Monongahalia County Virginia where he volunteered. Capt. Lucas placed him, or ordered him upon the aforementioned waters of Buffaloo, Duncard, Bingamon, Fishing Creek etc. etc.---and upon this spying excursion had discovered the trail of a large number of Indians who had made their way down Bingamon Creek in July of that year, a Branch of the West Fork of the Monongahalia River, affiant hastened to Stradler's Fort on Duncard Creek to alarm the people of what he discovered supposing they would visit the fort if they had not already been there. On his approach to said fort the marks of distress was obvious---the night preceeding the enemy consisting of one Hundred Warriors descryed a number of about Twenty Five men, a working some corn etc. about from one to two miles from said Stradler's Fort, that the Savages placed themselves in ambush on each side of the path leading from thence to the fort, and on the passage of the laborers to the Fort who had some pork with them for the use of the fort, they was fired at by the Savages and Eighteen of their number, were killed dead on the ground amoung whom was affiants Father, Joseph Wade, Jacob Stradler, Michael Kidlinger, James Piles, John McDaniels, etc. etc. the numbers of the enemy so greatly Overpowered those within the fort, that the Fort was kept closed until time had proved their departure. When affiant amoung others repaired to the ground upon which the bloody deed was committed, and intered the mangled limbs of those who fell at the charge of the enemy, nothing of particular note happening after that season affiant was discharged by his Captain John Lucas in October 1778--feeling himself so much grieved at the destruction by the Savages, and hurt at the loss of his Father, volunteered in March 1779 for a period of nine months under Captain John Lucas--was stationed at Martin's Fort on Crooked Run a Branch of Monongahalia River--servitude was a vigilant continuous one until November when he was discharged--in April 1780 was ordered out by Col. McClain of Union Town Pennsylvania and placed under command of Lieutenant ..... Cooper, of the Pennsylvania Militia to march to Hanstown, on waters of Conemaugh River---

LEONARD

The progenitor of the family in America was Nathaniel Leonard, whose brothers James and Henry settled at Taunton, Mass. Nathaniel came first to Avalon, of which the became Govonor, the capital being Annopolis in Nova Scotia. He was skilled in Wales as an iron master and came to America seeking iron ore. The climate in Nova Scotia being too cold for the Colonist's part of them migrated to Maryland where there is yet a Leonard's town in St. Marys Co. James and Henry seemed to have stopped off at Taunton, Mass. Nathaniel son John, probably hearing about the settlement at Springfield, Mass. went there in 1639.

It is not known who the father of Nathaniel, James and Henry but their father had a sister Dorothy, who married George Calvert, whose son George was a Cathlis and a favorite of King James III of England, was created Lord Baltimore by that Monarch. His son Leonard was the first Governor of Maryland, Lord Baltimore being Gov. of the Colony. George Calvert gained a fortune by his marriage to Dorothy Leonard, her family being prominent wealthy iron masters of Pontypool, England, and afterwards in Baltimore, Md. the latter suggesting to Lord Baltimore (George Calvert) a name and title.

Dorothy Leonard and George Calvert (1) were married at the ancertral home of the Leonards, Hurstmonceux Castle, then owned by a relative of the bride.

On Nov. 19, 1643, a grant was made at a town meeting for three thousand acres of land at Braintree, Mass. for the encouragement of an iron works to be set up about Monteot River styled "The Company of Undertakers of the Iron Works". This inauguarated what is claimed to be the earliest attempt to make iron in the new country, an honor disputed by Lynn, Mass.

They were allowed to export any supplies to any part of the world available, except to enemies. Among the first workers was Henry Leonard, who assisted in making the first castings. A Mr. Winthrop received permission to make a plantation and lay out a site for iron works at Pequot (New London) Conn, to which place in 1646 he imported men of skill as iron workers. In 1846 the government permitted some of the Country's guns to be melted and recast at this foundry.

The next attempt to manufacture iron was at Raynham in 1652, and here the Leonadds added to the plant a bloomery and forge hammer. From information furnished by Rev. Dr. Fobes in 1793 considerable light is thrown upon the family at this early period. He affirms that the first adventures from England to this country who were skilled in forge manufacture were James and Henry Leonard, who came to Raynjam for this purpose, they built the first forge in America. James lived and died at Raynham. He brought with him his son Thomas, who worked at the bloomery and assisted his father at the forge.

Henry the brother of James, went from Raynham to New Jersey, and was one of the earliest iron masters of that state. He was the progenitor of a large family, one branch of which settled in Greene County, Penna.

The Grene County Leonard family was headed by Lot Leonard. Another branch settled in Somerset Township, Washington County, Pa, from New Jersey as early as 1780 headed by Isaac, Abnern and Caleb Leonard.

This article was taken from "The American Gazetteer, published 1804 but careful research has proven that the Leonard who settled in Western Penna., were descendants of SOLOMON Leonard, who settled at Bridgewater Mass. as early as 1629. The History of Solomon Leonard by Manning Leonard says he was related to the Leonards of Taunton, Mass, and that Rev. Dr. Forbe, a life long frind of the family knew the exact relationship and had it ecorded which unfortunately was destroyed in those early sternous times.

LEONARD ARMS: - Shield on a fesse gueles, three fleur-de-lis of the first. Crest, a lion head, erased gules.

Solomon Leonard was the first settler in America of whom there is any record. He was in the Plymouth Colony as early as 1629. James and Henry brothers settled in Taunton as early as 1652 and established the first iron works in America. Nathaniel came to Nova Scotia which climate he disliked. He came with the Calverts, later migrating to Maryland.

Sir Gregory, 10th, Lord Dacre, died childress, was succeeded by his sister Margaret, Baroness Dacre in 1604, she was born 1540 died 1611.

LOT LEONARD

Lot Leonard was one of the early pioneers of Greene County, Penna. having migrated there about 1779. He was born in New Jersey, about the year of 1748, being the son of William Leonard, who came to the Province of New Jersey about 1740, with his father Benjamin, who migrated from Bridgrwater Mass. with his family and is a descendant of Solomon Leonard, who settled in Bridgewater about 1629, coming from England and was of the same family as James and Heny who were the first iron workers in America.

Lot Leonard spent his early boyhood in New Jersey. He had many adventures escaping the Indians and many harrowing experiences. The Indians were amazed at some of his ventures and never dared to follow. He had one brother Amos, a very queit reserved and reticent lad.

At the age of twent one, Lot Leonard habing married Elizabeth Hoge, who was a sister of Thomas Hoge, the father of the late John Hoge, moved to these parts and took up a tomahawk improvement, the tract of land known as the Caldwell Houlsworth property, on which the Houlsworth mill now stands including the Still Smith farm and other adjoining lands. This was about the year 1769. His uncle Caleb, Sr., and his family came out here at the same time and settled on Pigeon Creek, Washington Co. Pa.

Lot Leonard lived here the remainder of his days and died at the advanced age of 100 years, lacking one month. He reared a family of nine children, William, John, Lot, Isaac, George, Nancy, Leah, Sarah and Malinda.

George living in Ohio, Nancy marrying her second cousin Lenas Lennard, son of Caleb Jr. and grandson of Caleb, Sr. Lead married Joseph Randolph.

Lot Leonard Sr. married 2nd Frances Willis, by whom he had one daughter, who married David Bowser, residing in Washington Co. Pa., not far from Clarksville.

He was very enterprising and thrifty as well as eccentric. He took tomahawk improvements on a large scope of country west of Waynesburg including John Hunter Vancleve farm, George Fry farm, Samuel Crouse farm, part of Stephen Adamson famr, James Throckmorton farm, the farm belonging to the Rush heirs.

He settled his eldest son William who married Frances, Whitlach dau. of Wm. Whitlach, a neighbor of theirs on the farm, near the mill. Lot Leonard also became a preacher , and a song writer. His son William died young and so suddenly as to create suspicion that he had been poisoned. He was the father of four children of these Lot, died young, Nancy married Archibald Fordyce, John became a Methodist Minister and had seven children among whom is Wm. G. Leonard. William became a Disciple Minister and moved his family to the state of Michigan in 1865 and died there.. There are many of Lots descendants in Greene County,

RECORDS FOUND AT TRENTON
MENDHAM, and MORRISTOWN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES
MORRIS COUNTY, NEW JERSEY

It is said that Solomon Leonard, of Sudbury and Bridgewater, Mass. had among others, a son Isaac Leonard, who married Deliverance and had among others, Benjamin Leonard, who married first, Hannah Phillips; second Mary Cudworth. Benjamin and Hannah had six children: Jemima born May 8, 1717, Lydia born Sept. 17, 1718, Hannah, Sept. 26, 1720, Benjamin born Sept. 26, 1722, William born Dec. 17, 1724, Caleb born Sept. 23, 1726.

Jemima married Henry Axtell in 1737 and with her father, Benjamin to Mendham New Jersy, where records show they lived in 1750.

Behjamin married Martha Harris, as records of Morristown Church show that Benjamin Leonard, of Mendham and Martha Harris "of ye town" were married March 8, 1750.

Benjamin settled in Mendham, and was a member of the Mendham Church. The records of this church (except for an old Minute Book beginning 1766) with the records of births, marriages and deaths before 1796 have been lost or destroyed.

The Morristown Presbyterian Church was only fifteen miles distant, and these records having been preserved in full, we find there much interesting and valuable data.

Benjamin Leonard and wife Martha, of Mendham, Morris Co. N.J. sold to John Cary, a tract of land in Mendham, containing 650 acres adjoining Joseph Hinds et. al. Aug. 11, 1758. Signed by Benjamin Lenard and Martha Lenard, Deed Bk. B-3 P267, Trenton N.J.

Two gravestones in Mendham Church Yard:

Martha Leonard, wife of Benjamin Leonard
Died May 13, 1793 age 60 years

A matching stone, immediately to the right, has all the face chipped off except "age 63y 6m 24d. This was undoubtly Benjamin, the son of Benjamin and Hannah, and the husband of Martha. To the left of the new marker over Marth'a grave is another red sandstone which reads.

Lois wife of Benjamin Leonard
Died July 30, 1808 age 46years.

This was undoubtly the wife of Benjamin, who was the son of Benjamin and Martha, and grandson of Benjamin and Hannah.

Jemima Leonard married Henry Axtell in Mass. and had two chilren when they came to Mendham. One of the children became Major Henry Axtell, during the Revolution, and died at Mendham 1818, age 80 years and is and is buried in Mendhem Churchyard. Caleb Leonard also married here as records sho he married Jemima Minthorn. Caleb and William were the two brothers who migrated to Western Pennsylvania prior to 1770 as records show them as having settled there. Caleb settling on Pigeon Creek, in Washington County, and William settling in Greene County, each with large families.

The Morristown Church records show that the old name of Mendham was Roxiticus, and that the Rev. Wm. Tennent was pastor. On the records we find:

Caleb Leonard, of Roxiticus, and Jemima Minthorn were married January 27, 1748.

Jan. 2, 1753	Ephriam Leonard Hannah Hinds of Mendham
Mar. 31, 1753	Jotham Burt Mary Hayward
July 4, 1762	Benjamin Pool Jemima Burt
Jan. 20, 1756	Jemima Burt "half-way member"
May 29, 1764	Zephaniah Burt Hannah Axtell
Aug. 22, 1764	Isaac Woodruff Mary Leonard of Mendham
Dec. 3, 1766	Jotham Burt Phoebe Cole
Aug. 10, 1765	Buried child of William Leonard
Apr. 12, 1769	George LaFollett Jemima Minthorn of Mendham
Oct. 9, 1769	Nathaniel Burt Rebecca Thorp

Mention is made in a deed of a Benjamin Leonard, who was deceased in 1749. This was probably the husband of Hannah, and father of Benjamin, who married Martha, and grandfather of Benjamin who married Lois.

Caleb who married Jemima Minthorn and removed to Washington Co. Penna. had the following children:-

Caleb, born 1750, Isaac, Silas, William born 1766. There were other children. These were taken from court records in Washington County, Penna.

Nathaniel and Zephaniah Burt were members of the Mendham Church. Half-way members must mean they belonged to both Mendham and Morristown Church, perhaps lived between them and went to one or the other.

William Axtell, who was a brother of Henry Axtell, died in Mendham 1749/50. Had a wife Hannah and children (all minors) Henry, William Silas, Benjamin and Johanna. He named as executor, his brother Henry Axtell and William Leonard was a witness. New Jersy Will Abstracts Vol. II p 28.

Among other records that establishes further proof that the descendants of Solomon Leonard came into western Pennsylvania we have the following:-

Jemima Leonard of Taunton or Berkley Mass. married Henry Axtell in 1737 and emigrated with Benjamin Leonard to Mendham N.J., in 1740. Benjamin Leonard was a land owner in Berminister Township in 1755; and is recorded as a tax payer in 1760. His land was located seven miles from Mendham, N.J.

Only one generation was born here, as the family located with the Rushs, Babbits and Axtells, and others in the rich valley and farm lands of Western Pennsylvania.

From: "Historical and Genealogical Account of the Bush Family, by S. R. Rush 1926.

Now, we have records of Benjamin and Hannah Phillips Leonard coming from Mass. to New Jersey, and find their son Benjamin, and Martha Harris Leonard lived and died there.

Jemima, who married Henry Axtell came into Western Pennsylvania. Caleb who married Jamima Minthorn and children, Caleb, Isaac, Silas, William, settled in Washington County, Penna.

William settled in Greene County, Penna., with children, William, Lot, Amos, Ziba, and others.

CALEB LEONARD WILL - 1814

In the name of God, Amen. I, Caleb Leonard of the County of Washington, in the State of Pennsylvania, Farmer being in health of body and sound mind, memory and understanding (Blessedbe God for the same) but considering the uncertainty of this transitory life, do make and publish this my last will and testament, in manner and for following, to wit:

I commend my immortal soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be buried in a decent and Christian like manner, at the discretion of my Executors herein after named, and as to such wordly estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me in this life.
I give and dispose of the same in the following:
FIRST It is my will and I do give and order that all my just debts and funeral expenses be duly paid and satisfied as soon as conveninetly can be after my decease.
SECOND I then give and bequeath unto my dear wife Sarah Leonard one bed and one cow together with such of my household furniture and kitchen utensils as she may choose to keep for her use.
ITEM I give and bequeath unto my said wife, the use and occupation of my plantation, until my son Avery shall attain his age of twenty-one years (she maintaining and educating my minor children thereout). and from and after his arrival at such age then I give and devise the said plantation unto my said son Avery, his heirs and assigns forever.
ITEM It is my will and I do order that my son Avery do pay unto my two daughters, Lois and Eleanor, forty dollars to each of them, in one year after he comes in possession of said plantation.
ITEM It is my will that my dear wife, Sarah Leonard have one third of the profit arising from my said plantation durin her natural life, and lastly I nominate and constitue and appoint my dear friends Zenas Leonard and William Burt, to be the Executors of this my last will. Hereby revoking all other wills, legacies and bequests by me heretofore made and declare this and no other to be my last will and testament.

Signed, sealed published, pronounced and declared by the said testator as his last will and testament in the presence of us, who in the presence and at his request have subscribed as witnesses the eighteenth day of October A. D. 1809.

PREFATORY NOTE.

The list of Revolutionary Soldiers which follows is copied from a volume recently discovered of payments made to the individuals noted for services chiefly on the Frontiers as Rangers, between the years 1778 and 1783. As the majority of the names appear more than once upon the list, this is owing to the fact that they were paid for different tours of duty. It is to be regretted that the Company designation is not attached to each individual, for had that been the case the men might have been arranged into companies. No year is given for the specified service.

Crumrine, Boyd

In the earlier days of Somerset township James Wherry owned the farm on Pigeon Creek that now belongs to Ira Huffman. In the family of James Wherry were three sons, John, David, and William. No knowledge is gained of the last two, but John Wherry married Elizabeth Welch, and his children, five in number, reside in this township.

The Huffman family was one of the most prominent in Somerset township. Rudolph Huffman patented a tract of land here on May 22, 1787, and reared a family of ten children,—Daniel, Dorothy, David, Martin, Jonathan, Jacob, Solomon, Joseph, Sophia, and Sevela. The daughter Sophia married Jacob Swagler, and Sevela became Mrs. Wallace. Rudolph Huffman's land was on Pigeon Creek, and he followed the business of farmer and distiller. He died before 1806. The property is now owned by Joseph Huffman, a great-grandson of Rudolph Huffman. John Huffman was a nephew of Rudolph Huffman, and lived on the farm adjoining that of his uncle. His property is now owned by Joseph Huffman, Andrew McIlvaine, and John Berger, his family having all emigrated to Columbus, Ohio. Richard Huffman, who resides in Bentleyville, in this township, is a descendant of Rudolph Huffman. He is the author of "Pilgrim's Poem."

James Cochran was a farmer who lived on Cochran Run, a branch of Chartiers Creek. His farm is now owned by the heirs of Peter Whitely and Samuel Weir.

Of the early settlers of Somerset township there were two families of the name of Stevenson, but they were not related. The name of the father in each family was John Stevenson. The head of the first family of that name that settled in Somerset township was born in England in 1735, came to this country in 1750, and settled near the Brandywine battleground. He was married about the year 1765 to Mary McCowan. In 1780 he came to this county and settled in Somerset township, on the farm on which Thomas McCorkle now lives. He had a family of eleven children, nine of whom lived to mature years. He was elected a justice of the peace in Somerset township, and he also represented this county two terms as a member of the Supreme Executive Council of the State. On his way home, at the close of his second term, he was taken with smallpox, and died at Hagerstown, Md., in March, 1795. Mary McCowan Stevenson, his widow, some years after his death, married Judge James Edgar, of Cross Creek township.

The second family named Stevenson that settled in Somerset township was of Irish extraction. John Stevenson, the father of this family, was born in the year 1729, and he removed from Cumberland County, Pa., to Washington County, Pa., in 1781, and settled on a tract of land in Somerset township which they bought from Philip Whitten, containing three hundred and ninety-two acres. He lived on the part of this tract which now composes the farm of Samuel B. Weir. His first wife was —— Mitchell. By this marriage he had two sons, named Joseph and George. His second wife was Jean McCombs, and their children were Robert, John, James, Mary, Margaret, Elizabeth, Jean, and Anne. All his sons, with the exception of James, who was too young, served as soldiers in the Revolutionary war. He sold his farm in Somerset township, and purchased and lived on the farm now owned by Andrew McCarrell and the heirs of Hon. Thomas McCarrell. He afterwards divided this land among his children, and moved to a farm he owned near Cross Creek village, and now comprising the farms of John Lee and H. L. Duncan. He died there at the age of ninety years, and is buried in Cross Creek Cemetery. His wife, Jean McCombs, died at the age of eighty-six years.

Joseph Stevenson, the eldest son of this family, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and served under Gen. Washington, and fought at the battle of Trenton. He came to this county, married Mary Espy, and had five children,—John, Joseph, Maria, Mary Anne, and Josiah Espy,—which latter son was a physician, and lived and died at Kittanning, Pa. Another of his descendants is the Rev. Loyal Young Graham, of Mount Olivet Church, Philadelphia. Joseph Stevenson afterwards lived in Canonsburg, and died there, and is buried in the cemetery at Chartiers Church.

George Stevenson, the second son by the first wife, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and served under Gen. Washington. He came to this county, and was afterwards taken prisoner by the Indians near West Liberty, now in West Virginia. He was compelled by them to carry a heavy iron kettle lashed on his bare back all the way to Canada. He was also at the same time suffering from a severe gash in his forehead, made by an Indian striking him with a tomahawk at the time of his capture. In Canada he was sold, and remained there for three years and five months, when he was exchanged as a prisoner of war. He married Catharine McCombs, and lived for a time at what is now known as Hunter's Mill on Harmon's Creek, Hanover township. He afterwards removed to Knox County, Ohio, where he died. He had a family of four children, named John, George, Martha, and a daughter whose name is not known to the writer. The Rev. George Graham, of Clarksville, Iowa, is his grandson.

Capt. Robert Stevenson, the eldest son of John Stevenson, by his wife, Jean McCombs, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and belonged to a company commanded by Capt. McConnell, of Cumberland County, Pa. He was also in the war of 1812, and was captain of a company. He assisted in the building of "Fort Stevenson," near Sandusky, Ohio, and the fort was named in his honor. He settled in this county about the close of the Revolutionary war, and married Mary Teeters. He afterwards moved to near Jane, Catharine, and Nancy. The homestead of William Ringland was situated on Ten-Mile Creek, and upon this place he resided until his death. William Ringland, Jr., married Mary Bane, George married Miss McGuire, and James married Miss Sarah Stockdale. Joseph Ringland, who now owns and occupies the old homestead, is a son of James Ringland, and the only male representative of the family in Washington County.

James Connit, whose home was in Bound Brook, N. J., came to Morris township in 1802. His wife was Jane Powell, a native of the State of New York. Their family numbered thirteen children. Of these Sarah, John, Milton, Joseph, Jane, and Lydia Connit all died single. Melissa is still living unmarried. James Connit married Rebecca Cary. He is still living on the Demas Lindley tract of land, near Prosperity, and is eighty-six years of age. He has but one child, Isaac N. Connit. Eliza Connit married Daniel Ferrell, and lived and died in East Finley township. Priscilla became Mrs. Norman Powers, and is now a resident of Greene County. Isaac Connit, Sr., married Abby French, and removed to Ohio. Spencer Connit died in Greene County.

George Harris, a Revolutionary soldier, who fought at Monmouth and Princeton, settled in the township very early, and died Feb. 3, 1822, at an advanced age, leaving a numerous family and descendants.

A four-hundred-acre tract of land was warranted in this township, July 17, 1785, by Samuel Parkhurst. It adjoined the lands of Caleb Lindley, Daniel Parkhurst, and Jacob Rude. He was one of the constituent members of the Ten-Mile Baptist Church, which was organized in 1772, and was the clerk of the church in 1773. He married a daughter of the Rev. David Sutton.

Village of Prosperity.—The village plat was laid out in 1848 by Robert Wallace, who built the first house, which is still standing, owned by John M. Day, and occupied as a store. The first postmaster was T. D. Minton. Arvidi Day is the present postmaster, and has occupied the position twenty-six years.

The town contains at present fourteen dwelling-houses, a school-house, and the Upper Ten-Mile Presbyterian Church. The business places are the store of Miss Mary E. Brownlee; shoe-shop of Nathan Daley; blacksmith-shop, A. L. Hayden; drug-store, David Dille; Matthias Minton, justice of the peace; two physicians, and a lodge of Odd-Fellows, viz.: Morris Lodge, No. 936, which was organized on the 10th of August, 1876, with the following officers: Samuel Houghland, N. G.; Silas Young, V. G.; Isaac Mankey, Sec.; and William Miller, Treas. The present officers are Joseph Dunn, N. G.; James B. Allison, V. G.; M. Minton, Sec. The society has a membership of forty-five. Nineveh Lodge, No. 583, of Greene County, was consolidated with Morris Lodge in 1881.

Upper Ten-Mile Presbyterian Church.—The churches of Upper and Lower Ten-Mile were organized Aug. 15, 1781, as one church. Prior to that time, however, services had been held by these people in different places, the first time upon the visit of the Rev. Thaddeus Dodd in the spring of 1777. He was a graduate of Princeton College, and had been licensed by the Presbytery of New York. He remained with this people, preaching in private houses in the forest, and in the different forts or block-houses in this section of country, till August of that year, when he returned to the East, and was ordained by the Presbytery of New York in the early part of October, 1777. He visited this place again later in the year, and returned home after a short stay. He was prevailed upon by Lindley, Cook, and others to come out to this people and become their pastor. This he promised to do. After his return home he preached in Maryland and Virginia, and had strong inducements to remain, but he had given his promise, and in the September of 1779 he arrived at Ten-Mile with his wife and two children (one of whom, Cephas, became a minister and pastor over the church his father organized). Services were held at different places, but no distinct effort was made towards a permanent organization until August, 1781, when twenty-three persons gathered at the house of Jacob Cook and organized a church, of which the following named were the constituent members, viz.: Thaddeus Dodd, V.D.M., and Phebe, his wife; Demas Lindley (elder) and Joanna, his wife; Jabez Baldwin; William Leonard and Mary, his wife; William Hays and Anna, his wife; David Dille and Elizabeth, his wife; Jacob Cooke and Phebe, his wife; Daniel Axtell and Ruth, his wife; Joseph Coe and Abigail, his wife; John Eddy and Mary, his wife; Daniel Dodd and Charity, his wife; Abner Brown and Paul Brown; and Jacob Cook, Joseph Coe, and Daniel Axtell were chosen elders. "After this," says the church record, "we set several times when we should have the sacrament of the Lord's Supper administered, but could not compass our designs on account of the incursions of the savages." The next entry is as follows: "Wednesday, April 30, 1783. The session met at Mr. Lindley's fort. Present: Thaddeus Dodd, V.D.M., Demas Lindley, Joseph Coe, Jacob Cooke, Daniel Axtell, elders. At this session twenty-two persons joined."

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was first administered[1] on the third Sabbath of May, 1783, by the Rev. Thaddeus Dodd, their pastor, assisted by the Rev. John McMillan. The meeting was held in Daniel Axtell's barn.

The church increased in numbers under Mr. Dodd's efforts, and became strong. Mr. Dodd died of consumption May 20, 1793, after a ministry of nearly military permit in 1763 and which he afterwards sold to Thomas Brown. Descendants of William Colvin are still living in Redstone, Luzerne, and Brownsville. Several large tracts of land were located in this section by the different members of the Newkirk family, amounting to nearly nine hundred acres, which lay along Pigeon Creek and north of the present village of Bentleyville. One tract called "Agriculture" contained three hundred and eighty-six acres, and was situated on both sides of the north fork of Pigeon Creek adjoining lands of Vincent Colvin, John Wallace, and James Craven. The date of the application for this land is not given, but the survey was made April 6, 1786. It seems there was a controversy as to the ownership of this tract, as appears by the following extract from the survey report: "To this tract of land there are two claimants, each of whom has taken out a warrant for the same land, though differently described, viz.: William Colvin, a warrant for three hundred and sixty-four acres, dated Feb. 13, 1786; Isaac Newkirk, a warrant for three hundred acres, dated Feb. 27, 1786. Each has evidence to support their pretensions and submit to the honorable the Board of Property, on whose warrant the return will be received." The warrant was returned Nov. 3, 1807, to Isaac Newkirk as the rightful owner.

"The Legacy" was a tract which Henry Newkirk was granted upon a Virginia certificate, and the survey was made Feb. 25, 1786. This tract contained four hundred and thirteen acres. Close upon the line between Somerset and Fallowfield townships and in the division of townships the lands of Graybill and Colvin came within the limits of Fallowfield, while Henry Newkirk became a resident of Somerset. Besides there were other farms taken up and improved by the Newkirks. Three of them are in Fallowfield, and are owned by Richard Richardson, Noah Jones, and Thomas Elwood. As early as 1777 the Newkirks erected what was considered a large dwelling-house for those times. It was built of hewed logs, and on a stone in the chimney was cut the date of the erection of the house. The dwelling was pulled down in 1838, but the stone mentioned is still preserved in the family. A part of this old homestead comes within the limits of the borough of Bentleyville. The place is now owned by Jacob Spahr, and the old water-mill, known as the Newkirk grist-mill, is also in his possession. It was one of the famous mills of its day, but is now but a relic of the olden time. Many members of the Newkirk family have lived and died in Somerset township, and many others emigrated to other parts. Joseph A. Newkirk is the only male representative of the descendants at present residing here. James S. and Isaac Newkirk reside in Kansas City, Mo.

George Kutner and his wife, Susan Kutner, were in Somerset township as early as 1780, and became possessed of two tracts of land containing together five hundred acres. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Kutner were twelve, four sons and eight daughters. The sons were Andrew, Jacob, Christian, and Abraham Kutner. The daughters were Elizabeth, Catharine, Susanna, Christina, Barbara, Sarah, Mary, and Magdalene.

The Leonard family came from New Jersey to Somerset township, and as early as 1780 were in possession of land here. There must have been a number of brothers, for the record of property transfers shows that a tract of one hundred and fifty-four acres was owned by several of these. It was first owned by Isaac Leonard, sold by him to Abner Leonard, by Abner to Caleb Leonard, and from him was purchased by John Hawkins. Caleb Leonard married Sarah Burt, and their family numbered seven children,—Daniel, Joseph, Zenas, Phebe, Rhoda, Mary, and Sarah Leonard. The sons Joseph and Zenas died in Ohio, and Daniel died in this county. The daughters all married and died leaving families. Edmond Leonard, living in Fayette County, and Isaac Leonard, of Washington borough, are descendants of these early settlers.

The land of Daniel Swickard adjoined the tract of John Study, and Burnt Run divided the tract nearly in the centre. In 1788, Daniel Swickard was assessed upon two hundred acres of land.

Daniel Swickard's family consisted of four children, —the sons Martin and David, Jr., the daughter Elizabeth, who became Mrs. Saltzman, and Eve, who was Mrs. Lash.

James Wherry came from England to this country, and eventually settled in Somerset township. He purchased a farm adjoining those of Nathaniel Reed and Joseph Huffman, where he lived and reared his family of eleven children, the oldest of whom, John Wherry, came from England with his father. In 1783, James Wherry was elected to the office of justice of the peace, serving in that capacity for many years, and was also an elder in the Pigeon Creek Church. He died in 1800. His son David had his own share of the Wherry property and also purchased that of his brother, James Wherry, Jr., who removed to Adams County, Ohio. Eli and William Wherry, grandsons of the pioneer, together with Ira Huffman, now own the old homestead. Miss Elizabeth Wherry, another descendant, became the wife of Adam G. Weaver, and resides in West Bethlehem township. John W. Wherry, also of the family, lives in the same township.

George Myers, who purchased the "Woodstock" tract of Christian Letherman in 1785, was a German, and beside the Letherman purchase bought other lands. He had some seven hundred acres altogether, part of which was in Nottingham township, north of Somerset, and lying along the North Branch of Pigeon Creek. The family of George Myers numbered eight or ten children, none of whom are now living. David, Henry, Andrew, Jesse, Samuel, Levi, Jacob, Hiram,

HISTORY

OF

GREENE COUNTY,

PENNSYLVANIA,

BY

SAMUEL P. BATES.

> Hills, vales, woods, netted in silver mist,
> Farms, granges, doubled up among the hills
> And cattle grazing in the watered vales,
> And cottage chimneys smoking from the woods,
> And cottage gardens smelling everywhere,
> Confused with smell of orchards. See! I said,
> And see! is God not with us on the earth?

Introduction

The following men who are listed in this reference aid served during the American Revolution as Frontier Rangers from Washington County, Pennsylvania, being employed against the Indians of the Seneca tribe, and the western tribes of the Ohio country. Washington County, Pennsylvania, became a political entity on March 28, 1781, when it was organized from its parent county of Westmoreland. The men whose names follow are believed to have served as Frontier Rangers from that time until the end of hostilities in late 1782. Washington County men who served prior to 1781, would logically be found listed among the rolls of Westmoreland County Rangers.

All Pennsylvania counties which bordered Indian county maintained companies of Rangers whose sole employment was in the defense of frontier settlements. The companies of Rangers were somewhat smaller than militia companies and usually served under a single officer. Frontier Rangers made frequent forays into wilderness areas along the frontiers and between blockhouses to discover and overtake bands of savages before sufficient numbers could gather to attack white settlements. When a Ranging company fell upon the trail of an Indian party, it was common practice to track the hostiles to their most recent camp, determine the party's strength, and to call in reinforcements to destroy the intruders.

All information recorded in this research aid has been gleaned from the published Pennsylvania Archives from miscellaneous lists of Rangers which remain undated. In only a few instances are the names of the captains of these Washington County Ranging companies known. Little else has remained in the way of rosters of these elite soldiers. There are some instances of duplication of names in the rosters of militia and Rangers due to the fact that some of the Washington County men served in both military organizations. Most apparently remained loyal to the original organization in which they first served. The researcher will notice that some names of Rangers are duplicated in the following list; this has been permitted to present the reader with as many different Pennsylvania Archive references as are available.

Most military researchers and genealogists familiar with the use of the published Pennsylvania Archives use a numerical code to indicate the precise location of a name in the nine series which contain a total of 138 volumes. For the reader's edification, the following example is given; Example: 5-5-100 indicates the location of series 5, volume 5, page 100. In this manner, references to the authorities may easily be given.

Due to a conflict in the charters of Virginia and of William Penn, the ownership of Southwestern Pennsylvania was in dispute until the matter of boundary lines was settled by the Assemblies of Virginia and Pennsylvania on June 23, 1780, in what is known as "The Baltimore Agreement". Until this agreement was reached, both Virginia and Pennsylvania claimed the area, and both established civil, and later, military governments in order to solidify their respective claims. The Iroquois' claim to the area had been extinguished by the Ft. Stanwix (Rome), N.Y. treaty by which the Indians relinquished their claims to the land south and east of the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers. This opened a veritable floodgate of settlement, Virginians moving north along the old Braddock Road, while Pennsylvanians moved westward along the Forbes Road.

Pennsylvania organized Westmoreland County on February 26, 1773, from its parent county of Bedford, while Virginia established the West Augusta District, a sub-district of Augusta County, Virginia in 1775. Laurel Hill in

This has been permitted to present the reader with as many different Pennsylvania Archive references as are available.

Most military researchers and genealogists familiar with the use of the published Pennsylvania Archives use a numerical code to indicate the precise location of a name in the nine series which contain a total of 138 volumes. For the reader's edification, the following example is given. Example: 5-5-100 indicates the location of series 5, volume 5, page 100. In this manner, references to the authorities may easily be given.

Due to a conflict in the charters of Virginia and of William Penn, the ownership of Southwestern Pennsylvania was in dispute until the matter of boundary lines was settled by the Assemblies of Virginia and Pennsylvania on June 23, 1780, in what is known as "The Baltimore Agreement". Until this agreement was reached, both Virginia and Pennsylvania claimed the area, and both established civil, and later, military governments in order to solidify their respective claims. The Iroquois' claim to the area had been extinguished by the Ft. Stanwix (Rome), N.Y. treaty by which the Indians relinquished their claims to the land south and east of the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers. This opened a veritable floodgate of settlement, Virginians moving north along the old Braddock Road, while Pennsylvanians moved westward along the Forbes Road.

Pennsylvania organized Westmoreland County on February 26, 1773, from the parent county of Bedford, while Virginia established the West Augusta District, a subdistrict of Augusta County, Virginia in 1775. Laurel Hill in Pennsylvania separated Bedford and Westmoreland counties in the east, but the western boundaries of the claim were rather vague. Pennsylvania's claim, for instance, included all of present-day Westmoreland and Indiana counties, the southern halves of Armstrong, Allegheny and Beaver counties, and all of Washington, Greene and Fayette. Virginia's claim was somewhat more extensive than that of Pennsylvania.

The outbreak of hostilities on April 19, 1775, at Lexington and Concord complicated the matter of conflicting claims, but also set both state governments upon a course of accomodation and conciliation which resulted in the acceptance of "The Baltimore Agreement," in 1780, which transferred most of the disputed area to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The boundaries were fixed by extending the Mason and Dixon line to a point five degrees west of the Delaware River, and then extending a line from that point directly north to the Ohio River. The Pennsylvania General Assembly moved quickly to solidify its claim upon the new territory by the organization of Washington County on March 28, 1781. This new county, Pennsylvania's twelfth, in 1781 included present-day Washington and Greene counties and Beaver County south of the Ohio River.

With the fever of war running high in Southwestern Pennsylvania, in 1775, both state governments moved quickly to establish military organizations for the protection of the frontier settlements. Virginia troops under the command of Captain John Neville took command of Ft. Pitt (Pittsburgh) in 1775, and maintained control of the area in the name of Virginia until Neville relinquished command on June 1, 1777, to Brigadier Edward Hand of the Continental Army. In the fall of 1775, Colonel William Crawford raised the 7th Virginia Regiment among the Virginia settlers of the area, and surrendering command to Colonel John Gibson, later raised an additional regiment, the 13th Virginia, which he himself commanded. The Pennsylvanians raised Associator and militia companies in Westmoreland County near the town of Hannastown, and by a resolution of Congress passed July 15, 1776, raised the 8th Pennsylvania Regiment of Line for use against the Indians. Perhaps the most important step taken was the "Treaty of Pittsburgh" which was signed at Ft. Pitt in 1775 between whites and the western tribes which guaranteed that all land north of the Ohio River would remain in Indian hands. Thus, the Southwestern Pennsylvania frontier was spared the honors of an Indian war until the treaty was broken in late 1777.

The succeeding commanders of the Western Department of the Continental Army were generally unsuccessful in carrying the war to the Indians, and border depredations continued on an almost daily basis throughout the war. In August, 1779, Colonel Daniel Brodhead, then commander of Ft. Pitt, led a raid up the Allegheny River to present-day Warren County and there destroyed a large Seneca Indian village. This successful expedition greatly lessened the intensity of Indian attacks for the next two years. Colonel Archibald Lockry commanded a party of Washington County men who were making their way down the Ohio River where they were to join General George Rodgers Clark at the junction of the Kanawha and Ohio Rivers. Lockry was captured, however, and he and forty-two of his men were massacred by the savages on August 24, 1781. Warfare on the frontier had reached such a vicious stage that seldom was quarter asked or given.

On February 10, 1782, a Shawnese war party abducted Mrs. Robert Wallace and her three children of Washington County, precipitating the massacre of christian Moravian Indians at Gnadenhutten three weeks later. The village of

Perhaps the most important event though was the "Treaty of Pittsburgh" which was signed at Ft. Lochry was captured, however, and he and [illegible] of his men were massacred by the savages on August 24, 1781. Settlers on the frontier had reached such a wretched stage that action was demanded of them.

On February 10, 1782, a [illegible] war party attacked [illegible] Robert Wallace and his three children of Washington County, precipitating the massacre of Christian Moravian Indians at Gnadenhutten three weeks later. The village of Gnadenhutten was the main quarters of christian Indians in Ohio, and although they professed their neutrality, whites believed they had aided the western tribes in making war on white settlements in Pennsylvania. Enraged by the abduction of Mrs. Wallace, 160 mounted men of Washington County, under Colonel David Williamson, set off into Indian country to retrieve her and the children. Her lifeless naked body was found impaled on a sapling along the trail to Gnadenhutten. Colonel Williamson's party summarily massacred 96 of the christian Indians with hatchets.

Upon the return of the Williamson party to Washington County, plans were discussed for a much larger foray into the Sandusky River country to deal a similar, final blow to the western tribes. Popular opinion was such that Brigadier William Irvine, commander at Ft. Pitt, granted permission for an all volunteer force of Washington County men, under Colonel William Crawford to undertake the mission. Colonel Crawford was a regular army officer from Westmoreland County, previously having given his allegiance to Virginia before the boundary agreement of 1780. Crawford's men left Washington County on May 23, 1782, arriving on the Sandusky plain on June 4, where a skirmish with the Indians ensued. On the following day, the Indians were reinforced by a British detachment from Ft. Detroit, causing a general retreat of the Crawford party toward the Ohio River. The retreat over a two day period became a rout, and twenty-five men were captured and tortured to death.

All Indians being emboldened by the victory over the Crawford party, Seneca Indians and white Canadian Rangers attacked and burned Hannastown, county seat of Westmoreland County, on July 13, 1782. The settlers had been forewarned and all arrived safely at the fort north of Hannastown before the savages staged their assault. Only one life was lost; that of an unfortunate girl who was struck by a stray musket ball. Throughout the remainder of the Revolution, alarms were caused by Indian forays and incursions in both Washington and Westmoreland counties. Although a great clamor arose in both counties to prosecute a vigorous new campaign against the western tribes, General Irvine was notified by letter on October 30, 1782, from the Secretary of War that no further actions were to be undertaken. Because peace had been proclaimed, Indian depredations generally ceased in Southwestern Pennsylvania by January, 1783. The men whose names follow served as Frontier Rangers in Washington County, Pennsylvania, and were participants in the foregoing events.

SESSIONAL RECORDS (1781-1783) OF THE UPPER AND LOWER TENMILE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Revd. Thaddeus Dod (then a licenciate of the Presbytery of New York) came to Western Pennsylvania and spent some two or three months principally on the waters of Tenmile in the southern part of Washington and parts of Green County (This was in the summer of 1776 or in 1777 probably the latter). He then resolved to make this the scene of his future labours; returned to his place of residence in Mendham N. Jersey and was ordained by the Presbytery of N. York on the 15th of October A.D. 1777 and on the next week set out with his family westward -- On his way however he received such information of the state of things in his indended (intended) location;(many of the inhabitants having fled on account of the depredations of the Indians) that he stopped at Patterson's Creek in Virginia. There appears from his memorandums to have been no organized congregations in that part of the country, and his time was occupied in preaching in private houses in that vicinity and in the neighbouring parts of Maryland untill the month of September 1779 when he came with his family to Tenmile.

There was no church organized till Aug. 15th, 1782 nearly two years after his arrival.

The first house of worship was built in 1784 or 1785 or the site now occupied by Lower Tenmile. In the upper part There was none untill the summer of 1792 when a house was erected on the site now occupied by Upper Tenmile, previous to which time meetings were held in private houses or barns or in the woods, the pastor dividing his time equally between the two.

August 15th 1781.

This day being appointed and public notice being given of the same, Met at Mr. Jacob Cookes, and after prayer to Almighty God, all persons who were regular members of any particular Church agreeable to the Presbyterian order and discipline, and who were desirous of Joining in Church Communion, were desired to give in their names, and vouchers for their regular Membership.

of Toms Brook. Interstate Highway 81 crosses the approximate center of the tract, County Highway 655 crosses the south corner, County Highway 642 crosses the northwest section and Shenandoah County Highway 653 north from Toms Brook provides access to the tract. Christopher had a receipt from Jost Hite (dated 19 October 1743) stating: "received of Stoffell (Christopher in the German language) Vandall (Windle) the sum of eight pounds and three shillings and eight pence Current money of Pensylvania for land he lives on I say received by me." On the back of the receipt written in "Dutch" (German) were these words (translated to English): "Bargain is 3 pounds per hundred for the land."[158]

Christopher purchased 122 acres (surveyed on 24 June 1763) from Lord Fairfax on 26 September 1772.[159] The 122 acres form the southeast corner of the 300-acre 1737 survey land (Hite's claim) and is accessible by Shenandoah County Highway 642. (Tract 96A)

Philip Windle (b. 1738 c., Christopher's son) was issued a Fairfax grant for 220 acres on Toms Brook adjacent to his father's land on 27 May 1762.[160] Christopher and his wife Catherine exchanged 31¾ acres (part from their 400-acre and part from their 122-acre Fairfax grants) for 31¾ acres from their son Philip's and his wife Elizabeth's 220-acre Fairfax grant on 26 September 1774.[161] Christopher and Catherine made a gift of 173½ acres (part of the 400-acre grant land) to their son John Windle (b. 1740 c.) on 27 September 1774. John and his wife Mary Magdalene sold 27¼ acres of the 173½-acre gift to brother Philip Windle for 20 pounds.[162] Philip and Elizabeth sold 45¼ acres of their 220-acre grant land to Jacob Spore for 1,000 dollars on 7 September 1801.[163]

Christopher and Catherine made a gift of 148 acres (sections from the 400-acre and 122-acre grant lands) to their son Christopher Windle Jr. on 25 November 1775. They also made a gift of 150 acres to their son Daniel Windle on the same day, 25 November 1775. The 31¾ acres was the original grant to Philip which he exchanged with Christopher Sr. and the remaining 118¼ acres was part of the 400-acre Fairfax grant land. Daniel and his wife Mary sold the 150 acres to Christopher Windle Jr. for 250 pounds on 1 March 1781. Christopher Jr. and his wife Susanna sold the 150 acres to their brother-in-law John Huffman/Hoffman for 500 pounds on 29 April 1782.[164] Christopher Sr. and Catherine sold sections of three tracts (the 400-acre, 220-acre and 122-acre Fairfax grants) for a total of 284 acres to their son-in-law John Huffman for 500 pounds on 23 April 1783.[165]

Christopher Windle Sr. was deceased by 29 December 1791 when his will (dated 27 February 1791) was proved in Shenandoah County Court. He listed his wife Catherine, daughters: Mary Snapp, wife of John Snapp; Elizabeth Huffman, wife of John Huffman; Catherine Conrad, wife of John Conrad and grandsons: Christopher and John Conrad, sons of John and Catherine Windle Conrad. He bequeathed his 110-acre plantation with the mill to his sons Philip and John and appointed them to serve as executors.[166]

Philip Windle, his wife Elizabeth, John Windle and his wife Mary Magdalene sold 50 acres (part of their inherited 110 acres) to Philip's son Emanuel Windle on 10 February 1812. One hundred acres of the 110-acre tract were a part of the 400-acre Fairfax grant and 10 acres ($10\frac{1}{2}$) Christopher Sr. had purchased from George Keller and his wife Catherine on 26 June 1787.[167] The 10 acres (part of Charles Huddle's 346-acre Fairfax grant) were located adjacent south of the 400-acre tract on Toms Brook. Philip and Elizabeth sold the remaining 50 acres of their legacy (including the grist mill) to brother John for one dollar on 9 March 1812.[168] Philip was deceased by 8 August 1814 and John by 13 February 1815 when their wills were proved in Shenandoah County, Virginia.[169]

"Augustine Wendle laid claim to 250 acres part only of which lies within the said Survey," (the 1737 James Wood survey of the 4,600-acre North Mountain tract for Jost Hite et al) and "further alledged that his father had purchased the same from Jost Hite."[170] Augustine was issued a Fairfax grant for the 250-acre tract located on Toms Brook adjacent Valentine Windle, Rynard Bouden/Borden and Mary Little on 23 July 1750.[171] (Part of Tract 96G/H, Map 11 and part of Tract G376, Map 11A) This tract is located approximately three miles northwest of Toms Brook on Shenandoah County Highways 653 to 655 to 623. Highway 623 forms the southeast property line, Highway 658 the southwest property line and Highway 656 crosses the east corner. Augustine and his wife Margaret sold 100 acres (part of the 250-acre grant land) to their son Augustine Windle Jr. for 100 pounds on 25 March 1784.[172]

Augustine Windle Sr. (b. 18 June 1714) was deceased by 25 October 1792 when his will (dated 7 September 1792) was proved in Shenandoah County Court. He bequeathed 150 acres (the remainder of the 250-acre grant land) where he lived to his son John (who married Mary Wiseman, daughter of Thomas Wiseman).[173] He willed his large German bible to his eldest son Jacob. He listed his son Augustine Jr. and appointed son Jacob Windle and son-in-law

Jacob Burner Jr. (b. 1745 c.) purchased 63 acres from Lord Fairfax on 20 June 1770,[84] lots in Woodstock, Virginia from Herman Livingood and 248 acres from John Hite and his wife Sara on 6 August 1770.[85] He and his wife Ann sold all their land to John Huffman on 23 May 1774.[86]

Jacob Burner Jr. was deceased by 28 March 1782 when his will (dated 28 February 1782) was proved in Shenandoah County Court. He left 270 acres located on the North River Shenandoah to his wife Ann. He listed sons Abraham and Isaac; daughters Catherine Burner and Barbary Burner. Jacob Jr. appointed his brother Michael Burner, Benjamin Ruffner and wife Ann to serve as executors of his estate.[87]

CLEMONS

Christian Clemons purchased 550 acres from Jacob Stover for 28 pounds on 17 September 1735. This tract was located on an island in the South River Shenandoah at the upper (south) corner of Stover's lower (north) 5,000-acre tract. Christian and his wife Catharina Margarita Clemons sold the 550-acre tract to Ludwick Stone for 60 pounds on 22 March 1737/38.[88] (Tract 111E, Map 14)

Christian and Catherine sold 600 acres on the west side of Deep Run (corner adjacent to John Huffman's tract) in the great fork of Rappahannock River to Michael Smith Jr. on 7 August 1742. Christian had received a patent for this tract located on the east side of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Culpeper County, Virginia on 21 November 1734.[89]

SELSER

Mathias Selser purchased three tracts containing a total of 500 acres from Jacob Stover (part of Stover's 5,000-acre patent land on the South River Shenandoah) on 15 December 1735. A 200-acre tract (Tract 111G, Map 14), another 200-acre tract (Tract 111J, Map 14) and a 100-acre tract (Tract 111P, Map 14).[90] Mathias purchased 217 acres from Martin Coffman for 30 pounds on 24 May 1739. VIRGINIA
NORTHERN NECK LAND GRANTS

Volume III

1775-1800

Grant book T

INTRODUCTION

Lord Fairfax had lived in the Northern Neck since 1735 and was not considered a Loyalist, so no effort was made to seize his land during the Revolutionary War. He continued to issue grants until 1780. He died in Frederick County, Virginia, on 9 December 1781. After his death the land office was closed and no grants were issued. His heirs were British subjects and ownership of the proprietary was in dispute for thirty years. The Fairfax family interest was terminated in 1808 and the last of numerous court cases was decided by the United States Supreme Court in 1816. Long before all the legal matters were resolved, the Revolutionary War had ended and the Colony of Virginia was the Commonwealth of Virginia of The United States of America.

The last grant from Lord Fairfax, recorded in Book S, page 192, was issued 3 April 1780. For the next six years no grants were issued in the Northern Neck. On 15 November 1786, Patrick Henry, Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia, signed a grant for 798 acres in Fauquier County to Martain Pickett by warrant from Fairfax's office and survey dated 13 October 1780. This grant had escheated from George Williams, Jr. and Richard Williams. From this time the Virginia Land Office assumed the authority to issue grants in the Northern Neck. Many of the grants issued by the Commonwealth of Virginia were on warrants issued and surveys made before the death of Lord Fairfax.

Abstracts in this third volume of Northern Neck land grants give grant book designation, page number, name of grantee, place of residence until Virginia began issuing grants, number of acres, location of grant, adjoining landowners, and sometimes warrant number with issue date and survey date. The grant form used by the Virginia Land Office showed some differences from the form used by Fairfax's office. Names have been copied from the grants as they appear in the grant, or as near as could be determined from the writing, and have been abbreviated only when and as they were in the original document except for Junior and Senior. Many of these grants are for small areas of land and appear to be vacant areas between previously granted tracts. Since these grants were measured by "metes and bounds," it was easy for mistakes to occur in the measurements. The majority of these grants were in the area of Hampshire, Hardy, and Berkeley counties (now West Virginia), and Frederick, Shenandoah, and Culpeper counties of Virginia. These abstracts have been kept brief, but every name was extracted. If you locate an ancestor in this listing, it is advised that you secure a copy of the original grant and read the complete document.

The original grant books are to be found as "Northern Neck Grants 1690 - 1874," Land Office (Record Group 4), Archives Branch, Virginia State Library, Richmond, Virginia. Microfilms of the original grant books, made by the Photographic Laboratory of the Virginia State Library, were used in making these present abstracts. Copies of the microfilms are available also through L.D.S. Family History Centers throughout the country.

Abstracts of Virginia's Northern Neck Warrants and Surveys by Peggy Shomo Joyner (4 vols., 1985, 1986, 1987) may contain information on some of the grants issued before the death of Lord Fairfax. Warrant and survey records used by Mrs. Joyner are in the Virginia State Library and at present are not available on microfilm.

Copies of the original grants may be secured from the Virginia State Library. Specify name of collection, name of grantee, volume and page number. Send a self addressed, stamped envelope for a price quote, limiting requests to two items per letter. Do not include money with orders. Write to: Virginia State Library, Capitol Square, Richmond, Virginia 23219-3491.

Regulations Leading to the Nee f Bonds of Security

The Institution of marriage as accepted in early Colonial America followed very closely the laws of matrimony as practiced in England, since England was the Mother Country. Even though there were some exceptions to this rule, in most cases the Crown and the Church performed in unison to enforce their doctrines. It was a plan in which they derived a mutual benefit, both in promoting military and religious control over their subjects and at the same time securing finances from the fees, required for each ceremony, and from the penalties, if these rules were not followed in their entirety.

(1) To secure this practice certain laws were drawn up. By present day standards many of them seem uncommonly severe. Even so, they formed the basis of our regulations to-day. Some of them may be reviewed here as follows: according to Hening's Statutes,"No minister shall celebrate matrimony betweene any persons without a facultie or Lycense graunted by the Governor, except the baynes of matrimony have beene first published three severall Sundays or holy-days in the time of devyne service in the parish churches where the sayd persons dwell................"

(2) "The fees for the lycences to be as followeth (viz):

to the Governor 200 pounds of tobacco or 20 shillings; to the clerke 50 pounds; to the secretarie 40;

to the minister 200 pounds or 20 shillings marrying with a lycence, if by baynes 50 pounds or 5 sh."

(3) "And if any minister shall contrary to this Act marry any persons, he shall be fined tenn thousand pounds of tobacco, and any pretended marriage hereafter made by any other than a minister be refuted null, and the children borne out of such marriage of the parents, be esteemed illegitimate, and the parents suffer such punishment as ..."

(4) "If a girl 12 to 16 years of age shall contrary to the consent of her parents or guardian and without publication of banns agree to a marriage, her lawful inheritance shall descend to the next of kin and her child disinherited."

(5) Even in 1775 a tax of 40 shillings was placed on every marriage, besides the necessity of the bond as security.

(6) The penalty on ministers for marrying servants without a certificate from their masters was 10,000 pds. of tob'o.

The severity of these laws gradually diminished as the 17th century merged with the 18th and the restless movement of the colonials began to surge westward. The mixture of people from various European ports arriving in this land caused a blending of thought and the English influence moderated to some degree. As the 19th century approached and the western civilization shrugged off the ruinous years of the Revolution, accepted the new feeling of "Liberty" and faced the reality of their immediate problems they met head-on the danger of Indian massacre, the scarcity of food and medicines, and the need for social and religious advantages. The distances from the cities made it imperative that people congregate in meeting-places on the frontier. By this necessity the practice of circuit riding lawyers and preachers passing from one such community to another came into being. Even with this advance there were not enough lawyers and ministers to meet the situation, so a new law came into use:

(7) "An Act to authorize and confirm marriages in certain cases.

WHEREAS it has been represented to this present General Assembly, that many of the good people in the remote parts of the Commonwealth are destitute of any persons, authorized by law, to solemnize marriages among them; BE IT ENACTED, that where it shall appear to the Court of any County, in the western waters, that there is not a sufficient number of clergymen authorized to celebrate marriages therein, such Court is hereby empowered to nominate so many sober and discreet laymen as will supply the deficiency; and each of the persons so nominated, upon taken the Oath of allegiance to this state, shall receive a license to celebrate the rights of matrimony, according to the forms and customs of the church of which he is a reputed member,...............

AND BE IT ENACTED, that all publications of banns of matrimony, in the said western waters, shall be made in three several days, and not in less time than two weeks, in open public assemblies, convened for religious worship or other lawful purposes, within the bounds of the respective congregation or militia companies, in which the parties to be married severally reside..........................."

(8) As the population grew the Governor who was the only one authorized to certify a bond made a new ruling whereby the eldest magistrate of the County was empowered to perform in place of the Governor. This responsibility

w eby the eldest magistrate of the County was empowere o perform in place of the Governor. This responsibi y fell on the Clerk of the Court and the secretary was ordered to list the names of the marriage participants, their surety and the tenor of the bond in the records.

The form of Bond used in Virginia up to 1805 required the posting of 50 pounds as security. After that time the amount was changed to 150 dollars. By then a stable form of monetary exchange had been adopted.

When one or both of the participants in a marriage were under the usual age and were refused a bond, the parent or guardian of this person was required to send a letter sanctioning the wedding. This was sent to the Clerk of the Court who had it recorded as his authority for issuing a certificate. For example this form of permit follows:

> Mr. Waitts
> I do in form you That my daughter is of age and I am willing for John Sherer to Marry my daughter Sarah.
> Robert Johnston   Ellender Johnson   (Berk. Co. Bond Book #6, p. 33--Feb. 26, 1835)
> (Hezekiah Johnston, Suretor--6b33).

(9) Because of fraudulent tactics practiced by Clerks of neighboring counties a new Law was made as follows:" IT IS ENACTED, that the Act for Lycences to issue certificates from clerkes of the county courts be declared to extend to noe other clerke but of the county, where the maid, her parents or guardian dwell.............................. .... and every clerke that shall grant them otherwise than above expressed shall forfeit his place."

The Colonial influence was beginning to mellow the existing restrictions to the point that "Common Law" marriages were being accepted, especially among the Scottish immigrants and other nationalities that did not adhere to British beliefs, before, and who wished to follow their own inherited doctrines. It was about this time around the year 1848 the Catholic faith arose to a position of prominence in Church affairs in Berkeley County, Virginia.

whom tradition credits with a visit to the South Branch of the Potomac as early as 1725, with 40,000 acres of land on the usual terms. Of these lands, a 20,000-acre grant to the younger John Van Meter lay in the fork between the Shenandoah and the Potomac and extended to the Opequon and its southern branch. On October 28 of the same year Alexander Ross and Morgan Bryan of Pennsylvania obtained 100,000 acres, which was to be located west and north of "the River Opeckon" and to extend to the North Mountain and the Potomac or to be taken from any other part of the Shenandoah Valley not already granted. Charles Chiswell and his associates on May 5, 1735, having been unsuccessful in finding sufficient land along the Potomac and the Pennsylvania line to satisfy the 60,000 acres previously granted them, asked for and received the acres yet due them in the region "between the Rivers little Cacaper & great Cacaper." One of the tracts in the 30,000-acre grant to Edward Barradall and John Lewis lay between two ridges of the North Mountains "upon a River running to the South South West of another called Kackapa," a reference perhaps to Lost River in Hardy County.[6]

Prohibited from recruiting settlers from eastern Virginia, promoters attempting to settle lands between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghenies drew heavily upon the population of New Jersey and Pennsylvania and upon the vast numbers of Germans, Scotch-Irish, and Swiss then pouring into America from Europe. The Germans constituted the vanguard of the new immigrant wave and usually took up lands in the northern part of the Valley of Virginia in the counties of Frederick, Shenandoah, and Rockingham. The Scotch-Irish, who followed close behind them, settled in Berkeley County or moved farther south to Augusta, Rockbridge, and Botetourt counties. Many of these settlers, as well as those from eastern Virginia, had formerly been indentured servants and had moved into the Valley as their contracts expired. charged three pounds per hundred acres for their lands, or about six times the price at which lands could be purchased directly from the government, they rendered services, such as the extension of credit to purchasers and attention to legal details at distant courthouses, which settlers regarded as sufficient to offset the additional price. The attractiveness of these lands was further augmented by Virginia's willingness to allow religious dissenters in the backcountry to practice their own beliefs.[7]

The cosmopolitan character of the Valley of Virginia was reflected in the population of Jefferson and Berkeley counties, in West Virginia. Between 35 and 40 percent of the settlers who took up lands in Jefferson County and in the eastern part of Berkeley County were Virginians of English extraction, who moved west by way of Vestal's and Snickers' gaps. Jefferson County, the most accessible to these routes of migration from eastern Virginia, received the largest English population. Berkeley County, on the other hand, attracted a greater proportion of the Scotch-Irish. Both counties absorbed a substantial part of the German migration, with Martinsburg and Mecklenburg, later known as Shepherdstown, becoming centers of German settlement. In the two counties, as a whole, the Germans and Scotch-Irish were about equal in numbers, each nationality accounting for about 30 percent of the population. By the middle 1740's settlements in which the two nationalities figured prominently had expanded far beyond the bounds of the two counties and dotted the banks of Opequon, Back, and Tuscarora creeks and the two Cacapon rivers. By that time, too, Germans and Scotch-Irish made up substantial portions of the population of the South Branch and Patterson's Creek.[8] charged three pounds per hundred acres for their lands, or about six times the price at which lands could be purchased directly from the government, they rendered services such as the extension of credit to purchasers and attention to legal details of patent requirements, which settlers regarded as sufficient to offset the additional price. The attractiveness of these lands was further augmented by Virginia's willingness to allow religious dissenters in the backcountry to practice their own beliefs.[3]

The cosmopolitan character of the Valley of Virginia was reflected in the population of Jefferson and Berkeley counties, in West Virginia. Between 25 and 40 percent of the settlers who took up lands in Jefferson County and in the eastern part of Berkeley County were Virginians of English extraction, who moved west by way of Vestal's and Ashby's gaps. Jefferson County, the most accessible to these routes of migration from eastern Virginia, received the largest English population. Berkeley County, on the other hand, attracted a greater proportion of the Scotch-Irish. Both counties absorbed a substantial part of the German migration, with Martinsburg and Mecklenburg, later known as Shepherdstown, becoming centers of German settlement. In the two counties, as a whole, the Germans and Scotch-Irish were about equal in numbers, each nationality accounting for about 30 percent of the population. By the middle 1770's settlements in which the two nationalities figured prominently had expanded far beyond the bounds of the two counties and dotted the banks of Opequon, Back, and Tuscarora creeks and the two Cacapon rivers. By that time, too, Germans and Scotch-Irish made up substantial portions of the population of the South Branch and Patterson's Creek.[4]

YOHOGANIA COUNTY, VIRGINIA

A SHORT-LIVED COUNTY

By Raymond M. Bell
Washington and Jefferson College
Washington, Pennsylvania

The publication of Yohogania County, Virginia, land grants in Pennsylvania, 1779-80, in the April-June and July-September 1963 issues of The Virginia Genealogist may cause the reader to wonder what other records exist. In 1775 the District of West Augusta was set up. In 1776 this was divided into three counties of Virginia: Monongalia, Ohio and Yohogania. The first two are now counties of West Virginia, but Yohogania was short-lived.

Yohogania County lay north of a line drawn from Follansbee, W.Va., to Washington to Brownsville to Uniontown to Laurel Hill. It lay south of the Ohio, Allegheny and Kiskiminetas rivers and was bounded on the west by the Ohio River and on the east by Laurel Hill.

Its official life ran from Oct. 1776 to Oct. 1785, but after 1780 it included only the northern part of the West Virginia panhandle, above Cross Creek. This tip became a part of Ohio County in 1785.

Washington Co., Pa., was formed 28 March 1781 and took over all legal functions from Yohogania.

The following records of Yohogania County are available:

Court actions of a wide range, including grants to Revolutionary widows, estates, etc., 23 Dec. 1776—28 Aug. 1780. Published by Boyd Crumrine in Annals of the Carnegie Museum, Pittsburgh, v. 1-3 (Pittsburgh, 1902-05); indexed by Inez Waldenmaier (Washington, 1957).

Deeds, 23 June 1777—March 1780, listed in Washington Co., Pa., Deed Book C-1 (138 pages).

Wills, 20 Nov. 1776—March 1781, listed in Washington Co., Pa., Deed Book B-1, and abstracted by Crumrine in Annals of the Carnegie Museum.

YOHOGANIA COUNTY, VIRGINIA

Yohogania County is an interesting county. Named for the Youghiogheny River, it was in existence for ten years, 1776 to 1786. From 1781 to 1786 it was only the northern tip of the West Virginia panhandle - north of Follansbee. When formed in 1776 it lay north of a line drawn from Follansbee WV to Washington PA to Brownsville PA to Uniontown PA to Markleysburg PA. It lay south of the Ohio, Allegheny and Kiskiminetas rivers, bounded on the east by Laurel Hill, on the west by the Ohio River.

The map (page 49) shows the extent of Yohogania County and the 1777 tax districts. In October 1776 Yohogania, Monongalia and Ohio counties were formed by Virginia, which claimed southwestern Pennsylvania. Parts of all of them lay within present Washington County. See map, page 50. Virginia maintained civil jurisdiction until the settlement of the boundary dispute and the formation of Washington County in March 1781. Ohio County continued with Wheeling as county seat, Monongalia with Morgantown as county seat. The little piece of Yohogania that was left officially became a part of Ohio County in October 1785, although Yohogania land grants continued until September 1786. This piece is now Hancock County and northern Brooke County in West Virginia.

In 1779-80 Virginia issued certificates to bona-fide Virginia settlers in Pennsylvania. These were recognized by the Pennsylvania authorities who made surveys and issued Pennsylvania patents. In same cases, such as Fallowfield Township (see Crumrine's History page 192, map) Virginia made surveys 1780 (see 5. below) and issued warrants 1785 (see 7. below). For the same tracts Pennsylvania made surveys 1786-88 and issued patents 1787-88. Boyd Crumrine wrote much on this. See his

Preface

In the index that follows, the location column is the the volume and page reference. Thus a location 5:023 would mean that the will in question is on page 23 of Will Book 5. Date of Will/Codicil refers to the date that the will was signed by the testator. A second date refers to the date of a codicil. If there was more than one codicil, only the date of the last one is given. Similarly, if a second date appears in the Date(s) Recorded column, that refers to the last date mentioned in the court minutes that accompany each will. Due to considerations of space, the following abbreviations have been used in the Name column to describe the indexed instrument: "Rel. Courtesy" for Release of Courtesy; "Ren." for Renunciation of Will; and "Suppl." for Supplemental Will.

Thank you for purchasing this index of the testators whose wills appear in the first ten volumes of the Monongalia County, West Virginia Will Books. I hope that it will be a useful finding aid and research planning tool. It was compiled from the indexes in each volume of the Monongalia County Will Books, and then it was checked against each page of each Will Book. It is interesting to note that I found more than a dozen wills that were either missing or misidentified in the original indexes. Many of the names had more than one spelling, and preference was given to spellings that appeared in the body of the will or in the signature. While great care has been taken to ensure accuracy, it is quite possible that mistakes may have survived the editing process. Please let me know if you find any errors, as I will correct them for future printings. I appreciate your patronage, and I hope to publish additional genealogical research aids.

UNPATENTED LAND RECORDS

MONONGALIA, YOHOGANIA, & OHIO COUNTIES

VIRGINIA

1766 - 1794

Published by

MARION COUNTY GENEALOGY

CLUB, INC.

FAIRMONT, WEST VIRGINIA

October 1988

Compiled by:
Eleanor Youst Carter
Kathleen Mahaffey Bogdan

THIS COPY OF THE INDEX TO THE UNPATENTED LANDS FOR THE COUNTIES OF MONONGALIA, YOHOGANIA, & OHIO, IN THE STATE OF VIRGINIA WAS COPIED FROM LDS CHURCH MICRO-FILM # 840856.

THIS OLD RECORD WAS FOUND AND INDEXED BY A COUNTY CLERK OF MONONGALIA COUNTY IN 1929. HIS EXPLANATION AS FOLLOWS: "THIS VOLUME IS A TRANSCRIBED COPY OF AN OLD RECORD CONTAINING THE REPORTS OF COMMISSIONERS FOR ADJUSTMENT OF CLAIMS TO UNPATENTED LANDS IN THE COUNTIES OF MONONGALIA, YOHOGANIA AND OHIO, IN THE STATE OF VIRGINIA. THIS OLD RECORD WAS FOUND BY ME, IN THE OFFICE OF THE CLERK OF THE COUNTY COURT OF MONONGALIA COUNTY, WEST VIRGINIA, IN A DILAPIDATED AND WORN CONDITION, AND IN SOME PLACES SO MUTILATED THAT THE TEXT OF THE RECORD WAS ILLEGIBLE. I HAVE HAD THE SAME TRANSCRIBED IN DUPLICATE AND INDEXED, AND THE ORIGINAL RECORD HAS BEEN REBOUND AND PRESERVED SO FAR AS IS POSSIBLE TO DO SO." SIGNED: JOHN M. GREGG, CLERK OF THE COUNTY COURT, MONONGALIA CO. WEST VIRGINIA. AUGUST 30, 1929.

WE HAVE INCLUDED A LIST OF SOME OF THE LAND LOCATIONS AND THE COUNTIES, AND COUNTY DISTRICTS WHERE THEY MIGHT BE FOUND. WEST VIRGINIA GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS & TOPO MAPS WERE USED AS REFERENCE.

WILLS OF BERKELEY COUNTY, WEST VIRGINIA
An Index: 1774 - 1880

INTRODUCTION

Berkeley County, Virginia, now West Virginia, was formed in 1772 from the parent county of Frederick. Berkeley County became a part of West Virginia in 1863, during the Civil War, when the new state was formed from the parent state of Virginia.

This book contains the index to wills (designated "w") and the various estate accounts (designated "f").

To inquire about specific documents and current copying charges, the reader should write to the Clerk's Office, Berkeley County Courthouse, Martinsburg, WV 25401.

Entries/Symbols

The surnames are indexed alphabetically, followed by individual given names. The symbols are as follows:

"w" indicates a will

"f" indicates an account such as an invention, estate, sale, etc. Each"f" stands for one document.

Lost Will Books

If the reader should locate a will or account in one of the following books: 11, 16, 18, 19 or 20, note that these books are unaccounted for and all documents therein have been lost.

building and trade in lumber are carried on extensively here. The country around it, above the marsh, is of sandy loam.

Denn's Branch, of Stow creek, a small tributary of Stow creek, Salem co., flowing westerly into its recipient by a course of 3 or 4 miles.

Denville, p-t. of Hanover t-ship, Morris co., on the right bank of the Rockaway river, 7 miles N. of Morristown, 231 N. E. from W. C., and 65 from Trenton; contains a store, tavern, cider distillery, and 6 or 8 dwellings.

Devil's Brook, small tributary of the Millstone river, in South Brunswick t-ship, Middlesex co., flowing S. W. about 5 miles to the river.

Deptford t-ship, Gloucester co., bounded N. E. by Gloucester t-ship, S. E. by Hamilton t-ship, S. W. by Greenwich t-ship, and N. W. by the river Delaware. Greatest length N. W. and S. E. 25, and breadth 7 miles; area, 57,600 acres; surface level; soil sandy: in the northern part, grass, vegetables, and fruit are successfully cultivated; the southern is chiefly pine forest, valuable for timber and cord wood. It is drained northward by Big Timber creek; Mantua creek on the west boundary; and southward by Innskeeps, Squankum, and Faraway, branches of the Great Egg Harbour river. Iron ore, and some chalybeate waters are found within 2 miles of Woodbury. Woodbury, the seat of justice for the county, Malaga, and Glassborough, are post-towns of the t-ship; population in 1830, 3599. In 1832 the township contained 449 householders, whose ratables did not exceed $30 in value, 19 stores, 8 fisheries, 6 grist mills, 1 cotton and 1 woollen manufactory, 1 carding machine, 9 saw mills, 1 ferry, 1 distillery, 1 glass factory, 1389 neat cattle, and 672 horses and mules above the age of 3 years.

Dickerson, the seat of the Hon. Mahlon Dickerson, former Governor of New Jersey, and representative of that state in the United States Senate, and the site of one of the most extensive and valuable iron mines in the state; ten miles N. W. from Morristown, Randolph t-ship, Morris county, upon the northern part, or continuation of Schooley's mountain.

Dillon's Landing, Dover t-ship, Monmouth co., on the north side of Toms' river bay, about 2 miles from its confluence with Barnegat bay.

Dividing Creek, Downe t-ship, Cumberland co., rises centrally in the t-ship, and flows southerly by a very crooked course of 10 or 12 miles, into Maurice creek cove, in Delaware bay. It is navigable to the village of Dividing Creek.

Dividing Creek, p-t. of Downe t-ship, Cumberland co., about 17 miles S. of Bridgeton, 86 from Trenton, and 192 N. E. from W. C.; contains from 25 to 30 dwellings, a store, tavern, and grist mill.

Dogtown, a mountain hamlet, on the line separating Amwell from Kingwood t-ship, Hunterdon co., 5 miles N. W. from Flemington; contains a tavern, a wheelwright shop, and two or three cottages.

Doctor's Creek, branch of the Crosswicks, rises near Clarkeville, in the eastern part of Upper Freehold t-ship, Monmouth co., and flows by a west course of about 14 miles, by Imlaystown and Allentown, to its recipient near the Sand Hills in Nottingham t-ship, Burlington co., turning several mills by the way.

Dorchester, village, of Maurice river t-ship, Cumberland co., on the left bank of the river, about 10 miles from the Delaware bay, and 20 S. E. from Bridgeton; contains between 30 and 40 dwellings, 1 tavern, and 2 stores. The soil about it is sandy.

Dorson's Brook, tributary of the north branch of Raritan river, Mendham t-ship, Morris co., having a course on and near the west t-ship line of about 4 or 5 miles.

Dover t-ship, Monmouth co., bounded N. by Howell and Freehold t-ships, E. by the Atlantic Ocean, S. by Stafford t-ship, S. W. by Northampton and Hanover t-ships, Burlington co., lington co., and flowing by a southerly course of 8 or 9 miles, to its recipient in Washington t-ship.

Egg Harbour, Little, t-ship, Burlington co., bounded N. by Oswego, or east branch of Wading river, which separates it from Northampton t-ship, S. E. by Stafford t-ship, Monmouth co., S. by Little Egg Harbour river and bay, and W. by Washington t-ship. Centrally distant from Mount Holly, S. E. 35 miles; greatest length N. and S. 20 miles; breadth E. and W. 10 miles; area, 76,800 acres, including bays and inlets; surface, level; soil, gravel and sand. The northern part of the township, called the Plains, is of the former, covered with low pines and scrub oaks, forming an excellent covert for deer and grouse, which find abundant food in the mast produced by the latter. The southern part of the t-ship is sandy, covered with forest. It is drained chiefly by branches of Little Egg Harbour river, of which Bass river is here the chief. Tuckerton, upon Shorl's mill branch, is the post-town. Population in 1830, 1490. In 1832, the t-ship contained 150 householders, whose ratables did not exceed $30; 347 taxables, 51 single men, 6 stores, 4 saw mills, 3 grist mills, 1 two horse stage, 7 dearborns, 36 covered wagons, 10 gigs and sulkies, 640 neat cattle, 170 horses and mules; and it paid state tax, $127 48; county tax, $444; road tax, $300.

Egg Harbour Bay, Little, partly in Little Egg Harbour t-ship, Burlington co., and partly in Stafford t-ship, Monmouth co.; extends about 14 miles in length, and from 2 to 4 in breadth, from Little Egg Harbour inlet to Barnegat inlet, and contains many islands, the haunts of ducks, geese, and sea-fowl.

Egg Harbour, Little, or Mullica's River, rises by several branches in Burlington and Gloucester cos.; the chief of which are Batsto river, near Burlington, Atsion river, on the boundary between the two counties, Mechescalaxin and Nesochcaque, which unite near Pleasant Mills, 25 miles from the sea. Half way below this point, Wading and Bass rivers blend with the main stream, which is navigable, for sloops, to Batsto furnace, 25 miles. The Little Egg Harbour bay and inlet, and Great bay, form a sheet of salt water, separated from the ocean by Brigantine, Tucker's and Long beaches, the communication with which, from the sea, is chiefly by the New inlet, which admits vessels of from 15 to 18 feet draught, many of which, during the late war, entered and discharged valuable cargoes. The Old inlet, to the north from Tucker's island, is now little used, except for vessels of very light burden. The collection district of Little Egg Harbour, comprehends the shores, waters, bays, rivers and creeks, from Barnegat inlet to Brigantine inlet, both inclusively. Tuckerton is the sole port of entry, at which the collector resides.

Egg Harbour River, Great, rises in Gloucester t-ship, Gloucester co., by Inskeep's branch, and flows a S. E. course through Deptford, Hamilton, Weymouth, and Egg Harbour t-ships, to the ocean, about 45 miles; receiving in its way several, but not very considerable tributaries, on either hand, and draining a wide extent of sandy soil and pine forest. It is navigable for sloops of considerable burden, above May's Landing, more than 25 miles; and from this point flows through a continued marsh. Large quantities of wood, coal, and lumber, are annually exported from this river.

Great Egg Harbour bay is entered by Great Egg Harbour inlet, between Absecum and Peck's beaches. The bay is about five miles long, and has a very irregular breadth, varying from half a mile to 4 miles. The inlet, at its mouth, is more than a mile in width, and communicates with the bay by several channels.

Egg Harbour t-ship, Gloucester co., bounded N. E. by Absecum creek, bay, and inlet, which separate it from Galloway t-ship; S. E. by the Atlantic ocean; S. W. by Great Egg Harbour inlet, bay, and river, and N.

W. by Hamilton t-ship. Centrally distant from Woodbury S. E. 48 miles; greatest length E. and W. 12; breadth N. and S. 12 miles; area, 85,000 acres, including beaches, bays, and rivers; surface level; marsh several miles in width, within the beach; sandy elsewhere, and, generally, covered with pine forest. Bargaintown and Somers' Point are post-towns of the t-ship; population in 1830, 2510. In 1832 the t-ship contained 122 householders, whose ratables did not exceed $30; 5 stores, 2 grist mills, 1 carding machine, 6 saw mills, 510 neat cattle, and 260 horses and mules; and paid county taxes, $307 59½; poor tax, $153 90; road tax, $800.

Great Egg Harbour, collection district, comprehends the river of Great Egg Harbour, together with all the inlets, bays, sounds, rivers, and creeks, along the sea coast, from Brigantine inlet to Cape May.

Egg Island, Downe t-ship, Cumberland co., Delaware bay, off the western point of Maurice Cove, of a triangular form, extending about half a mile upon each side.

Egg Island, false, a point of Downe t-ship, about 4 miles higher up the bay, than the foregoing, and which, from similarity of configuration, is often mistaken for it.

Egg Islands, Barnegat bay, Dover t-ship, Monmouth co., about 3 miles below the mouth of Toms' bay, each near a mile in length.

Eight Mile Branch, of Cedar creek, Dover t-ship, Monmouth co., rises west of the Forked mountains, and flows eastwardly to its recipient.

Elizabethtown, and t-ship, Essex co., thus named after Lady Elizabeth Carteret, the wife and executrix of Sir George Carteret. The town lies upon Elizabeth creek, 1½ miles W. from a point of fast land, running through the marsh to Staten Island Sound, and on the turnpike road and rail-road, from New Brunswick to New York, 17 miles by the post road from the former, and 15 from the latter; 42 from Trenton, and 210 from W. C.; pleasantly situated, in a level and fertile country, of clay loam; contains 400 dwellings, 3 handsome churches of brick, one belonging to the Episcopalians, and two to the Presbyterians, the first congregation of whom, is, probably, as old as the town itself; and 1 Methodist church, of wood. There were two churches in this town, in 1748, which the Swedish traveller, Kalm, preferred to any in Philadelphia: 2 temperance societies, having together 450 members, whose beneficial influence is said to be extensively felt, there not being a distillery in the t-ship, and all the respectable farmers conducting their labours without the stimulus of ardent spirit; a bank called the "State Bank at Elizabeth," with an authorized capital of $200,000, of which $132,924, have been paid in, conducted reputably and profitably; 5 taverns in the town and two at the Point; 9 stores, at none of which is ardent spirit sold; 1 book store, 2 boarding schools for girls, at which there are about 100 pupils from various parts of the country; 1 classical boarding school for boys, containing 40 boarders, under the care of the Reverend Mr. Halsey, all of which are in high repute; 2 public libraries, one religious, the other miscellaneous, called the Elizabethtown Apprentices' Library, much and advantageously used; 1 printing office, from which is issued the newspaper called the New Jersey Journal, originally founded by the venerable judge Hallock, at Chatham, in 1779, removed to this town in 1786, and conducted by him for nearly half a century; an oil mill, large grist and saw mill, 2 large saw mills for cutting mahogany, with circular saws for veneers; 2 large oil cloth manufactories, belonging to the same company; 2 earthenware, and 1 earthen and stoneware potteries; flax works, which break and dress 2 tons per day, driven by steam; a rope, twine, and cotton bagging factory, also driven by steam, and employing 20 hands; 2 tin, sheet iron, and stove length, 38; breadth, 10 miles; area, 147,000 acres; surface level, and soil sandy. The sea coast is girded by Brigantine beach, within which, for a depth of seven miles, is a space covered with lagunes and salt meadows. Among the small lakes, Absecum, Reed's and Grass bays, are the most considerable. The remainder of the township is chiefly covered with pine forest, through which flow many streams of water, tributary to Little Egg Harbour river. Pleasant Mills, Leed's Point, Gloucester Furnace, Absecum and Smith's Landing, are villages of the township. Population, in 1830, 2960; and in 1820, only 1895, presenting an instance of the greatest increase in the state. In 1832, there were in the township, as reported by the assessor, 165 householders, whose ratables did not exceed $30, 7 stores, 3 grist mills, 1 cotton manufactory, 1 blast furnace, 5 saw mills, 375 neat cattle, and 205 horses and mules over three years of age.

Georgetown, hamlet of Mansfield t-ship, Burlington co., near the N. E. boundary line, 6 miles S. E. from Bordentown, and 9 N. E. from Mount Holly.

Georgia, a small hamlet of Freehold t-ship, Monmouth co., 5 miles S. from Freehold town.

German Valley, Washington t-sp, Morris county, and in Schooley's mountain. It is about 10 miles long, varying, in width, from one to two miles. The soil is grey limestone throughout, and is well cultivated, and highly productive. The inhabitants are of German descent, and retain the industrious and thrifty habits of their ancestors. The valley is drained by the south branch of the Raritan river, and is crossed by the turnpike road from Morristown to Easton, which passes through the post town of Washington, lying in the vale. There is a Presbyterian church here.

Gibson's Creek, small tributary flowing eastwardly into the Great Egg Harbour river, Weymouth t-ship, Gloucester co.

Glassboro', p-t. of Franklin t-ship, Gloucester co., 14 miles S. E. from Woodbury, 22 from Camden, 49 from Trenton, and 155 from W. C.; contains an Episcopal and Methodist church, 2 glass houses or factories which make hollow ware, belonging to Messrs. Stangeer & Co., 1 tavern, 2 stores, and about 30 dwellings.

Gloucester County, was first laid off in 1677, forming one of the only two counties of West Jersey; and its boundaries were fixed by the act of 21st of January, 1709–10: beginning at the mouth of Pensaukin creek; thence, running up the same to the fork thereof; thence along the bounds of Burlington co., to the sea; thence along the sea coast to Great Egg Harbour river; thence up said river to the fork thereof; thence up the southernmost and greatest branch of the same to the head thereof; thence upon a direct line to the head of Old Man's creek; thence down the same to the Delaware river; thence up Delaware river to the place of beginning. It is, therefore, bounded N. W. by the Delaware river, N. E. by Burlington co., S. E. by the Atlantic ocean, and S. W. by the counties of Cumberland and Salem. Greatest length, from Absecum inlet, on the S. E. to Red Bank, on the N. W. 55 miles: greatest breadth, from the head of the Great Egg Harbour bay, to Tuckahoe river, 30 miles; area, 1114 square miles, or 713,000 acres. Central lat. 39° 40′, N. long. from W. C. 2° 10′, E.

The whole county pertains to the alluvial formation. Along the shores of the Delaware, and for several miles inward, a black or dark green mud is raised even from a depth of forty feet, in which reeds and other vegetables, the evidences of river alluvion, are distinctly visible. The remaining part of the county seems to have been gained from the sea; and beds of shells, whole and in a state of disintegration, are found, at various depths, in many places. The green earth, or marl, in which these are imbedded together with the shells, are used with great advantage upon the soil, especially in the cultivation of grass, clover particularly. Bog iron ore is found near Woodbury, and exported for manufacture.

The surface is uniformly level, except where worn down by the streams, and the soil sandy; having, on the N. W. an admixture of loam or clay, in many places. S. E. of a line drawn about 7 miles from the Delaware river, N. E. across the county, the country is universally sandy and covered by a pine forest, generally, (but with occasional cleared patches of greater or less extent,) from which large quantities of timber and cord wood are taken for market. Along the coast, within the beach, is a strip of marsh of an average width of four miles, in which are lagunes, the chief of which are Grass, Reed's, Absecum, and Lake's bays.

The county is drained southwardly by Maurice river, which flows from it, through Cumberland county, into the Delaware bay; by Tuckahoe river, forming the line between it and Cumberland; by Great and Little Egg Harbour rivers, which rise far north in the county, and empty into the Atlantic; the latter, throughout its whole course, forming the boundary between Gloucester and Burlington counties. All these streams are navigable some miles from the sea, and afford great facilities in transporting the lumber and cord wood, the most valuable products of this region, to market. Their inlets, and the small bays on the coast, abound with oysters and clams, the fishing for which gives subsistence to many of the inhabitants. These rivers have also many tributaries, which intersect the forest in almost every direction. The streams on the N. W. are Oldman's, Raccoon, Little Timber, Repaupo, Clonmell, Mantua, Big Timber, Newton, Cooper's and Pensauken creeks, most of which are navigable for a short distance, and furnish outlets for an amazing quantity of fruit and garden truck and firewood, for the supply of the Philadelphia market, and other towns on the western side of the river.

The post towns of the township are, Absecum, Bargaintown, Camden, an incorporated city, Carpenter's Landing, Chew's Landing, Clarkesboro', Glassboro', Gloucester Furnace, Gravelly Landing, Haddonfield, Hammonton, Jackson Glassworks, Leeds' Point, Longacoming, Malaga, May's Landing, Mullica Hill, Pleasant Mills, Smith's Landing, Somers' Point, Stephens' Creek, Sweedsboro, Tuckahoe, and Woodbury, the seat of justice of the county.

There are several academies for teaching the higher branches of education; and primary schools in most of the agricultural neighbourhoods. There are also established, Sunday schools, in most, if not all, of the populous villages; a county bible society, various tract societies, and many temperance associations; which have almost rendered the immoderate use of ardent spirits infamous.

In 1832, by the report of the assessors, the county contained 3075 householders, whose ratables did not exceed $30 in value; 978 single men, 102 stores, 21 fisheries, 45 grist mills, 2 cotton and 2 woollen manufactories, 4 carding machines, 4 blast furnaces, 3 forges, 63 saw mills, 4 fulling mills, 8 ferries, 9 tan yards, 29 distilleries, 7 glass factories, 2 four horse stage wagons, 967 covered wagons with fixed tops, 204 riding chairs, gigs, sulkies, and pleasure carriages, 4 two horse stage wagons, 31 dearborns with steel, iron, or wooden springs; and it paid county tax, $10,000; poor tax, $5000; and road tax, $15,000; state tax, ——

By the census of 1830 Gloucester co. contained 28,431 inhabitants, of whom 13,916 were white males; 12,962 white females; 14 female slaves; 835 free coloured males; 714 free coloured females. Of these there were deaf and dumb, under 14 years, 64; above 14 and under 30, 73; above 25 years, 80; blind, 205 white, 22 black; aliens 3365.

There is a county poor house established upon a farm near Blackwoodstown, but in Deptford t-ship, containing more than 200 acres of land.

The following extract from the records of this county, presents singular features of the polity of the early settlers. It would seem that the inhabitants of the county deemed themselves a body politic, a democratic commonwealth, with full power of legislation, in which the courts participated, prescribing the punishment for each offence, as it was proven before them.

Gloucester, the 28th May, 1686.

By the proprietors, freeholders, and inhabitants of the third and fourth tenths, (alias county of Gloucester) then agreed as follows:

Inprimus. That a court be held for the jurisdiction and limits of the aforesaid tenths, or county, one time at Axwamus, alias Gloucester, and at another time at Red Bank.

Item. That there be four courts, for the jurisdiction aforesaid, held in one year, at the days and times hereafter mentioned, viz: upon the first day of the first month, upon the first day of the fourth month, and the first day of the seventh month, and upon the first day of the tenth month.

Item. That the first court shall be held at Gloucester aforesaid, upon the first day of September next.

Item. That all warrants and summons shall be drawn by the clerk of the court, and signed by the justice, and so delivered to the sheriff or his deputy to execute.

Item. That the body of each warrant, &c., shall contain or intimate the nature of the action.

Item. That a copy of the declaration be given along with the warrant, by the clerk of the court, that so the deft. may have the longer time to consider the same, and prepare his answer.

Item. That all summons and warrants, &c., shall be served, and declarations given, at least ten days before the court.

Item. That the sheriff shall give the jury summons six days before the court be held, in which they are to appear.

Item. That all persons within the jurisdiction aforesaid, bring into the next court the marks of their hogs, and other cattle, in order to be approved and recorded.

Rex vs. Wilkes. Indict. at Gloucester Ct. N. J. 10 Sept. 1686, for stealing goods of Dennis Lins, from a house in Philadelphia. Dft. pleads guilty, but was tried by jury. Verdict guilty, and that prisoner ought to make pay't. to the prosecutor of the sum of sixteen pounds. Sentence. The bench appoints that said Wilkes shall pay the aforesaid Lins, £16 by way of servitude, viz: if he will be bound by indentures to the prosecutor, then to serve him the term of four years, but if he condescended not thereto, then the court awarded that he should be a servant, and so abide for the term of five years. And so be accommodated in the time of his servitude, by his master, with meat, drink, clothes, washing, and lodging, according to the customs of the country, and fit for such a servant.

In 1832 the county was divided into 12 t-ships as in the following table, to which Camden is now to be added.

Gloucester, t-ship, Gloucester co., bounded N. by Gloucestertown, N. E. by Hereford t-ship, S. E. by Hamilton, and S. W. and W. by Deptford t-ship. Centrally distant S. E. from Woodbury, 10 miles; greatest length N. W. and S. E. 20; breadth 8 miles E. and W.; area, about 60,000 acres; surface, level; soil, sand more or less mixed with loam, and in the northern part cultivated in vegetables and fruit, the southern being chiefly pine forest, valuable for timber and fuel. It is drained northward by Cooper's creek on the eastern, and Big Timber creek on the western boundary, southward by Inskeep's branch of the Great Egg Harbour river. Chew's Landing, Longacoming, Clementon, Blackwoodtown, Tansborough, and New Freedom, are villages of the t-ship; the two first post-towns. Population in 1830, 2232. In 1832, there were in the t-ship, including Gloucestertown, 781 householders, whose ratables did not exceed $30 in value; 11 stores, 5 grist mills, 9 saw mills, 2 tanneries, and 1 glass factory; and it paid county tax, $799 78; poor tax, $400 73; road tax, $1000.

Gloucestertown, small t-ship of Gloucester co., bounded N. by Newton, E. and S. E. by Gloucester t-ship, S. W. by Big Timber creek, which separates it from Deptford t-ship, and W. by the river Delaware. Centrally distant N. E. from Woodbury 4 miles; greatest length E. and W. 4; breadth N. and S. 3 miles.

Gloucester, small town of Gloucester t-ship, Gloucester co., on the Delaware river opposite Gloucester point; contains a fishery, a ferry from which a team-boat plies, about 20 dwellings, 1 store, and 1 tavern.

Gloucester, post-town and furnace of Galloway t-ship, Gloucester co., upon Landing creek, a branch of the Mullica or Little Egg Harbour river, 36 miles S. E. from Woodbury, 71 from Trenton, and 179 from W. C.; contains a furnace, grist and saw mill, a store, tavern, and a number of dwellings, chiefly for the accommodation of the workmen, of whom there are about 60, constantly employed, whose families may amount to 300 persons. The furnace makes annually about 800 tons of iron, chiefly castings, and has annexed to it about 25,000 acres of land.

Glover's Pond, Hardwick t-ship, Warren co., the extreme source of Beaver brook.

Godwinsville, Franklin t-ship, Bergen co., upon Goffle brook, 8 miles N. W. from Hackensack; contains 1 tavern, 2 stores, 7 cotton mills, having together 5000 spindles, and from

A History of Gloucester County
New Jersey

HAZEL B. SIMPSON, Editor

WOODBURY, NEW JERSEY
BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS
GLOUCESTER COUNTY, NEW JERSEY

Gloucester County Since 1680

The concept of freedom among English speaking people, achieved at Runemede in 1215, followed the early settlers to the New World, and the result of their thinking and effort became the most precious heritage in American democracy. The pursuit of liberty was never abandoned even in the smallest body politic. It is, therefore, understandable that the inhabitants of Old Gloucester County should display concern about control of local government and move to secure their own courts.

Few settlers had arrived in New Jersey before communities were laid out, churches and schools erected, or manufacturing adventures were begun. Today only a fraction of this early enterprise has grown to importance and most has been long forgotten, for as the country was settled and became better known and as its various advantages became apparent by a progressive people, constant changes occurred; the old was abandoned for the new.

Old Gloucester County had only one real town in the true sense of the term, and that was Gloucester Town. Many of the other settlements were merely districts, Woodbury being indicated on many early maps merely as a post office.

According to the plan agreed upon in London on the "26th day of the 6th month 1670," West New Jersey was divided into Tenths, and out of the subdivision evolved the counties. Direction for dividing the land was set down thus:

> . . . Then let it be surveyed and divided into one hundred parts, lots, or proprieties; for that is the method we have agreed to take, and we cannot alter it. . . .
> This new divided moiety is to be cast into one hundred parts, lots, or proprieties; ten of which upon the agreement made betwixt E. Byllinge and J. Fenwick, were settled and conveyed unto J. Fenwick. . . . The ninety parts remaining are exposed to sale on the behalf of creditors of the said E. B. . . .
> . . . And you all to advice together, and find out a fit place to take up for a town, and agree with natives for a tract of land; and then let it be surveyed and divided into one hundred parts; for that is the method we have agreed to take and we cannot alter it. . . .

Accordingly, the division was authorized by the Commissioners during February, 1681. The provincial surveyor was directed, at that time, to divide the river front between the Assunpink Creek and Cape May into Tenths, each of which was to contain ten proprieties; the surveyor was directed to > . . . Measure the front of the river Delaware, beginning at Assunpink creek, and from thence down to Cape May, that the point of the compass may be found for the running of partition lines betwixt each.

> . . . Each and every tenth or ten proprieties, shall have the proportion of the front to the river Delaware, and so far back into the woods as will make or contain sixty-four thousand acres of the first settlement, and for the sub-dividing the Yorkshire and London tenths.

The surveyor followed these instructions but found upon examination that the Sixth Tenth was located within the area of present Cumberland County. And because it was an unoccupied territory, he was unable to survey the remaining four Tenths within the limits of the Cape May peninsula. The original plan, however, had met the immediate, necessary requirements for the "upriver settlements" that sent representatives for several years.

The original Tenths of West Jersey were the First and Second Tenths, comprising Burlington County, the Third and Fourth Tenths, comprising Gloucester County, and the Salem Tenth.

None of the land east of Salem Tenth was included in any organized community until the establishment of Cape May was authorized by the Act of Assembly, passed November 12, 1692. This delay was caused by the lack of population, according to data, the earliest period of habitation in that region was 1685.

The desire of the people of the Third and Fourth Tenths to govern themselves led them, as the Salem and Burlington Tenths had done, to petition the Burlington Assembly to grant them jurisdiction with court officers. They were, in short, aware of the importance of progressing politically, socially, and economically. Thus there is found in the Minutes of the Assembly:

> Decimo Quinto Die
> The members of the assembly for the third and fourth Tenths request they May have power to keep Courts for the third and fourth Tenth.
> Whereupon the Querry being put to the house whether they Judge it Convenient or not. The voat Carryes. It in Affirmative that they may keep courts.
> Resolved that there be a Court kept for the third and fourth Tenths, one time the same to be held att newton & the other time at Red Bank & William Warner is Chosen Sheriff of the Jurisdiction & John Reading Clerk thereof.

Both the Third and Fourth Tenths were represented by ten members each in the West Jersey Assembly.

On examination of the instrument, one learns that the system of organization is patterned after the primitive custom followed by the Anglo-Saxons in the creation or establishment of their shires. This same system also prevailed in the organization of other counties in New Jersey.

The courts for the Third and Fourth Tenths were organized and officers selected in May, 1686. Each Tenth was represented by ten members in the West Jersey Assembly. As a body politic, they adopted the name of Gloucester, derived from the Celtic, glaw caer, "handsome city."

Three meetings were held at Red Bank:

> Red Bank on the 10th day of the 10th month by adjournment from the first day of the same month. [There was, however,] no full bench at the first meeting, [and] another meeting was held on the 1st of 4th month Anno 1687.

The exigencies of the time demanded the use of these movable courts to serve a young, growing colony. Private homes, inns, and taverns became the locations for court sessions.

Red Bank was abandoned as a place for holding courts, however, because of its inconvenient location in the hinterland, and Gloucester Town, being more accessible, became the shire town.

Although first laid out officially in 1677, it was not until 1694 that the name Gloucester was officially designated. Two laws were enacted at that time, creating Gloucester County, which in extent reached from the Delaware River to the Atlantic Ocean, and from Pensauken Creek to Oldman's Creek. As to the law there is found:

> . . . That the distinctions or divisions heretofore called the Third and Fourth Tenths be and are hereby laid into one county, named, and from henceforth to be called, the County of Gloucester; the limits hereto bounded with the aforesaid river called Crapwell (formerly called Penisawkin), on the north, and the River Berkley (formerly called Oldman's Creek), on the south.

Another law passed the same year extended the area to include the present Atlantic County, at that time known as Egg Harbour.

Cape May records for 1692 bear evidence of its jurisdiction over Egg Harbour:

> Foreasmuch as there are some families settled upon Egg Harbour, and of right ought to be under some jurisdiction, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid that the inhabitants of the said Egg Harbour shall be and belong to the jurisdiction of Gloucester to all intends and purposes, till such time as they shall be capable, by a competent number of inhabitants, to be erected into a county, and former act to the contrary not withstanding.

According to Allinson, Egg Harbour continued in its independence until 1710 when another law was made which incorporated it with Gloucester County.

Originally, Gloucester County did not extend all the way from the Delaware to the Atlantic Ocean. In 1692, however, two laws were enacted relating to the limits of Gloucester County:

> . . . That the distinction or division called the Third and Fourth Tenths be and is hereby laid into one county, named, and from henceforth to be called, the County of Gloucester.

By separate acts of Assembly, a law passed on May 17, 1694, the boundaries of Burlington, Salem, Gloucester, and Cape May Counties were established and the Tenths finally abolished, but there are no definite records to show when and how the change was effected.

The jurisdiction of the County was strengthened a year later, in 1695, when with the passage of an act by the Assembly, division into constablewicks or townships was devised. According to a court record of June 1, 1695, the original townships were Deptford, Gloucester, Newton, and Waterford:

> The Grand Jury Returns & Present that, whereas there was a law made the last Assembly for Dividing of the Countie into particular Constablewicks or Townships . . ., Gloucester is being another Constablewick or Township . . . to all which the Bench Assents.

But even prior to the formation of the counties and the establishment of townships, a township had existed in the Swedish Settlement. The district known as Stockholme Township, bordering on the Stockholme River, was in the Fourth Tenth or lower half of Old Gloucester County. A tax list bearing the date, June 15, 1687, divides its territory thus: "On the lower side of Stockholme River," "on the upper side of Stockholme River," and "in Stockholme Township." The collectors listed on the tax list were Anthony Neilson and Andrew Robeson, Jr. It listed the land owners of the township with the acreage of land and number of cattle.

Before 1709, a number of townships had been organized, and the act of January 1, 1709, accurately defined the boundaries for several counties, one of which was Gloucester. Almost a hundred years later, by the act of March 9, 1798, provisions were made for ascertaining the bounds of each county and township. If dispute relative to them should arise after counties and townships had been made "bodies corporate by the act of February 21, 1798," they were allowed to sue or be sued by a process left entirely to the county clerk.

Original Deptford Township

Deptford Township, one of the original townships, was named after a seaport in England. The old Deptford included what is today West Deptford, Westville, Woodbury, Woodbury Heights, Washington Township, and Monroe Township. It was incorporated on June 1, 1695.

Three other townships of Old Gloucester County incorporated at the same time were Newton, Waterford, and Egg Harbour. Egg Harbour, called New Waymouth until the early 1800's, comprised all the territory of present Atlantic County. In 1708 the Grand Jury appointed officers for Egg Harbour, an independent territory, which constituted an act of usurpation. The people, however, lodged no complaint nor offered resistance to the action. Egg Harbour, or New Waymouth, was divided February 12, 1798, as follows:

Galloway Township

Galloway Township was incorporated April 2, 1774. The first mention of Galloway in county records appears when the Court allotted her two constables, as well as two to Egg Harbour. The name apparently derives from the name of a tongue of land in Solway Frith, Scotland, called Galloway Mull.

Egg Harbour

From the Dutch, Eyer Haven, Egg Harbour was so named by early navigators who found immense deposits of seabird eggs upon the seashore, according to Gabriel Thomas. In 1694, Egg Harbour, which had been independent, was placed under the jurisdiction of Gloucester County, and on February 12, 1798, it was decided to form a new township, which took the name, Weymouth.

Hamilton

Hamilton was incorporated from Egg Harbour and Weymouth on February 5, 1813.

Mullica Township

Mullica Township was erected from Galloway on February 21, 1838.

With the creation of Atlantic County as a separate entity in 1837, Old Gloucester County lost one-half of its territory.

Gloucester Town

The town of Gloucester began by prescription as a constablewick as early as 1685. The first colonial incorporation took place June 1, 1695, and subsequently a State legislative act incorporated it in 1798 as a township of the State and acknowledged it as such. The township of Gloucestertown and a portion of Gloucester Township were laid together under the name of Union Township. Thus Union Township was incorporated November 15, 1831. On February 25, 1868, it was consolidated under Gloucester City.

Camden Township

Camden Township was incorporated on February 21, 1831 and consolidated with the City of Camden on February 25, 1848.

Waterford Township

Waterford Township was incorporated on June 1, 1695.

Newton Township

Newton was incorporated on June 1, 1695. Part of this was conveyed to the City of Camden on March 1, 1871 by annexation, and the remainder of it was conveyed to Haddonfield on the same date.

Delaware Township

Delaware was incorporated on February 28, 1844.

In 1844, too, the people in the northern portion of Old Gloucester County formed a jurisdiction of their own, and thus Camden County was set off, reducing Old Gloucester County again by one-half, making it as it is today.

CLAYTON

Originally Clayton was settled by Felix Fisler, and it was known as Fisler Town until 1850 when it was changed to Fislerville. Early in the 19th century, Benjamin Beckett and Jacob Fisler established a glass factory on an eighty acre site that they had purchased. In October, 1820, they began the operation of the factory on a small scale. After one blast, within less than a year of operation, in July, 1851, the firm was dissolved because of Mr. Beckett's withdrawal from the partnership. Jacob Fisler then associated himself with Edward Bacon of Philadelphia, and the firm took the name, Fisler and Bacon. This firm continued until 1856 when Bacon died in a Camden and Amboy Railroad accident at Burlington.

The Post Office was established on April 23, 1852. In 1858, Clayton was created a township by Legislature. Before this, it was a part of Franklin Township, and the township of Glassboro was struck off on March 11, 1878.

Efforts to change the earlier name began in 1860. Several years later the name was changed, when "it was unanimously decided to change . . . from Fislerville to Clayton," the name of the Post Office having previously been changed to Clayton.

As early as 1883, agitation began for the incorporation as a borough, and in 1887, a borough government was adopted. The same year a borough election was held.

In January, 1856, John M. Moore came to Clayton from Millville and purchased the stock of J. P. Fisler, renting the property at first. A few months later he purchased the real estate, and John M. Moore remained sole owner until April, 1859. It was at that time that George C. Hewitt and Jeremiah D. Hogate associated themselves with the business and the works became known as John M. Moore and Company. In the fall of 1863, Hewitt sold his interest to D. Wilson Moore, brother of John, and the business was then known as Moore Brothers Company. Hogate sold his interest to the two brothers and the firm of Moore Brothers was established.

According to an advertisement of 1876, the brothers were the makers of druggists' and perfumers' glassware; wine, porter, and mineral-water bottles, pickle, preserve, and jelly jars; and all kinds of patent, tight fruit jars. The brothers had four glass factories, a mold room, machine shop, saw mill, box factory, packing house, ware sheds, wagon sheds, stables, a store, clay house, coal shed, and offices.

The art of glass making has not lost its appeal in South Jersey. In 1930, three Clevenger brothers, William Elbert, Thomas, and Lorenzo, recreated interest in fine pieces. Using the shed of the family homestead, they constructed two serviceable furnaces and revived methods developed by South Jersey pioneers in the industry. They secured old molds and began making replicas of old glass. Their pieces became popular with collectors from far and near.

DEPTFORD TOWNSHIP

Deptford takes its name from a small town in Kentshire, England, where Peter the Great of Russia served his apprenticeship at shipbuilding. The present township has a population of 17,871.

Deptford, being a part of Old Gloucester County, was settled by the same admixture of peoples with religious differences and prejudices as in the County as a whole. All poured into a melting pot to form a cosmopolitan society. The first were the Dutch, Swedes, Finns and English, but many other cultures came later.

Most of the early settlers were religious, and church discipline held a powerful influence over the lives of the people. The church exerted restraint upon all forms of amusements both on its members and upon those outside the fold. Church law forbade dancing, card playing, all forms of gaming and gambling, all forms of dramatics and theatre-going.

The nationalities, however, were becoming Americanized in the more metropolitan communities. There was a fusion of elements as each group assumed an interest in communal affairs. People began to relax in the prevailing pleasures as they began to associate with other communities, growing less and less puritanical. A sense of freedom grew, therefore, among people whose objectives could be achieved only through unity.

Horse racing led all the sports in the New Jersey colonies, although fox hunting, fishing contests, boxing, fencing, and wrestling were also enjoyed. It was the interest in the breeding of both race horses and farm horses, the latter central to the chief occupation, which motivated the employment of the horses head in the Great Seal of New Jersey, adopted in 1776.

Oak Valley

Oak Valley was created on the site of the old Oak Valley Country Club. It is a new settlement between Wenonah and the Turnpike. In 1961, the State Board of Education approved the site for a proposed new Oak Valley school, "to be erected by means of a bond issue of $1,640,000. $315,000 was designated for elementary school expansion of 14 rooms, and $1,236,000 for a 30-room Junior High School.

EAST GREENWICH TOWNSHIP

The home of the Township Committee of East Greenwich is Clarksboro, named in honor of Jeffery Clark, the pioneer who settled there in March, 1779, whose home is still standing in what has become East Greenwich. The township has fine farms and pleasant residential communities. The township, taken from Old Greenwich and the western part of Mantua Township, was established on February 10, 1881, by Legislature and has a current population of 2,722.

Clarksboro

The Cohawken Road, which passes through Clarksboro, was laid out in 1816: ". . . Three rods wide originally bearing the Indian name, Cohocking, known in later years as the Lawrenceville (now Jefferson) and Berkley Turnpike."

Here at Clarksboro, too, is the County Home, known as Shady Lane since 1961. But it was as early as 1779 that the County decided to erect a poor house, "the more economically to enable poor persons who are, or may be, a public charge to said County to be provided for the sd County. . . ." Several months later it was ordered "to make inquiry for a suitable place to purchase or build a Poor House." Several years later a contract was let for the erection of an Almshouse "within eighteen months from date of agreement, which was on the 1st day of April last." Two years later a report stated that "They had completed the sd house . . . agreeable to Contract" at what is today Lakeland.

With the separation of Camden from Old Gloucester in 1844 it became necessary to divide the public buildings also, but it wasn't until fifteen years later that the two counties began to consider the disposition of the property. In 1860, it was "ordered to make sale of the Alms House property and for the same by the 22d instant. . . ." Later, commissioners were appointed to meet with the Camden Commissioners "to dispose of the joint property of the Camden and Gloucester Counties. . . ." Two weeks later the Freeholders "Resolved that the Commissioners sell at public sale the property belonging to the Counties of Camden and Gloucester. . . .," for the value of $32,446.15. After the sale of the property at Lakeland, the Gloucester County Freeholders searched for a new site to establish an almshouse in the County. They purchased the 179.1 acre Elizabeth Lippincott farm lying on Edward's Creek near Clarksboro, for the price of $6,420. It was one of seven possible sites considered. The farm had on its premises a three-story, red-brick dwelling and the family burial place; the latter is still undisturbed. A new building was erected at a cost of $11,750, and after completion the Committee was dismissed.

On April 15, 1945, a new building, to cost $250,000, was proposed. It was completed on April 1, 1962 and named Shady Lane, the name having been decided upon at the August, 1961 meeting of the Freeholders.

When the building was first erected, the water for it was secured from the famous Rattlesnake Spring on the premises. This was a fountain of pure water issuing from a rock and supplied the wants of the County Home. The newest addition to Shady Lane is the Childrens' Shelter, completed and dedicated in 1963.

Mickleton

Upper Greenwich was the original name for Mickleton. It was named for William and Samuel Mickle who had settled here in 1796. They owned the land upon which the village stands. William Mickle erected a store of modern design, later destroyed by fire, opposite the Friends Meeting House.

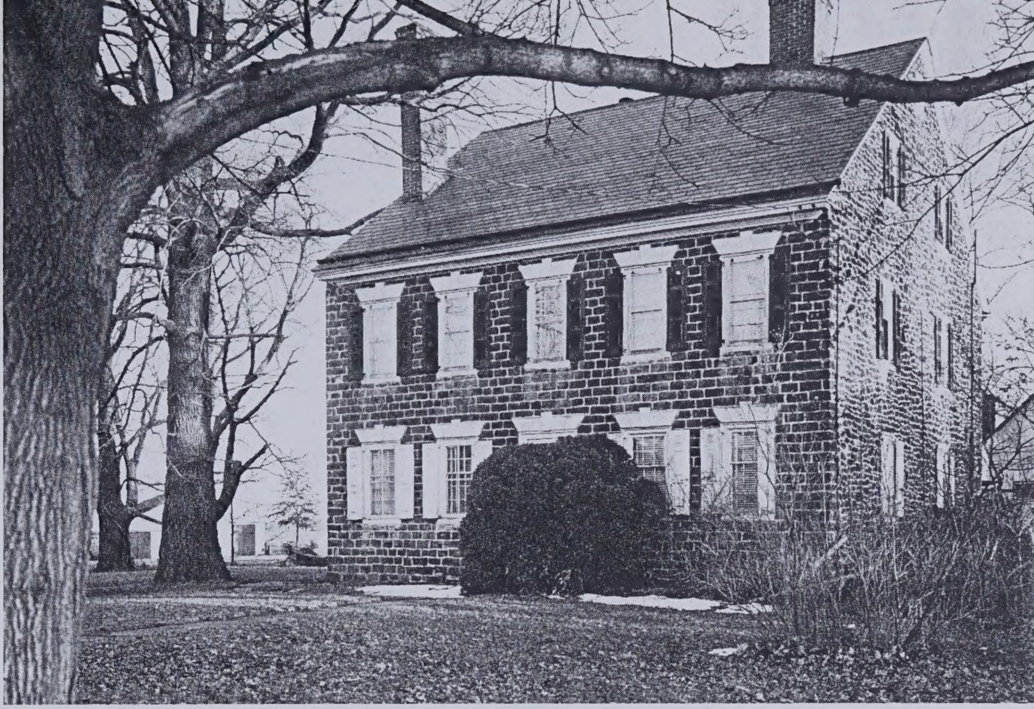
A Friends Meeting "was established at Upper Greenwich in 1740." A small frame building was erected on ground given by Solomon Lippincott at the Solomon Lippincott's Graveyard. This 1740 meeting house was eventually damaged beyond repair, but the graveyard is still there in good condition.

Another Meeting house, of red brick, and still standing today, was erected in 1798. The land for this was conveyed February 5, 1795. It is a silent tribute to the high ideals of the Friends calm design.

In 1808 these Friends built a red brick schoolhouse at the rear of the Meeting House. The ground was given by Samuel Tonkin and Samuel Mickle. It was used by the Friends School Improvement until 1910. Changes were made by Amos Peaslee who remodeled it and made additions in 1945.

Mickleton became popular about 1835 through Edward Tonkin who had purchased the famous Bodo Otto House and farm. He raised a pair of exceedingly large oxen, "The Earl of Jersey" and "The Duke of Gloucester." These were superior cattle. "Duke"

BODO OTTO HOUSE, Kings Highway, Mickleton. Dr. Bodo Otto, of Luneburg, Province of Hanover, Prussia, came to America 1752. In 1772 his son Bodo Otto, Jr., purchased one hundred acres of land for four hundred ninety-seven pounds the property of William Scull who had purchased the same 1766 from Benjamin Lodge, at Mickleton. Here Dr. Bodo Otto, Jr., who served as a surgeon in Washington's Army at Valley Forge, lived. During 1777 when the Tory invasion took place this place was partially burned. The original property dates back to 1688.



weighed 3750 pounds and the "Earl" 3800 pounds, and the Salem Stage coach stopped occasionally to permit travelers to see the immense beasts. One Sunday, at least a thousand sightseers were counted. A victualer of Washington, D.C. bought these oxen for $3,500., and it required twenty horses and mules to draw the wagon containing the animals to Camden where they were loaded on a boat for shipment.

Bodo Otto, the former owner of the place, was a doctor and a colonel in the American Army. He had bought the home from the sheriff in 1772 for £497 proclamation money. Young Otto was appointed surgeon of the Battalion under Colonel Charles Reed in 1776 and served in Washington's command at Valley Forge in July, 1776. A letter, dated from Valley Forge, still survives:

> My darling wife:
> I miss you and the children. I miss your good cooking.
> Here I have to change the order of my courses to get variety. For breakfast we have bacon and smoke, for lunch smoke and bacon, and for supper smoke.

His home was burned by the British upon their return in 1777. Bodo Otto did not repair the home owing to the troublesome times, and he died in a house nearby, at the Death of the Fox, January 29, 1782 at the age of 34, a result of exposure while at Valley Forge. He was buried in the old Trinity Cemetery at Swedesboro. His home eventually passed to Samuel Tonkin.

John C. Otto, son of Bodo, and also a prominent physician, was born near Woodbury. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1792.

The Bond and Peaslee Houses are located on the Woodbury-Swedesboro Road, formerly the Great Road; one on either side of the highway between Clarksboro and Mickleton. They are about two hundred years old. It is said that they were built of hand-formed bricks burned nearby. The houses have high pitched, gable roofs. Original supports and rafters crown the buildings.

Former occupants of the houses, confirmed Quakers, known for their hatred of fighting and oppression, sheltered war victims during the Revolution. Each home provided a haven for colonial refugees who remained there while waiting for the Red Coats to evacuate the countryside.

Immediately after the War, Friends identified themselves with the abolitionists and their homes were suspected of being the leading stations of the Underground Railroad in South Jersey.

Mount Royal

The first building after crossing Mantua Creek at Mount Royal "on the Mail Stage Road from Philadelphia to Salem," was the tavern kept by Theophulus Hillman. It was also known as the Heart and Hand Tavern as well as the Rising Sun. In 1899 it was known as the Sickler Hotel, the Blue Anchor Hotel, or the Berkley House at Mount Royal." It is now known as the Berkley Hotel.

It was from the Berkley Hotel, then known as the Lacy House, that Brigadier General William T. Cozens issued a general order in 1869. The tavern served at that time as the Army Headquarters of New Jersey.

In 1809, the Parish was admitted to the Convention. The cornerstone for the second edifice, St. Thomas Church, was laid on Saturday afternoon, April 18, 1846. A new Parish House was erected in 1954.

GREENWICH TOWNSHIP

Greenwich Township, with a present population of 4,065, is the oldest township in Gloucester County. It was incorporated on March 1, 1694, according to the following request:

> The inhabitants between Great Mantoes Creek and Barclay River, request that the same division be made and laid into a township, hence forth to be known by the name of the Township of Greenwich; and the same to be so recorded. To wch. the Bench assents and order the same to be done.

Originally constituted by Royal Charter, Greenwich Township was created a few years after the erection of the County out of the Third and Fourth Tenths. At one time it covered one-third of the county and included within its borders the present Logan Township, Woolwich Township, and Paulsboro.

Gibbstown

The seat of government for Greenwich Township, Gibbstown, is laid out on a street lined with frame houses with no distinct type of architecture. It takes its name from Edward Gibbs, the blacksmith, a large landowner of the vicinity, about 1800. It was a small hamlet on the Delaware River Railroad, which until the advent of the railroad in 1880 had not enjoyed the benefits of the powder works. But in the "spring of 1886 there were 21 houses with a population of 127." The inhabitants were employed chiefly by the DuPont Company which had begun operation in 1880. In the newspapers of the time, it was > reported that the purchasers of property along the Delaware, near Gibbstown, intend to engage in the manufacture of giant powder and nitroglycerine, and not fertilizer, as has been rumored. The new works near Gibbstown will employ men enough to make a good sized settlement. New houses for the operators will be erected on the tract, which measures nearly 700 acres.

Later,

> The Gibbstown enterprise by the Messrs. DuPont known as the 'Repauno Chemical Works' on the Delaware River has commenced operation. It is not yet in full operation and besides men, women are employed in making blasting cartridges being paid 75 cents a day. This pay will be increased after they become skilled in their work. 25 women are soon to be employed but the mixing of the chemical compounding is under the personal superintendence of Mr. DuPont.

The operation of the Repauno Works, however, was not without its dangers. In 1884 an item stated that > Six men killed in the fatal Nitro-Glycerine explosion at Gibbstown, at the Repauno Chemical Company about six miles below Woodbury on the Delaware River, Blown to atoms Saturday morning about 10 a.m. Window-frames shattered in dwellings three and four miles from the scene of employment. No windows were broken in Gibbstown and nearly every pane of glass in the forty of the forty-five buildings connected with the works were shattered and in many of the buildings the sashes were blown completely out.

In November 1879, the Clonmell M. E. Church was dedicated.

During 1899, Gibbstown "organized a volunteer fire brigade. . . . Ladders and buckets were ordered." They had "purchased the old club house south of the station," to be "converted into suitable quarters." The brigade was officially organized on March 12, 1900.

A Post Office was dedicated on a Saturday afternoon in March 1958.

HARRISON TOWNSHIP

Taken from Greenwich and Woolwich townships in 1844, Harrison Township was first named Spicer, in honor of Jacob Spicer, the pioneer. The name was retained for only a year, however, when it became Harrison, in honor of General William Harrison, tenth President of the United States.

Ewan

Ewan is another small hamlet with many names: Ewan Mills, and Ewanville. Prior to 1861 it was notable only for the grist mill located there.

It was named for Israel Ewan who had purchased 126 acres of land from John Gibson and founded the saw and grist mills. Ewan established also a large blacksmith and wheelwright shop. In 1881 there were four blacksmiths and two wheelwrights. The entire establishment, the blacksmith, and wheelwright shop was burned to the ground in 1895.

Ewan can boast two old structures, the two Iredell Houses. The old house near the site of the mill bears the date, 1793, and the letters T. A., and R on the front peak facing the road. The initials stand for the name of the three Iredell siblings: Thomas, Ann, and Rebecca. The letter I appears above the three letters. The other Iredell house is on the opposite side of the old mill pond or lake. It is on higher ground and bears the date, 1788, with the initials T. I. A.

gans, descendants of Griffith Morgan. This one intermarried with the Coopers, Haines, Clements, Reeves, Satterthwaite Hinchman, Bennett, Eldridge and Hopkins families. It is quite hard to distinguish the lines in the last few generations.

Names and Addresses 1779 to 1789.

The few hundred ledger accounts for the first ten years of Mickle's storekeeping experiences represent, to a large degree accommodation accounts for small amounts, omitting charges to slaves and free negroes. The accounts covering a period when very little attention was paid to recording deeds, in some instances at least will give the residence of persons otherwise undeterminable, and possibly other clues. They appear somewhat alphabetically arranged, as follows:

MAP OF NEW JERSEY IN 1680.

sons of that township protesting against a new county being formed of a part of Burlington and a part of Gloucester with Clamtown (Tuckerton) as the county seat.

After the destruction of the Court House at Gloucester several petitions were circulated and signed by the voters of the Egg Harbor section of Gloucester County to the effect that a new county be struck off and that the petitioners be put to no expense for rebuilding the Court House at Gloucester and that Great Egg Harbor, Galloway and the intended township of Turkey Hoe comprise the new county. Several of the residents who had protested against the formation of a new county from the lower parts of Burlington and Gloucester counties signed the new petitions of a year later dated May 15, 1786.

The petitions alluded to the great distance to Court and other public business of the county; also the expense and inconvenience of attending the same. They stated that offenders often escaped unpunished for want of a proper place to confine them within a reasonable distance. On account of the Jail and Court House at Gloucester having been destroyed by fire and rendered useless they contended with a great deal of justice for exemption from the cost of rebuilding county buildings that were so inconveniently located for their use. Some of the principal signers were Edward Bowen, Robert, Daniel, Jonas, and Nehemiah Morss, William and Robert Burnett, Micajah, Nathan, and Enos Smith, Nathan, David, and John Dennis, Alexander Benit, Richard Collins, Thomas Rinnard, John Steward, John McCollom and Thomas Clark, Jr.

There were over one hundred signers to the different petitions asking for a division of the county. The original papers are at the State House at Trenton. In October, 1919, a petition was filed at Trenton asking for the privilege of voting on the question of removing the Court House, Jail and public offices from Woodbury to Camden. Committees were appointed at a meeting held at the Court House November 22nd, to remonstrate against the idea of making Camden the County Seat. The petition to the legislature was withdrawn and the new Surrogate's office was built. The foundations were laid March 4, 1820, and the Gothic type building of two rooms, one of which was fireproof, was completed on May 19th following and the clamor for another County Seat was stifled until February, 1825, when the conflict was again settled by a vote which showed a majority of eight hundred and seventy-six votes, out of a total of forty-one hundred and sixty votes, in favor of Woodbury. The Egg Harbor voters favored Camden by a majority of one hundred and fifty-nine votes. The agitation commenced by the citizens of the seashore section of Old Gloucester County in 1785, finally resulted in the formation of a new county for their benefit over half a century later.

When Atlantic County was set apart from Gloucester County by act of Legislature in February, 1837, the Almshouse properties, Court House, and Jail and other county properties were valued at $32,128.00 The debts of the county were $7,932.55 and an adjustment was made with Atlantic County on the basis of these figures and the populations of the two counties based on the population as shown by the census of 1830.

Camden on account of the advantages gained by use of its ferries was naturally a convenient place for the transaction of public affairs and finally encouraged by the efforts of the people of Atlantic County succeeded likewise and became the County Seat of Camden County, which was created

March 11, 1844. It included the townships of Camden, Waterford, Newton, Union, Delaware, Gloucester, and Washington and an agreement was made for the two counties to use the old Gloucester County Almshouse at Blackwood. In May, 1860, the Board of Freeholders of Gloucester County purchased the one hundred and seven acre farm of Restore Lippincott near Clarksboro at sixty dollars an acre and the inmates were removed from the old to the new Almshouse in March, 1861.

The remaining townships of Gloucester County were Deptford, Greenwich, Woolwich, Harrison, and Franklin. Mantua Township was taken from Greenwich in March, 1853.

Washington Township was struck off of Deptford Township in 1836 and Monroe from Washington in 1859. They were both re-annexed to Gloucester County from Camden County with the exception of the Almshouse property, February 20, 1871.

Clayton Township was formed from a part of Franklin Township, February 5, 1858.

West Deptford Township was taken from Deptford March 1, 1871.

CHAPTER II.

HAPPENINGS OF THE GLOUCESTER COUNTY COURTS 1686-1700.

The first Court held in Gloucester County was convened at Gloucester on the first day of the seventh month, (September) 1686. The second was held at Red Bank on the tenth day of the tenth month, (December) 1686, which was an adjournment from the first day of the same month, when there were not enough of the Justices present to hold a Court.

The third Court was held at Gloucester on the first day of the second month, (May) 1687, when the first tax was laid by the Grand Jury and Justices. The order of the Grand Jury was tersely put in the following written language recorded on a scrap of paper which historically considered is of the utmost importance: "We ye Grand Jury doth order and agree that fifty pounds be levied upon the County of Gloucester for the defraying of public charges of the said County, to say, upon all lands in possession and all handicraft men that hath no land and all laboring men by their polls that hath no land." Signed by "Henry Wood, foreman, Gloucester, ye 1-2 mo. 1687."

On the Court record book the tax is set forth more fully to the effect that every owner or possessor of land should be taxed one shilling for each hundred acres. Every person keeping cattle within the county, whether oxen, horses or cows, over two years of age, two pence per head. All free men without lands or cattle should pay the sum of two pence and all men being sixteen years of age should pay for their own heads one shilling per piece. Assessors appointed for the purpose were Richard Heritage, John Kay, Thomas Sharp, Andrew Robeson, Jr., and Anthony Neilson. The Treasurers to whom the tax was to be paid before September 29th following were Henry Wood and Anthony Neilson. The taxes were payable in either silver money or cereals at the following prices per bushel: Wheat 4s; rye, 3s; barley, 3s; oats, 2s; Indian corn, 2s 6d; buckwheat, 2s 6d; Indian peas, 5s.

The Justices were Andrew Robeson, Francis Collins, Thomas Thackara, and John Wood. The fourth Court was held at Red Bank with the same Justices, on the first day of the fourth month, 1687. The Courts alternated between Red Bank and Gloucester in accordance with the consent of the tion, and that Thomas Gardiner and Martin Holt had execution issued on them November 24th and 25th, respectively.

December 18, 1693, Roger Corsard old and decrepit in want of both diet and clothes petitioned the Justices sitting at Gloucester for assistance because of the approach of winter.

William Matlock was fined twenty shillings for neglecting to serve as a juror and the High Sheriff was ordered by Thos. Gardiner, James Albinson and John Hugg Justices to take the goods of and sell enough of them before the sixth day of October 1694 to pay the fine. John Wood, High Sheriff appointed Thomas Bull his deputy for its collection, 17th Nov. 1694 and on March 1st, 1694-5 the warrant was endorsed by the Sheriff that he had seized an iron pot, a frying pan and a pewter dish from Will Matlock and his wife.

March 1, 1694.—The inhabitants between Great Mantua Creek and Berkley River requested that the district be made into a township to be henceforth called by the name of Greenwich to which the Bench agreed. Peter Matson was appointed overseer of highways from ye mouth of Gloucester River to ye head of Great Mantua Creek. John Reading for the town of Gloucester and Thomas Shakle and Richard Heritage from Pensaukin Branch to Samuel Spicers. The roads were ordered laid out conveniently and well marked.

May 12 1694.—The Legislature of West Jersey allotted the inhabitants of Egg Harbor to the Jurisdiction of Gloucester County and on May 26th Arthur Powell was attested Constable of the Township of Weymouth which was another name for either a part of or the whole of Egg Harbor.

At the term of Court held June 1st, 1695, the township lines were described and constables were appointed for them in conformity with the law just passed. The township divisions were as follows:

From Pensaukin alias Cropwell River to ye lowermost branch to Cooper Creek shall be one constabulary or township. From said branch of Cooper's Creek to ye southerly branch of Newton Creek bounding Gloucester shall be another constabulary or township.

From ye Newton Creek branch to ye lowermost branch of Gloucester River shall be another constablewick or township. From said branch of Gloucester River to Great Mantoes Creek shall be another township.

From Great Mantoes Creek to Barclay River another township. For ye year ensuing Edward Burroughs is nominated constable in ye uppermost township.

Jeremiah Bates, constable in Newton Township and William Bates and Thomas Sharp for regulating and laying of highways. Elias Hugg, constable for Gloucester Township.

William Chester for ye next below called ————

Joseph Cozens for Greenwich. To all of which ye Bench assents. There is nothing to substantiate the theory of the well informed historian Isaac Mickle that Deptford and Waterford Townships inherited their names from across the sea.

Deptford is undoubtedly a variation of Deepford, because that is the way the name was spelled in old sheep skins and in my opinion the townships of Deptford and Waterford were given their names because of the fords on the water courses that formed their boundaries before bridges took the places of fords.

Gloucester County Militia
(1793-4)

November 30, 1792, the New Jersey Legislature passed an entirely new militia law. Under this act all able-bodied men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years had the privilege of either enrolling in the county militia or paying an annual tax of three dollars. All government officials, post officers, mail stage drivers, ferrymen on post routes, pilots, mariners, and ministers of the Gospel were exempt the same as those who paid the annual tax.

A commissioner was appointed for each county. Samuel Flaningan, Esq., was appointed to act for Gloucester County and under the law he appointed deputies, for each township, including Gloucester Town Township, which was different from Gloucester Township.

The Light Infantry and Grenadiers, officered by a captain, lieutenant and ensign, consisted of companies composed of sixty-four men each, as near as possible. Horse and Artillery forty-eight men each. The Horse had a captain, lieutenant and one cornet for each troop. The Artillery had a captain and two lieutenants for each company.

The militiamen were permitted to choose their own officers and were required to assemble three times, at least, in every year for practice with musket, rifle or firelock. If not excused a fine of seven shillings six pence (a Spanish Dollar) was imposed, to be collected by a constable, and paid to the county collector, who was required to pay for fifes or bugle horns and drums from the public moneys in his hands, upon orders of the County Commissioner.

The Commissioners of each county were allowed twelve shillings a day while engaged in the services under the Act and the Deputy Commissioners, four pence for each name, entered on the list. Citizens had the right of appeal respecting age or inability of condition to serve. Appeals determined against the appellant placed the costs upon him.

The militia were to dress themselves in uniforms furnished and equipped as directed by the Act of Congress for regulating the militia of the United States.

The commissioners were required to procure books for entering the enrollments and exempts and to furnish lists of all exempts to the county collector, township collectors and State Treasurer. Another list of the enrollments only was to be furnished to the Governor of the State of New Jersey before the next session of the Legislature.

The compiler has read many thousands of documents but some of these militia returns, as to penmanship and spelling, are about the worst so far as legibility go, he has ever handled. He has spent at least a whole week of time deciphering the entire list. Where names were crossed off they seem to be exempts.

The greatest value of the list of approximately 2200 able bodied men is due to the fact that it is almost a complete directory of the three present counties of Gloucester, Camden and Atlantic in 1793-4.

The Federal census of New Jersey taken in 1790 was destroyed by the British when they had their heathenish bonfire in Washington during the War of 1812.

All one has to do to find the objection to military duty in different parts of Old Gloucester County, is to glance at the different township lists and compare them with one another.

Under this law and others many fines were imposed for refusal and non-attendance and one frequently meets with their reflection in Quaker Meeting records, Justice of the Peace dockets, and in the poor debtors departments of the county jail.

The abbreviations Jan. and Ja. probably meant January, if not Junior. The lists were supposed to be completed before January 25, 1793. The letter of Elisha Clark shows the date of August 12, 1794.

The following letter was filed with the above militia lists of Old Gloucester County.

To Major Samuel Flaningam
Sir:

I have been called Upon by Gen'l Bloomfield for All the Returns of elections and Exempts in this County of Gloucester, the Returns of Newton has not been made to my office, I therefor cannot make a complete Return. I have Inclosed those which are filed in my office to you, by Gen'l Bloomfield, that you may be inabled to give him more Satisfaction on the Subject than I can As I do not Perfectly Understand all the Returns that are filed—You will Return them again to my office.

I am yours
ELISHA CLARK

Woo'y. 12th Aug. 1794

Note: The Newton Township lists were evidently returned because they were with the other township manuscript lists. Clark was the county clerk.

Dr. Joseph Fithian's Articles

One of the most interesting as well as the most important contributors to the columns of The Constitution was Dr. Joseph Fithian. He in his foreword to his series of Reminiscences of the Revolution, in Old Gloucester County, by aged persons in 1846, foresaw the valuable legacy they were leaving for the enlightenment of future generations.

It is quite likely that the past readers of The Constitution, just like those who read current newspaper items of today, paid but little attention to them. News is fleeting but real history is everlasting.

The "Reminiscences" check well with other sources of information used by the compiler in his "Brief History of the Battle of Red Bank," "Salem County in the Revolution," and "Foraging for Valley Forge in Salem and Gloucester Counties."

Dr. Fithian in his letter of March 24, 1846, wrote something in the way of a warning to future generations. He warned against cheating, political demagogues who cause wileful dictators.

To Mr. Barber,—It has occured to me that your readers may be pleased with the reminiscences of persons living at the time of the events which they narrate; those events connected with the struggle of our infant country for its independence. I have often met with aged persons who remember many things, things in themselves of no great importance, but when connected with those great events, which ushered a nation into existence, will be remembered with intense interest; and when ages shall have rolled away, time will only render everything connected with them doubly interesting to their posterity.

If I had committed to paper at the time I heard them many anecdotes and scraps of history related to me by persons now no more, they would have been worth preserving; but they have escaped my memory and have passed away, and been buried in the grave with those from whom I received them. Soon, very soon, all the contemporaries of those stirring, eventful times, will have gone down to the tomb; and unless means are taken to gather what remains to be had from this source, it will be forever too late.

We take this opportunity to thank Mr. Isaac Mickle for his interesting little volume upon the early settlement and history of our county; also Col. Robert Johnson, for a work of a similar character, upon Cumberland and Salem counties. May we not hope for other editions from time to time of their interesting little volumes, giving what additional information they may be able to collect; in the mean time, they will be hailed with pleasure by all.

Hoping and believing that the few reminiscences I have furnished will not be altogether without interest, they are at your service if you are disposed to publish them.

Yours respectfully,
JOS. FITHIAN.

Woodbury, Jan. 4th, 1846

Incidents of the Revolution at Haddonfield and Cooper's Ferry

A lady living in Haddonfield at the time the Hessians were passing through that place, on their way to Red Bank, gave me some particulars that are interesting.

She was at that time 15 years old, and lived about midway of the village. They marched into the town in the evening previous to the day of the battle, and pitched their tents on the hill just above the mill. They were off next morning early on their way to the battlefield. While quartered there they were quiet and orderly. Before day the next morning after the battle, they returned in a confused and disorderly mass, acting like wild men. Their cry was, Oh Donop! Oh Donop! This was the first intelligence they had of the result of the battle.

The British she says were several times in Haddonfield during the war. Upon one occasion a company of British light infantry had planned an attack upon some of our troops stationed in the town, intending, as it was then said, to massacre the whole of them, as they did those at Quinton's (Hancock's) Bridge.

They crossed over at Gloucester very quietly, and by some means eluded the sentinel whose name was Chew. He got wind of it, and by his knowledge of the country, by leaping fences and swimming ditches, arrived in time to give warning of their approach.

The troops in Haddonfield were under the command of General Ellis, with two field-pieces.—Major Ellis was at Camden, in command of a picket guard of 30 men. It was at this time that Miles Sage was so severely stabbed. It happened in this way: when Chew arrived from Gloucester with the information that the enemy were on their way to Haddonfield, Sage was despatched upon a fleet horse by Gen. Ellis to Major Ellis, to give him the information, at the same time commanding him to remain at his post till he should hear the alarm gun fire, when he might retreat. Gen. Ellis in the mean time withdrew the troops quietly from Haddonfield, without giving the alarm as agreed upon to Major Ellis, for some reason not known.

9 Mo 18 Day 1778 A windy Day. Martain went to Mill & took 12 Bushel of fathers meadow wry to grind for ye hoggs & two Bushel for William Brown of his. Got it all ground & come home. Thomas was a moing elders. My wife & I went to Aaron Hewes & she got Bluded. Then wee went to Meeting & after Meeting, home.

9 Mo 19 Day 1778 A pleasent Day. Martain & I geard my colt for ye first time with ye sorrel hors & harrowed with them til noon, then hauld wood. Thomas swingled some flax.

9 Mo 20 Day 1778 A fine Day. Mother, my wife, Hester & myself went to Woodbury Meeting, then home. James Ward to two pound of Butter. Brother Benjamin, wife & children come & spent ye afternoon with us, then went home.

9 Mo 21 Day 1778 A cloudy Day. Father & I went to Philedelphia & I bought two pound of shot for 21 shillings & six pound of Shuger for 37 Shillings & one pound of best cut Tobacco for 5 shillings. I Eat Dinner at Brother Murdocks, then wee come home. Thomas Andrews a moing elders. Martain a harrowing fallow ground.

9 Mo 22 Day 1778 A cloudy Day. Thomas Andrews, Martain & myself, with our teem, was a haulling mud on ye dam all Day & Brother James & his teem, William Snowden & son a helping load. Abraham Leonerd brought me 150 seder Rails for worm fence, he chargeing 33s-9d for them & I let him have 54# of flitch Bacon at 7½d pr pound which paid him for ye Rails.

9 Mo 23 Day 1778 A Rany, stormy Day. Wind at east & south from there to ye west which made a very high tide & did much damage to ye Banks. Father & I went to Woodbury in ye lite wagin for ye first time & I bought & paid Samuel Thomson for 18# of Beef at 2s pr pound. Father took some Cotten yarn to James Ward for him to weave for our Boat sails & I got a Turkycock of Brother John Murdocks & brought him home in ye wagin. Thome & Martain wed in turnep patch.

9 Mo 24 Day 1778 A fine Day. Thomas Andrews & Martain a weeding ye turnep patch. lives. He brought up a family of fourteen children, and all but two of them are living. The names of his sons were Peter, Daniel, John, David, Anthony, Matthias, and Levi. The daughters became Mrs. Abigail Allen, Mrs. Rachel Wagoner, Mrs. Mary Winans, Mrs. Charlotte Rhodes, and Mrs. Lucy Parker. The oldest two, Betsey and Eliza, remained single. The sons are all living except David, and all the daughters except Mrs. Wagoner. Anthony, Matthias, and Mrs. Winans reside in this township.

John Huston came in 1804 to buy land, but did not purchase that year. He built a log house in 1807 and remained until about 1813, then sold to John Baker. In 1817 A. W. Allen bought the place of Baker.

Hugh Smith, who had been here previously, came from Maryland in 1806 and settled on the main branch of the Meander. He brought up five sons and three daughters. Two sons and two daughters are now living in the western part of this State. Mr. Smith died quite suddenly in 1821 or 1822. He was going toward the barn one evening in a cheerful mood, singing the hymn commencing with the lines,

> Oh, when shall I see Jesus,
> And dwell with him above.

A few minutes later he was found dead between the house and barn.

In 1805 William Ripley, Hervey Ripley, Elisha Palmer, and one or two others, came from Scotland, Windham county, Connecticut, and commenced improving land west of the center, which they had previously purchased. In 1806 William Ripley returned to Ellsworth with his wife, Susan Bingham, and settled at the center. Hervey Ripley died here in 1813, aged forty years. William Ripley was a justice of the peace for many years, a member of the Legislature in 1826 or 1827, and afterwards a State Senator.

Daniel Fitch and wife, from Norwalk, Connecticut, came in 1806, and settled one-half mile north of the center. They had four sons and four daughters, several of whom are dead. None of the survivors reside in this township. Daniel Fitch died in 1826.

In 1806 Thomas Jones and family, from Maryland, settled in the eastern part of the township. Mr. Jones had seven sons and three daughters. He lived to be an old man. After his death the family moved away.

The Fitch brothers, Richard, William and Charles, came from Salisbury, Connecticut, in 1806 with their families. Richard settled at the center, and cleared the farm north of there, where his son Richard now lives. William and Charles remained eight or ten years and then moved to Tiffin, Seneca county, Ohio. William afterwards returned and settled two miles north of the center, where he resided several years, thence removing to Ashtabula county, where he died at the age of ninety-four. Charles died in Chicago, aged eighty years.

Philip Borts came from Pennsylvania in 1805 with his family and located near Philip Arner. He had two sons and three daughters. He became one of the wealthiest men in this region, and gave a farm to each of his children. One of his daughters married George Harding, whose son, G. W. Harding, now lives on the old Borts homestead, and has the finest house in the township.

John Leonard and family settled near the Meander about the year 1806. Mr. Leonard had several sons and daughters. One of his sons, James, now lives in Portage county. John Leonard died at quite an early date.

Nicholas Leonard settled one mile from the centre. He had a large family, seven sons and five daughters. Abram, the youngest son, resides in Wood county, and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Swartz, in Ashtabula county.

Andrew Fitch, an early settler, located at the centre. He married Lucy Manning. He lived here until quite old, then returned to Connecticut and died there. He had one daughter, who is now living, the wife of Silas C. Clark, of Washington, District of Columbia.

James Parshall settled on the southwestern corner of section twenty-four at an early day. He had several sons and daughters, none of whom are now residing here.

Thomas and Robert McKean settled on the diagonal road running northwest from the center. Thomas died quite early. He brought up a family of three sons and one daughter. Robert McKean lived here until his death in 1843. He had four sons and four daughters.

James McGill and family settled on section twelve, where Thomas Young now lives, resided

Dear Mrs. DeVoe:

Your letter of March 30 requested information about John Leonard a veteran of the Revolutionary War.

The records of the former General Land Office in this Center show that Military Bounty Land Warrant 9798, 100 acres, Act of 1788, was issued on June 29, 1789, to "Matthew McConnell, assignee of John Leonard, late a soldier in the Pennsylvania Line." This warrant, along with many others, was used by Jonathan Dayton, on February 25, 1800, possibly as a representative, to locate 4000 acres of land in the United States Military District of Ohio. The land, which was described as Lot 2, Township 1, Range 16, is located in Franklin County, Ohio. We can furnish an electrostatic copy of this warrant for $1. If you wish to order, send a check or money order (payable to GSA-NCWN) to the Cashier, Washington National Records Center, Washington, D. C. 20409.

These records do not contain any further information about John Leonard. To request possible additional information about John Leonard and the above cited land, we suggest that you write to the Auditor of State, State of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio 43251.

Sincerely,

Edwin R Flatequal

Dear Mrs. DeVoe:

This letter is in reply to your letter of May 4, 1971, requesting information concerning a John Leonard and a Mathew McConnell. We have searched our records and found two land purchases by a John Leonard. The first purchase was for 160 acres in Range 2E, Township 2N, Section 24, in Putnam County, during 1850. The second purchase was for 57.75 acres in Range 16E, Township 7N, Section 17, in Marion County, on September 5, 1851.

We have found two land purchases by a Mathew McConnell. The first was on April 23, 1800, for 12 lots in Range 20, Township 7, Section 3, in Marion County. The second purchase was for 162.70 acres in Range 18, Township 21, Section 31, in Richland County, on June 15, 1814.

Very truly yours,

JOSEPH T. FERGUSON

Dear Mrs. Devoe:

I have gotten way behind on my genealogy correspondence. With the holidays over, I am now trying to get caught up.

I just checked my Leonard file. Have you seen the book: Stephen Banks Leonard of Oswego, Tioga Co. New York by William Andrew Leonard, 1909? It has much information on the Leonards of New Jersey. I don't find your or my John - at least that I can recognise. I did copy a page of information on the Caleb Leonard that moved to Washington Co. Penn. I don't have a zerox machine hany during the winter. Later in the year (when the orads are better) I can get up to Washington State University and use their library and copying facilities.

There is also a book: Men from Morris County New Jersey who served in the American Revolution compiled by Barbara Hoskins. On page 111 is listed one John Leonard - served as a private in Morris Co. N.J., militia (S-665). He lived in Morris Township.

In the Stephen Banks Leonards book: page 91 - John Leonard, First N.J. Regiment

someone turned in: James Leonard m 17 Mar 1803, Susannah Campfield at Hanover, Morris Co. NJ

Hope we can both find more information on the New Jersey Leonards.

Dear Mrs. DeVoe:

In reply to your inquiry of October 26 addressed to the Department of Military Affairs and transferred to this Division for consideration regarding military service records, we are sending a marked copy of our Information Leaflet #4, which describes the records available and explains the type of service that we are able to provide.

Although the record of John Leonard is cited in the published Archives, 3rd Series, Volume 23, page 270, we do not hold in our custody the original document on which this record is based, with the result we are unable to furnish a certificate.

The references which you have cited in volumes 2, 4 and 8 are, we feel, for other John Leonards. Volume 2 reflects service in the Pennsylvania Line and no county of residence is given for a soldier in this service. Volume 4 contains records of the Invalid Regiment and depreciation Accounts and some Pension records. Volume 8 lists soldiers from Northampton and Northumberland County. Therefore, the John Leonard in your reference from Mahoning County could not have served in all of these units and this must be the record of several men instead of just one person.

Deputy Adjutant General Shaub informs us that he is unable to find any record of burial for John Leonard.

The currency in the amount of $5.00 which you enclosed is returned herewith.

Sincerely,

Barbara Philpott

Here is a little more miscellaneous information on Leonards:

1806 Tax List - Canfield Twp. Trumbull Co (now Mahoning): John Leonard ✓
William Leonard

1807 Tax List - Canfield Twp.: John Leonard ✓
Nicholas Leonard

(Note that Ellsworth Twp. was not set off from Canfield Twp. until 1810. These tax lists are also from a manuscript at Western Reserve Historical Soc. Library, Cleveland, O)

1810 Tax List - Ellsworth Twp.: John Leonard, ✓ Nicholas Leonard, William Leonard.

George 200010-30100
David 000100-10100

Note that by 1830 a number of Leonards start appearing in Berlin Twp., the township directly west of Ellsworth. These may be part of the same family. The only burial inscription I have on hand at the moment for a Leonard in Berlin is this one from the West Berlin Cemetery:

Leonard, Samuel b 5 Jan 1799 d 14 Nov 1841 ae 42-11-9

– About John Leonard's stone – a very large percentage of the stones in our area which date from 1800 to 1820 are missing now, and it is likely that his stone is no longer extant.

Somerset Twp Pa.

The Leonard family came from New Jersey to Somerset township, and as early as 1780 were in possession of land here. There must have been a number of brothers, for the record of property transfers shows that a tract of one hundred and fifty four acres was owned by several of these. It was first owned by Isaac Leonard, sold by him to Abner Leonard by Abner to Caleb and from him was purchased by John Hawkins. Caleb married Sarah Burt and their family numbered seven children,— Daniel, Joseph, Zenas, Phebe, Rhoda, Mary and Sarah Leonard. The sons Joseph & Zena died in Ohio and David died in this county. The daughters all married and died leaving families. Edmond Leonard, living in Fayette Co. and Isaac Leonard of Washington borough, are descendants of these early settlers where he was a merchant and later a record writer in the House of Burgesses. In 1767, with his family and his son Samuel's family, he moved to Northwest Virginia, locating in Cumberland Township. He died in 1794. He served in the Revolutionary War in 1780, with his son Samuel, and his grandson John, who was born in 1765.

SAMUEL FORDYCE married Elizabeth Morris, a daughter of Richard Morris of Baltimore. She was born in 1737 and died in Cumberland Township in 1814. Samuel Fordyce died in 1824. They had nine children: John, James, Catherine, Mary, Elizabeth, Samuel, Abigail, Abraham, and Jacob.

John Fordyce, son of Samuel Fordyce, was born in 1765. He served in the Revolutionary War when only fifteen. He also served in the army under General Wayne in the Indian War of 1794, and in the War of 1812-14. He married Elizabeth Garard, a granddaughter of Rev. John Garard. John Fordyce died April 20, 1848. Elizabeth Gerard Fordyce died December 12, 1838.

JACOB HORN was born in Philadelphia, February 21, 1721. In April 1740, he settled at Snow Creek, Virginia, and lived there until 1772, when he settled at Camp Cat Fish, Spirit Spring. He was the first judge of the Virginia Court west of the mountains, from April 4, 1772 to June 8, 1774. He had three sons and one daughter. He died at Camp Cat Fish on February 24, 1778. His journal, with that of his son, Christopher Horn, and other papers handed down by them, are the basis of this history of Greene County.

JOHN HORN, eldest son of Jacob Horn, was born at Snow Creek, Virginia, in 1743. John Horn married Sarah Gardner at Snow Creek in 1765. They had four sons and six daughters: Daniel, David, Michael, John, Elizabeth, Mary, Catharine, Susanna, Ann, and Sarah. He settled in Amwell Township, Washington County, in March 1776. He was sheriff of the Camp Cat Fish court district in 1772-1773, and a deputy sheriff of the same territory in 1774-1775. He built the courthouse at Augusta Town and the powder magazine and storehouse in the winter of 1775-1776, also the Colonel William Wallace Flour Mill on North Ten Mile Creek in 1791-1792. He served in the Revolutionary War in Captain Abner Howell's Company. He died in 1826.

JESSE LEONARD, born in New Jersey in 1724, was a son of William Leonard, who was born in England and came to Philadelphia in 1704. In 1741, Jesse Leonard settled in Bucks County,

Jesse Leonard

Pennsylvania, remaining three years. In 1745, he settled in that part of Cumberland County which became Bedford County in 1771. He had three sons, Jesse, Levi, and Lot. In 1771, Jesse Leonard and family came to Cumberland Township. Jesse, Jr., and Lot were in the Revolutionary War. Lot Leonard was circuit rider minister and preached in the settlers' homes in his neighborhood from 1780-1785. He married Elizabeth Hoge. They had the following children: William, John, Lot, Isaac, George, Elizabeth, Mary, Sarah, and Leah.

ABRAHAM HICKMAN, with his brother JOHN, came from Maryland to Greene County in 1767. They were of Scotch-Irish and English descent. They located at the dividing of the Indian trail up Ten Mile Creek, and the branch up Ruff's Creek, directly in what is now the Waynesburg-Jefferson Road, and erected Fort Hickman in 1767. This same building stood until about 1896. Abraham Hickman and wife had five sons and three daughters: Charles, William, Solomon, Richard, Abraham, Elizabeth, Eliza, and Martha Jane. Charles Hickman, the eldest son, was born in 1751. He was listed in 1773 as being twenty-one years of age in 1772. Abraham Hickman died in 1793, at the age of eighty-one years.

JOSEPH HILL, from Maryland and Virginia, was of Scotch-Irish descent. His father, Isaac Hill, was born in 1687 and came to Maryland in 1724, where his son Joseph was born in 1727. In 1754, he was in service with Captain William Trent, transferring supplies from Alexandria, Virginia, to Wills Creek. He was one of the five guards left there to guard the storehouse, while Trent and his soldiers went on to the forks of the Ohio to commence the fort and blockhouse as the headquarters for the Ohio Company. After Trent's return to Wills Creek in April following, he was one of the guards of Trent in the stone prison until October 1754, when he returned to Williamsburg. In 1755, he was in the Virginia Militia under Colonel George Washington at Braddock's defeat. He helped to bury the general after the retreat. In 1767, with his wife, five sons, and four daughters, he settled near Prosperity. Joseph Hill died in 1816. Mary Hill died in 1821.

JOSEPH BROWN, the younger brother of George Brown of Brown's Ferry, was born in Saint Mary's, Virginia in 1745. In 1766, he joined his brother on the Monongahela and assisted him at the ferry until 1772, when he became one of Dr. John Connolly's guards at Fort Stanwick at the forks, when Connolly was appointed Military Commissioner by Governor Dunmore on July 12, 1772. In 1775,

Version of the Restoration of the First Iron Works

by C. Rebecca Rupright

NESTLED among the tall pines and stately, old elms of a section of our town called North Saugus, stands a quaint, old-fashioned cottage away from the rush and clamor that marks the twentieth century. In this little home resides two sisters, one of whom has left an impression in the minds of men and on the pages of history that will last for many years to come.

Landmarks will change and politicians governing the Town of Saugus will rise briefly and then fade into oblivion but the dream of Louise Hawkes, that became a reality will stand secure and remind future generations that here in Saugus, American industry was born. A memorial to the toil and hardships of our ancestors and a monument, too, to this Daughter of the American Revolution whose deep love and loyalty to her country and her devotion to the history and heritage that proclaims its greatness, became the driving force that brought about the Restoration of the First Iron Works of America.

When the Ironmaster's House was purchased by the apprentices of Henry Ford, the industrialist, in 1942 to be presented to him on his seventieth birthday, Miss Hawkes took upon herself the tremendous task of seeking out people who loved the old house as she did and wished it to remain upon its original site. Through the intercession of Miss Hawkes, the Parson Roby Chapter, D.A.R. had purchased the old cinder banks and the land where the Iron Works' buildings had stood.

The First Iron Works Association was formed and Mr. Ford graciously consented to sell the Iron Master's House back to the members.

On November 19, 1946, Parson Roby Chapter held its twenty-fifth anniversary in the Old Iron Works House. At this meeting Miss Hawkes, on behalf on the chapter, presented the deed of the Site of the First Iron Works In America to the First Iron Works Association. Mr. Henry Porter, then President of the Association, accepted the gift. In presenting the deed, Miss Hawkes quoted the Bible as saying "It is more blessed to give than to receive so Parson Roby Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is giving its most precious possession to the First Iron Works Association, Inc." Thus, the two pieces of property were again united under one ownership.

The Old Iron Works House was built in 1636 by Thomas Dexter in "Lyn," now Saugus, Massachusetts. The house in 1942 was to have been moved out of the state but public interest was so great that this was forestalled. The house is furnished in the original furniture of the seventeenth century by one of the Board of Directors of the First Iron Works Association who cherishes it, and it is a most generous thing to do.

The house was the home of Richard Leader, the first Proprietor of the Iron Works. He was followed by John Gifford and Oliver Purchis and others. The fire places are ten feet in width and three and one half feet in depth. The beams are fifteen and thirteen inches thick and beautifully chamfered. The posts are all gun stack.

Iron was discovered in this vicinity soon after the settlement in 1630. John Winthrop Jr. and Robert Bridges went to England in 1642 and organized the Company of Undertakers of the Iron Works in London, and the first iron casting in America was made here in 1642. It is now in the Lynn Public Library. The designs of the Oak Tree and Pine Tree Shillings were made by Elizabeth, the wife of Joseph Jenks, the Master Mechanic, who cast the dies for them in 1652. This was the first act of freedom performed against the mother country, England. In 1654 the First Fire Engine in the Town of Boston was made here, by order of the Selectmen of the Town of Boston. In 1646 the first patent issued in the United States was issued to Joseph Jenks for the invention of a water wheel, and later he invented the American scythe. These Iron Works were located on the Saugus River at the spot where Governor Winthrop forded it with the Massachusetts Bay State Charter in 1630. The scoria banks are still in perfect condition. Henry and James Leonard were here in 1642, pioneers in early iron industry.

During the American Revolution this house was the center of activity. Thomas Mansfield, Sr., an old Indian War fighter owned the property. He was a thrifty man. He had a fulling mill, a dye house, a clothiers shop, a grist mill, a cider mill, fish weirs on the river, and an arch house or vaulted cellar. His three sons, Benjamin,, Samuel and Thomas, Jr. marched with Captain Parker's Minute Men April 19, 1775. Thomas, Jr. was only thirteen years old, but he went all through the Revolution. He married Hannah Brown, Samuel was a corporal and married Rachel Roby, the daughter of Parson Roby, who was the religious and inspiritional leader of the day and dearly beloved by all. Benjamin Mansfield was a private, and he married Mrs. Elizabeth Stocker and had twelve children.

Quietly and unobtrusively, Miss Hawkes serves her D.A.R. chapter as treasurer, serves the Iron Works Association as clerk, attends the Lynn Historical Society, is a member of Plimoth Plantation and has many other activities. Her life has been one of service to the ideals of her country's founders and we are all very proud of her accomplishment.

the forge, he "was discovered and fired upon by the Indians. He instantly plucked off his hat, swung it around, which startled his horse, and, in full career, he reached the forge dam, without a wound; but several bullets were shot through the hat he held in his hand, and through the neck of the horse near the mane, from which the blood on both sides gushed and ran down on both legs."*

In the preceding notices of the Taunton Leonards only a small part of their descendants have been connected to the present period. Other lines, if traced, would probably include many persons of distinction. No connection has been discovered between the family of Leonards early at Bridgewater, (sometimes spelt Leonardson) and those of Taunton, though it is possible that they may both have been of the same English extraction. Dexter M. Leonard, of Providence, R. I., formerly of North Hadley, Mass., is the 7th generation in descent from Solomon Leonard—the early settler at Bridgewater. Manning Leonard, Esq., of Southbridge, Mass., is also descended from him. The late Dr. Jonathan Leonard, of Sandwich, a gentleman of a most estimable character, possessing in an uncommon degree benevolence, humanity and generosity worthy the imitation not only of physicians but of all others, was a descendant of the 6th generation from Solomon. He grad. H. C. 1786, and d. 26 Jan. 1849, at the age of 86.† His brothers, David and Benjamin, died the week previous; the former aged 84, and the latter 80. They died the same day, and were buried in one grave. Rev. Levi W. Leonard, (grad. H. C. 1815,) of Dublin, N. H., author of various school books, is also a descendant of Solomon, of the sixth generation.

It is a fact worthy of notice, that, while in the original stock of Lennard, Lord Dacre, the title has fallen into a family of their descendants, bearing another name; so a large number of the descendants of the family in this country, which is supposed to have been an offshoot from that stock, are becoming merged in other names. This fact is certainly much more remarkable in this family than in many others, and may be considered as an apology for introducing so many of their descendants with other names, into this sketch.

GENEALOGY.

THOMAS LEONARD^1, who remained in Great Britain, had sons;—

(2) I. JAMES^2, (5) was dead in 1691; wife Margaret, who survived him, was mother-in-law to all his children. She d. abt. 1701. He was at Lynn, 1651‡ of Braintree, 1652, and settled the same year, at Taunton, where he and his brother Henry erected the first forge in Plymouth Colony. This forge probably became soon after its erection the principal one in America.

(3) II. HENRY^2. (13) aged 37 in 1655; wife Mary in 1650; a wife living in 1675. He was at Lynn 1642;‖ of Braintree 1652, and probably earlier; of Taunton 1652, of Hammersmith (Lynn) 1655, freeman of Mass. (of Lynn) 1668, of Rowley Village 1674. He afterwards went to New Jersey.

(4) III. PHILIP^2.—Perhaps he was the Philip, nailer, of Marshfield, APPENDIX.

[From the N. Eng. Hist. and Genealogical Reg., Jan., 1853.]

NOTICE OF MAJOR ZEPHANIAH LEONARD.

He was the son of Stephen L.(36), and resided at Raynham. He was b. 18 March, 1704, and was m. by Rev. Samuel Danforth, of Taunton, 24 April, 1724, to Hannah King, b. 28 Feb. 1705, dau. of John and Alice (Deane) King. They d. the same day—23 April, 1776—he in his 63d she in her 62d year, and were buried in the same grave. The inscription on their monument now standing at Taunton is printed in Barber's Historical Collections of Mass. p. 145. A very interesting notice of their deaths was published in a Boston paper of that time.* An account of him will be found in the article on the Leonard Family, Reg. V. 414. The writer of that article has, since its publication, been furnished, through the courtesy of John B. H. Leonard, Esq. of Providence, R. I. and Samuel Leonard, Esq. of Philadelphia, Pa. with a copy of the following paper containing information which Zephaniah Leonard, when a young man, obtained from Hannah (Leonard) Deane, (11 of Genealogical Memoir above referred to) the sister of his grandfather, in relation to the ancestry of the Leonard Family. It would have saved the modern genealogist much time, and afforded him, and those interested in the result of his investigations, great satisfaction, had more of the great-grandchildren of our emigrant ancestors questioned their aged relatives on the subject of their ancestry, and left on record the result of their investigations.

" February 2, 1732–3, Hannah Deane sister to Capt. James Leonard, late of Taunton deceased, gave to the subscriber the following account of her relations &c—

1st.	Namely her Great Grandfather's name was	Henry Leonard
2d.	Her own Grandfather's name was	Thomas Leonard
3d.	Her Father's name was	James Leonard
	Her Grandmother's name was	White
	Her Mother's name was	Martin
	Her Father's brother's names were the eldest,	1 Henry Leonard
		2 William Leonard
		3 John Leonard
		4th Philip Leonard
		5 Thomas Leonard
	The sisters were	Margery
		Joan
		& Sarah

* MS. Letter of J. B. H. Leonard, Esq.

James, her Father lived and died at Taunton New England,
Thomas was drowned at Piscataway.
Henry went to New Jersey.
Philip lived at Marshfield and died at Taunton.
William & John never came out of England.
Margery married Henry Samson of Ireland Leut [obscure—perhaps Lieut. Governor] of the City of Gallaway—[Galway ?]
Sarah died at New Salem.
Joan never came out of England.

Said Hannah said her eldest Brother was Thomas Leonard, next was James, Joseph, Benjamin, John, Uriah.

The Sisters were Abigail and Rebecca.

They all had children save John who died at about twenty years old.

Henry who removed to New Jersey, lived and married his wife at Lynn in New England, from thence he removed to Toppsfield, thence removed by way of Taunton to the Jerseys. When he was in Taunton he had seven likely children, namely,

The eldest Samuel married Sarah Brooks
Nathaniel
Thomas married his wife in Virginia
Henry
John married A. Almy (originally)

The daughters, the eldest married Throgsmorton; next Mary.

So far Hannah Deane, originally Hannah Leonard gave me an account.

this P^{r}. Zephaniah Leonard.

Copied from Original Manuscript,
Taunton, March 12, 1806, by Mary B. Leonard, daughter of Samuel Leonard of the sixth generation of the above mentioned family.”

The above paper, though it furnishes additional particulars, controverts no statement of fact in the Genealogical Memoir of the Leonard family heretofore published by the writer of this. It renders it more improbable that the Taunton Leonards were from the Dacre family, yet does not make it less probable that they are from an earlier offshoot of the same original Lennard stock. Margaret Finnes, the wife of Sampson Lennard by whom the Dacre title was brought into the Lennard family, had, according to the Peerages 8 Ch. Henry, Gregory, Thomas, Anne, Mary, Margaret, Elizabeth and Frances. Her son Henry, (12th Lord Dacre) was of a proper age to have been the Henry Leonard, great grandfather of Mrs. Hannah Deane; but it does not appear that the first mentioned Henry had a son Thomas, his children having been Richard, (13th Lord Dacre) Edward, Fynes, Margaret Penelope, Philadelphia and Barbara.

George Leonard, Esq. of St. John, N. B., son of Rev. Nathaniel L. of Plymouth, Mass. who visited England in the latter part of the last century, and while there made investigations upon this subject, appears however to have felt quite sure that his family was descended from the Dacres. In a letter to his cousin Hon. George Leonard of Norton, dated St. John, Oct. 4, 1798, he writes—“ From every thing I can collect—from old records in England, at the Herald's Office, and among the late Lord Dacre's papers, who was very attentive to me, and where I found free access to his Lordship's library and other parts of his houses in town and country, where his papers were deposited, for information; and who was very anxious that some of our family inherited some of the vacant titles.

From which I find that one of our ancestors, Henry Leonard, came to America about the time that the Earl of Warwick obtained a large grant of land near Boston, which was in 1626; from about which time to the year 1638, a great number of respectable people came over from England to avoid the dissentions there. Amongst those was Lord Leith [Leigh] who afterwards returned, and two daughters of the Earl of Lincoln, Lady Susan and Lady Arabella, with their husbands, who continued in the country; together with many others that were of good families and fortunes. The spirit of emigration and religious enthusiasm so greatly prevailed in that day that a very considerable number of young gentlemen and ladies of the first connections in England left, or rather absconded from their parents. Among these we have reason to think was Henry Leonard, one of our grandfathers, who left England about that time, as a copy of a letter was found directed to him from his friend (a young gentleman) Sir Brian Jansen, whom he left in England, and who was supposed to be acquainted with his going out, who congratulates him upon getting away before the order of the King in Council was issued, in February 21, 1633, to prevent any further emigration to America. It's probable that, on his arrival, he concealed his name some time from the knowledge of his friends in England. Thus far I have traced our grandfather's grandfather, and must leave you to continue the chace in the regular line to the present day."

Zephaniah Leonard, whom it is the purpose of this paper to notice, had fourteen children by his wife Hannah, viz. I. Joshua, b. 5 Jan. 1724–5, d. 27 Nov. 1816, a. 91; m. James Leonard who died 1691 son of Thomas gd. son of Henry Leonard of Bilston County Stafford, England, descended from Edward III through the Dacre family on two lines, came to this Country after 1628 and settled first in Maryland From thence he came to New England and was in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1645, while several of his brothers were in New England at still earlier dates He was in Braintree, Mass, in the Iron Foundry and with his brother, Henry Leonard, built the first Iron Forge in Plymouth Co., at Taunton, Mass 1652. The Leonards were connected with the Iron Works at Lynn, Braintree, Rowley, Taunton, and later at Canton, Mass, and were pioneers in the Iron industry in America, while a descendent is one of the most prominent managers of the largest steel Co in America of the present day for 150 acres, by lands of Robert West and others. In 1681 he had another warrant. In 1676 he was a juror. In court records are notices of several suits between 1670 and 1677 with Francis Lee Maistre or "Masters," as the name was sometimes given; in first suits Lafetra was plaintiff; in the last suit, Aug. 28, 1677, Le Maistre sues him for the sum of £4 for one year's lodging, waiting and looking after cattle. The sum sued for was so small that it may have been only for a balance claimed between them. The item in the bill for lodging indicates that he was not then married; he was m. twice, and his second marriage to Frances West, widow of Robert, must have occurred shortly after.

Lambert—Edward Lambert of Freehold, in will dated December, 1714, names brother Josiah, cousins John Lambert, son of brother John, and Joseph, son of Joseph, and Elizabeth Lain. Henry Marsh, in his will dated 1716, names dau. Isabella Lambert.

Mark Lucar was a member of the Baptist Church at Newport, R. I.; in 1648 was freeman; in 1655 and April 20, 1676, he had a legacy of fifty shillings a year, payable in provisions from Rev. John Clark. He d. Dec. 26, 1676, leaving no descendants as far as known. In 1672 he sold his share of land to William Deuell of Newport, who gave it to his son, Benjamin Deuell. Lucar was an ancient name in London. In "Herald's Visitations," 1568, mention is made of Emanuel Lucar, of London, who had children Ciprian, Mark, Martha and Emanuel. The name Mark suggests the probability of the Newport Mark being of that family.

James Leonard was of Taunton, Mass., ancestor of Leonards of that State and elsewhere, and noted as one of the first to set up iron works in this country. His brother, Henry Leonard, came to Monmouth and aided in establishing the iron works at Tinton Falls. James Leonard sold his share to Sarah Reape in 1674 and in 1675 she took up 240 acres in his right.

Parker—The first of this family in Old Monmouth were Joseph Parker and Peter Parker, named in Shrewsbury in 1667-8. Thomas Parker, Sr., and Thomas Parker, Jr, are named in Freehold records in 1716. Joseph Parker was one of the most prominent men in Old Shrewsbury, Commissioner, Justice of the Court, Deputy to the General Assembly, etc. In the General Assembly in 1682-3, he and John Bowne were foremost in efforts to maintain the rights of the people of Monmouth against the demands of the Board of Proprietors. Joseph Parker appears to have died in 1685, as in May of that year letters of administration were granted on his estate to Jedediah Allen, who was his successor in the Assembly. Peter Parker was appointed constable in 1667. Joseph Parker, second of the name, in his will dated 1723, devises land in Shrewsbury township to his wife, Elizabeth, and nine children. The following genealogical notes of the Parker family, furnished by a member of it, will enable descendants to trace back connectedly their genealogy for about a century and a quarter. Thomas Parker, of Freehold township, m. first a Miss James. Their children were Robert, John, (both of whom went West at an early day) Thomas, Anthony, William, Lydia, who married William Barkalow and Ann, who married a Thompson. Anthony Parker was born Sept. 13, 1775, and married Phebe Stout, daughter of David Stout; she was born April 24, 1777. Thomas Parker m. second wife, Sarah Stout, and they had children: Joseph, Hannah, who m. Cornelius Thompson, Charles, Amy, who m. David Reid; Mary, who m. John Johnstone; Joel, who d. unmarried, and Ann, who m. John Clayton. The children of Thomas, (third son of Thomas) were Thompson, Isaac, Amy, Carolina, Lydia Ann, Mary Ann and George. The children of Anthony, who m. Phebe, dau. of David Stout, were Thomas, David Stout, Abigail, who m. Rev. David B. Salter, John and Joseph. The children of William, son of Thomas, were Jesse, Hannah, who m. —— Cheeseman, Lewis, Edmund, Thomas, Robert, Lydia, James, William and John. The children of Lydia, who m. William Barkalow, were Ann, who m. Job Emmons; Amy, who m. D. D. Denise, and Thomas P., the noted hotel proprietor. The children of Joseph, son of first Thomas, were Sarah Ann, Achsah and Henry. In the Presbyterian graveyard near Matawan, is a tombstone to the memory of Dr. Peter LeConte, who d. Jan. 29, 1768, in the 66th year of his age.

LEEDS—Warrants for lands were issued by East Jersey proprietors in 1676 as follows: Thomas Leeds, Sr. and w. 240 acres; William Leeds and w. Dorothea 120 acres; Daniel Leeds and w. (Anna?) 120 acres, Thomas Leeds, Jr., and w. Ann 120 acres. In Burlington county, the name Daniel Leeds occurs 1677. Daniel Leeds, of Burlington, was first Surveyor-General of West Jersey; his books are in the office at Burlington and date from 1681 to 1710.

LEFFERTS, LEFFERTSON—Ouka Leffers named in court proceedings 1710 was the Ouke Lefferson who with w., Catrina Vonk, joined the Marlborough Brick Church 1709. He was b. April 4, 1678, and was son of Lefferts Pieterse, who came from Haughwert or Hauwert in North Holland about 1660. Auke Janse Van Nuyse settled at Flatbush, L. I. Lefferts Pieterse had a number of children who are named in Bergen's Kings County settlers. His son who came to Monmouth was named Auke, but was generally called Ouka.

LEMAISTRE, MASTERS—Among names of original purchasers of land in Monmouth 1667, was Francis Masters, as the name is recorded in Freehold records. He is named at same time as a "townshipper." His name subsequently appears in proceedings of court and in proprietors' records, Perth Amboy, as LeMaistre. Their names indicate that both were of Huguenot origin. The name LeMaistre was soon corrupted to Masters. In 1675 Francis LeMaistre or Master, was granted 240 acres in Shrewsbury by proprietors. The same year Clement Masters and Paulin Masters were granted 120 acres in Shrewsbury.

LEONARD—James Leonard of Taunton, Mass., was one of the original purchasers of land in Monmouth 1667-70. He did not settle here but sold his share to Sarah Reape. December. 1764, and in the deed is called "ironmonger." Henry Leonard. brother of James, from whom most of the ancient Monmouth Leonards descend, had w. Mary, and came to New Jersey, it is supposed, about 1674 or 5 and engaged in the iron business with Col. Lewis Morris at Tinton Falls. Henry Leonard had warrants for land in 1676 for 450 acres and then for 300 acres. The Leonard bros. early had a sawmill, named in 1687-92 and other times. The Leonard family descend from Thomas Leonard of England, who was a son of Henry Leonard, b. in the latter part of reign of Queen Mary, or early part of reign of Queen Elizabeth. In the northern part of New Jersey was another branch of the Leonard family, descending from the James of Taunton, first named in Monmouth as a purchaser, but not settler. He had several children. In the Revolutionary war some members of the Leonard family friendly to the Church of England, joined the Loyalists, among whom were John, John Jr., Joseph, Thomas and Samuel Leonard, whose property was advertised to be confiscated. At sale, March 27, 1779, John Schenck bought property of Thomas Leonard. The latter was a merchant of Freehold. He became a major in the Royalist service and was taken prisoner by the Americans in 1777 and confined at Easton, Pa. At the close of the war he went to St. John, New Brunswick.

LETTS—Francis Letts was taxed in old Shrewsbury 1764. In 1792 Francis Letts took up land south side Cedar Creek, and in 1801 John Letts took up land just above house of Francis Letts. At Manahawken, Thomas Letts sold land to Samuel Brown in 1793, and in 1800 he sold to Luke Courtenay. In the Revolutionary war John and Nehemiah Letts were soldiers from old Monmouth county. This family descend from William Letts, an original settler of Elizabethtown, New Jersey. Daniel Letts lived about beginning of this century on north side of Stout's Creek, on the place subsequently owned by Joseph Stout; he had son David who lived at Goodluck, corner of the church lane.

COLONIAL IRON

Development of the iron industry in Colonial America was hastened by the need for tools and utensils and the delay and difficulty in obtaining them from Europe.

Extraction of iron from its ores is a theoretically simple process, as it is only necessary to mix ores with charcoal and create a hot fire to cause the metal to separate. The products of furnaces varied greatly, however, depending upon the quality of the ore, the construction of the furnace, the force and continuity of the air blast, and the skill of the workers.

The first iron works in America was built near Jamestown, Virginia, in the early 1600's, and some iron was smelted. But about 1622 Indians are believed to have massacred the iron workers and demolished their primitive furnace.

The first successful American iron works was founded about 1644 on the banks of the Saugus River at West Quincy, Massachusetts.* Known as the Winthrop furnace, it turned out pig iron and hollow ware some two years before Saugus Iron Works began operations. The pig iron which was made was either cast into molds for desired articles or refined, the excess carbon being removed on a hearth, to make bar iron.

In New Jersey, the first iron works was founded at Tinton Falls which, prior to 1673, was known as the Falls of Shrewsbury. James Grover, of Gravesend, Long Island, who was one of the original Monmouth patentees, is believed to have discovered the deposits of bog iron in the area and sent to New England for James and Henry Leonard, experienced millwrights who had assisted in construction of most of the forges and furnaces of that area.

The furnace was built some time prior to 1675 by Grover, for in that year he conveyed the property to Lewis Morris of the island of Barbadoes. By 1680, the works employed 70 Negroes and many white servants.

Exact location of the furnace is difficult to determine but it apparently was situated upon Hockhockson Brook, a tributary of North Shrewsbury or Navesink River. A deed of 1795 mentions that "Hockhocksing" Brook meets Tinton Forge or Falls Brook.* A map in Smith's History of New Jersey, printed in 1765, identifies as "Iron Mill River" what now is Hockhockson Brook.

So highly important was the project regarded, it was enacted by the Legislature in 1676 that "touching Colonel Morris' request, the Deputies are willing the lands and works belonging properly to the Iron-Works shall or may be rate-free for seven years, excepting in extraordinary cases, as war or the like."

Colonel Morris was from Monmouthshire, England, where his estate was known as Tintern. From this the county became known as Monmouth and the iron works as Tintern Manor, later corrupted to Tinton. The works was mentioned in 1714 as not too profitable. At various periods the enterprise was also referred to as Shrewsbury or Monmouth Furnace.

As late as 1844, history lists a furnace in operation at Tinton Falls.

Iron works were built where streams could provide power to operate air blast bellows for the furnaces and hammers for the forges.

The terms forge and furnace appear to have been used interchangeably to some extent in Colonial times.

A typical furnace would be twenty feet or more in height, about twenty-four feet across the base and sixteen feet at the top, tapering upward like a cone or pyramid with the top sliced off. Its function was the reduction of ores to crude pig iron through intense heat. The iron was run off to harden in sand molds.

The smelting process was accomplished by charging the furnace from the top with alternate layers of ore, charcoal and oyster shells or limestone. The lime combined with ore impurities to make a slag which floated on top of the refined iron. The iron then was tapped off at the bottom and the slag drawn off higher up on the side of the furnace about every ten hours.

Charcoal was the ideal fuel in the days before anthracite coal came into use and proved superior. Hickory made the best charcoal but apparently any wood at hand was used on occasion. The average furnace used the wood from about 240 acres of land each year.

A forge was a more refined version of the furnace. Pig iron from a furnace, often on the same site, was resmelted and refined into malleable bar iron.

Pig iron could be cast into pots, pans, kettles, firebacks, stoves and sash weights. But "bar iron" or wrought iron was required for products which had to be pounded into shape and required great strength. Thus tools, wheel rims and horse shoes were made from this material.

As iron was resmelted in the forge fire, it was beaten with heavy hammers, often weighing five hundred pounds. These were raised by a water wheel and then allowed to fall upon the molten metal. This process removed impurities.

Also found in early iron works were rolling mills, where heavy rollers flattened wrought metal into sheet iron, and slitting mills, which employed mechanical shears to turn out iron rods from which were made nails, wagon tires and similar products.

So it is easy to see the importance of the ironworks in the early days of our country. Their products were found in every kitchen, the tools they produced used in every trade.

THE EARLY PERIOD

Attempts to solve the mysteries of the earliest Manasquan River ironworks are hampered by a complete lack of any business records and constant gaps in the chain of deeds covering the properties where they were located.

During the 1700's, there were dozens of small forges and furnaces throughout New Jersey. British efforts in 1750 to halt the spread of an industry which was providing undesired competition for English merchants met with little success.

The proclamation issued September 15, 1750, by Governor Belcher declared in part that:

> "Having received his Majesty's Command to cause the Act for encouraging the Importation of Pig and Bar Iron from His Majesty's Colonies in America; and to prevent the Erection of any Mill or other Engine, for slitting or rolling of Iron, or any plating Forge to work with a Tilt-Hammer, or any Furnace for making Steel in any of the said Colonies, and every Clause therein to be strictly and punctually observed within this Province. In order to enable me to pay exact Obedience to the same, I do hereby require the Owner or Owners of every Mill, or Engine for slitting or rolling of Iron, and of every plating Forge that works with a Tilt Hammer, and of every Furnace for making of Steel, which were erected before the 24th Day of June last, to transmit or cause to be delivered into the Secretary's Office at Burlington, on or before the 20th Day of October next a particular Account under their Hands of the Situation of their respective works, and the Name or Names of the Owner or Owners and whether the same are used or not."

County sheriffs were directed to enforce the proclamation, a not entirely enviable job. It is quite understandable that the operators of bootleg forges and furnaces did not publicize their activities. The result is a considerable lack of information in the period between 1750 and the start of the American Revolution.

It has long been a local tradition that an ironworks operated during the Revolution at or near the Manasquan River site of the nineteenth century Howell Works, which today is called Allaire. Efforts to substantiate reports that such a forge made chains of the type used to guard harbor entrances against the raids of British vessels have failed completely.

But it has been established that an iron works was in operation there less than ten years later, a fact that adds new substance to the old rumors.

The first iron works is mentioned in a June 16, 1788, deed* from Humphrey Nickols and his wife to Joseph Parker which conveyed seventy-four acres of land beginning "at Red Brook ten chains from Squan River" and included "all the buildings, houses, mills, forges, outhouses, brooks, springs, mines, minerals, woods, trees, underwoods, improvements, liberties, etc. . . ."

Red Brook in a later deed is also identified as Yellow Brook, a stream which joined the Manasquan near the present village of Squankum, only a quarter mile upstream from the later Howell Works.

Whether it is significant or pure chance, property on Red Brook was acquired as early as 1714 by Henry Leonard, a descendant of James and Henry Leonard, the New England ironmasters who in 1674 set up the Tinton Falls Iron Works.

In 1739, when Henry Leonard died, his will assigned "Red Brook mill to son Thomas." What sort of mill this was we can only guess. The Leonards also acquired through an Indian deed ten thousand acres of land between the Manasquan and Metedeconk Rivers.

Nickols' deed to Joseph Parker states he acquired the Red Brook site in 1785 from John and Elias Covenhoven. But the deed from the Covenhovens to Nickols has not been found.

Another isolated fact of doubtful significance is that in 1781 a John Covenhoven advertised for sale at Spotswood "6 pair of good forge bellows." Advertisements of that sale and of a sale of an iron works at Spotswood in 1780 by Joseph Haight of Allentown appear in the New Jersey Gazette of those years. Whether or not John Covenhoven was an iron maker hasn't been determined.

Arguments both pro and con may be advanced on the possibility of a forge operating along the Manasquan during the Revolution.

The area was the center of activities for the Pine Robbers, the band of outlaws which terrorized Central Jersey during the war years. And though the bandits professed allegiance to the British, their raiding frequently was indiscriminate.

Had a forge been operated by Tories, it could conceivably have had protection from the Pine Robber band. Had it been operated by those friendly to the American cause, it might either have operated secretly—scarcely possible in view of the noise—or had protection from Continental militiamen.

Efforts to determine whether Humphrey Nickols conducted the Red Brook iron works or leased it to someone else have been unavailing.

Chronologically, the next reference to a forge at Squankum appears in the will of Benjamin Jackson, Jr., who lived in that community. It directs that "one-fourth of Forge bought of Nathan Davis and conveyed to me by Joseph Aston, to be sold." Jackson died March 11, 1797.

Efforts to learn more about Jackson, Aston and Davis again led the researcher into a dead end.

On November 6, 1800, the mystery is compounded by a deed* from Peter Knott and his wife to Joseph Parker. It relates to:

> "All that tract of land situate in said Shrewsbury (township) on the north side of the Manasquan River and on the east side of Yellow or Red Brook beginning on the south side of the main road that leads from Squancom across Marshe's Bogg to the New Forge and at the northeast corner of a five or six acre lott late belonging to Humphrey Nichols, formerly in the possession of Abraham Parker. About eight or ten chains to the southeastward of an old forge belonging to said Parker on said Yellow Brook."

* Book N. page 112. Monmouth Deeds.

"Marthe's Bogg" was the community now called Farmingdale.

In 1759, Peter Knott's father, David, owned property adjacent to Henry Leonard's lands. And an 1803 will mentions that Peter Knott sold to Solomon Wardell one-half of a tilt-hammer works and one-fourth of a fire in Williamsburg Forge. But whether the Knotts were forge operators remains undetermined.

Though how they were related is not clear, there seems good reason to believe that Joseph and Abraham Parker were iron makers.

First, there was the 1788 land transfer in which Joseph Parker acquired the forges and mines on the Humphrey Nickols property.

Second, there is the deed from Peter Knott to Joseph Parker in 1800 for land near the "New Forge," and Abraham Parker's old forge.

Third, is a deed of July 29, 1801*, from Andrew Bell to Joseph Parker which lists property "beginning at a stone lying on the highway about twenty chains to the northeast from the said Joseph Parker's forge and gristmill . . ."

The 1800 deed is of particular interest in describing a New Forge and an old forge. A forge would have had to be only about twenty years old to have been in operation during the Revolution.

Continent in return for certain royal concessions. Hastings continued in prosperity until partially destroyed by a great storm in 1287, followed by two devastating invasions by the French in 1339 and 1377 from which the town never recovered.

Facing the pier, the White Rock Pavilion serves as a reminder of the rocks that continually fell from the cliffs above, frequently blocking the main London to Hastings road. On one occasion the path of Princess Victoria and her mother became blocked en route for a holiday visit to St Leonards, causing extreme royal annoyance and forcing them to make a long detour.

PEVENSEY

William the Conqueror landed at Pevensey on the 28th September 1066. At that time it stood on the coast, but changes in the coastline since then explain why Pevensey now stands a mile from the sea. He enlarged and improved Pevensey Castle, a structure that had stood by the sea since Roman times and which had been occupied by Alfred the Great during the 9th century while he was fighting the Danes. The five-towered castle still stands surrounded by its original Roman walls and a moat. It was besieged on many occasions and was usually captured by being starved into submission by its attackers. William's brother Robert was forced to surrender the castle to William Rufus in 1088; while in 1147 Pevensey fell again, this time to King Stephen.

In the 14th century, the castle was held by the Pelham family for Henry IV against the attacks of Richard II. Henry was victorious and he granted Pevensey to the Pelhams as a mark of his gratitude.

✓HERSTMONCEUX

Henry III stayed here for one night in 1264 on his way to the Battle of Lewes. At that time Herstmonceux was a Norman manor house, but a licence to crenallate was granted in 1440 which transformed it into a castle. Most of the building was demolished in 1777 and remained in ruins until the early 20th century, when it was rebuilt. The structure was greatly restored and further additions were made to house the Royal Observatory which moved there from Greenwich in 1948. The Observatory contains one of the largest telescopes in the world, and was opened by Queen Elizabeth II on 1st December 1967. The grounds are open to the public.

The above paper, though it furnishes additional particulars, controverts no statement of fact in the Genealogical Memoir of the Leonard family heretofore published by the writer of this. It renders it more improbable that the Taunton Leonards were from the Dacre family, yet does not make it less probable that they are from an earlier offshoot of the same original Lennard stock. Margaret Finnes, the wife of Sampson Lennard by whom the Dacre title was brought into the Lennard family, had, according to the Peerages 8 Ch. Henry, Gregory, Thomas, Anne, Mary, Margaret, Elizabeth and Frances. Her son Henry, (12th Lord Dacre) was of a proper age to have been the Henry Leonard, great grandfather of Mrs. Hannah Deane; but it does not appear that the first mentioned Henry had a son Thomas, his children having been Richard, (13th Lord Dacre) Edward, Fynes, Margaret Penelope, Philadelphia and Barbara.

George Leonard, Esq. of St. John, N. B., son of Rev. Nathaniel L. of Plymouth, Mass. who visited England in the latter part of the last century, and while there made investigations upon this subject, appears however to have felt quite sure that his family was descended from the Dacres. In a letter to his cousin Hon. George Leonard of Norton, dated St. John, Oct. 4, 1798, he writes—" From every thing I can collect—from old records in England, at the Herald's Office, and among the late Lord Dacre's papers, who was very attentive to me, and where I found free access to his Lordship's library and other parts of his houses in town and country, where his papers were deposited, for information; and who was very anxious that some of our family inherited some of the vacant titles.

From which I find that one of our ancestors, Henry Leonard, came to America about the time that the Earl of Warwick obtained a large grant of land near Boston, which was in 1626; from about which time to the year 1638, a great number of respectable people came over from England to avoid the dissentions there. Amongst those was Lord Leith [Leigh] who afterwards returned, and two daughters of the Earl of Lincoln, Lady Susan and Lady Arabella, with their husbands, who continued in the country; together with many others that were of good families and fortunes. The spirit of emigration and religious enthusiasm so greatly prevailed in that day that a very considerable number of young gentlemen and ladies of the first connections in England left, or rather absconded from their parents. Among these we have reason to think was Henry Leonard, one of our grandfathers, who left England about that time, as a copy of a letter was found directed to him from his friend (a young gentleman) Sir Brian Jansen, whom he left in England, and who was supposed to be acquainted with his going out, who congratulates him upon getting away before the order of the King in Council was issued, in February 21, 1633, to prevent any further emigration to America. It's probable that, on his arrival, he concealed his name some time from the knowledge of his friends in England. Thus far I have traced our grandfather's grandfather, and must leave you to continue the chace in the regular line to the present day."

Zephaniah Leonard, whom it is the purpose of this paper to notice, had fourteen children by his wife Hannah, viz. I. Joshua, b. 5 Jan. 1724–5, d. 27 Nov. 1816, a. 91; m.
